link some funny/pathetic kickstarters. indiegogo is also allowed: it's the same thing except you keep the cash even if you dont meet the goal

http://www.kickstarter.com/projects/dmatlas/the-time-machine-a-steam-punk-feature-film nice video http://www.kickstarter.com/projects/1339254269/ron-paul-road-to-revolution sadly it met its goal

Right now I'm just working and trying to complete the total scrip and playing around with a combat system concept on the site and preparing the final outfit designs and poses. Once the script is 100% completed and edited I'll start putting the final drafts on the cut scenes and events and work on the final character graphics before the deadline ends. Depending on where the final funding ends I'll decide how the last parts will be added.

so you've done literally nothing, and you expect a finished product by...

The game should be out by the end of June maybe July if we get in the higher range of the goals

Different site with the same premise. Beyond Wrestling is a company that's business model is to not let fans, ie the people who are supposed to fund the wrestling show by buying tickets, into their shows. Then they try and raise money to bring wrestlers in.

So fuck them.

Goddamn.
I still think the first one is worse though.
Over 1000 dollars for a movie that is nothing but losers talking about ponies is ridiculous.
If I ever wanted to watch losers talk about ponies, I could just go on youtube and do it for free.

I like how his kickstarter is mostly a concept until he gets his $1.1 million. But he's put in nothing but in-game rewards with meaninglessly specific numbers for donations.
