Yeah, WWE shows too many male nipples for Chris to be a mark himself. (He probably approves of RVD covering up though.)

Chris looks like a fat version of Riff Raff and plays music in his video again. He's apologizing to an Ebay buyer for sending him the wrong Sonichu.

There's a backstory where Chris takes two weeks to make a single Sonichu medallion and sell it on Ebay and gets in some kind of dispute with his Ebay buyer where he doxxes him and makes a drawing of him pouring ice on the buyer's head, and some other stuff I'm not going to register an account with the CWcki forums to see. <http://cwckiforums.com/threads/my-exper-...iece.5501/>

Chris's hair has frizz going on big time.

Also, how expensive is this modeling clay he uses for these things anyway?

Walmart has 8 oz. variety packs with a bunch of different colors for $10 and 4 oz. packs of a single color for $4.50. There are 2 lb. tubs of the stuff available for $15-$25, depending on how many colors you want. There's white clay that you can just paint for about the same price for a big tub of it. Kohl's, a middle class department store, has tubs of the fancy stuff (not just primary colors) for $20. I didn't know Kohl's had toys because I've only used them to buy shoes, clothing and towels.

So if'm guessing there's a couple bucks worth of materials in each modelling

Chris is selling amiibo figures.

I don't know what that is.

hahahaha the best part of that is like, the fake box looks totally okay and blurred by the plastic packaging and the shitty camera at first you think "whoa, that's a remarkably decent custom job" and then there's the photo of the figure out of the package and just like paint glob city, 10/10

41 dollars?
I wouldn't pay that much for a real amiibo.

So if I understand this, an amiibo is just a figurine with an nfc chip or something that communicates with a game system?

And if that's what they are, is he modifying the chip information as well or just the figurine? I assume he isn't modifying the info as he says it's just sonic's data but can that be done?

modifying the chip is def possible, just more trouble than it's worth cuz all an amiibo does is generate super jacked-up a.i. characters in the new smash bros or unlock bonus items in other games, so no amount of modification would be able to actually generate a workable sonichu avatar or whatever

In a way, this amiibo thing is the perfect metaphor for chris' creation. No matter what he says, it's really just Sonic the hedgehog.

Also, that's quite a markup he has there for yellow paint and some ears. From what I can see those things are like 12 bucks.
