Another year? Already!! . . . But to help you ease the shock that another year is, indeed, upon us, there are festivities and activities galore to help ease the passage of time. . . . Throughout the state, special shows, free champagne, party favors, events, contests, door prizes and general hoopla and bedlam will prevail. Don't fail to check the calendar in this issue, or the special display ads to find out who is doing what to whom in your area. Not to mention the traditional passing out of black eyed peas and cornbread in lots of places. Additionally, all this is against the background of the Bicentennial year. So even if you haven't been "out" in public for awhile, don't stay home on this New Year's Eve. It promises to be something more than special. . . . In other and related news around the state, take note of these items, Houstonians. First off, if you're a fan of the Locker, there are some special rules and requirements concerning their New Year's Eve ritual. You have to be inside the Locker before 11:30pm or you won't be admitted. The Locker New Year's event will, indeed, be special. And as you know there will be no New Year's hooting and hollering at the La Caja this year. It was burned last week. Future plans for that bar are uncertain as of this writing. The La Caja could have been victim to the plague of vandalism and burglary that has hit many Houston bars in recent weeks. . . . Over at Houston's new Old Plantation, work is still continuing to get everything there in working order. Word now has it that the piano bar, featuring Jenny and Jody, should be ready in January. . . . The Gay Community Center planned for Houston is now moving toward real existence. The legal force of the Gay Political Caucus has obtained a tax-free status for the organization, and now contributions that are tax-deductible can be made to really get the project off the ground. . . . Those in Dallas are in for a real "first." For the first time in its history, the Club Bath affiliate there, Club Dallas, will actually take reservations. You can now reserve your room for New Year's Eve night, and avoid the stand-in-line crunch. The hours that reservations will be accepted are 8am to 4pm on December 31st. Grab those phones and ring them bells! . . . In San Antonio, the Habitat will observe special holiday hours, and will be open 7pm to 2am on New Year's Day. The later starting time will permit all employees to celebrate a little longer the night before — and nurse those headaches. . . . For you movie buffs, the selection at the Locker in Houston this week, December 30th, will be the Dustin Hoffman-Ann Bancroft classic, The Graduate. . . . The Filling Station in Houston has begun registering for the Texas Stud Leather Master Auction to be held soon. . . . And finally, and get this, the town of Killeen now has a gay bar. Tell everybody in town. It's called the Royal Skylark Club, located south on Old Highway 191. It's a beginning. Surely some of you must pass through Killeen when you're on the road to somewhere, huh? . . . That's all for now. I've got a late date and my party hat is beginning to run red ink down my face as I perspire in anticipation. I'll let ya know how it turns out. But for now, let's all get out there and boogie!!!!

SKYLINES

SKYLINES: Your General Horoscope for January, 1976

ARIES (March 21 – April 19): New Year's brings upheavals in your personal life; friends or lovers move out of your sphere and new ones take their place. If married, new facts emerge in your relationship and you realize facts about your "other half" to which you may have been blind in the past.

TAURUS (April 20 – May 20): Relations with family members, if lately rather strained, are improved, strengthened and normalized. You are no longer subject to the stubborn attitudes of others in personal matters. Time to exercise self-interest in your financial picture. Business dealings can be further-reaching than they appear.

GEMINI (May 21 – June 20): Troubles involving friendships make you unsettled and restless. There's not much you can do to help. Act with diplomacy but beware of seeming apathetic to your friends' problems. Tea and sympathy strengthen your position.

CANCER (June 21 – July 22): Planetary influences in your first and eighth houses dictate a need for added caution concerning your health and well-being. Take no chances where your personal safety is concerned. A time to cut out much social activity and concentrate on building upon your personal and financial security.

LEO (July 23 – August 22): Friends, companions by whom you could benefit greatly, suffer complex problems. Perhaps unknowingly, you have added to them. Rather than accept the temptation to go on your merry way, evaluate these relationships and act effectively to strengthen them. Timing is crucial in all your affairs this month; see to it that you "arrive late" in no important matters.

VIRGO (August 23 – September 22): Sudden austerity in your personal and social environment troubles you deeply. Don't hide your emotions, but express them freely and explain what it is that bothers you. This will give trusted friends and associates a tangent by which to act in assisting you.

LIBRA (September 23 – October 23): Your presence in agreements, whether between friends or in business dealings, gives you an air of importance. It is necessary to your own integrity that you point out injustice in those dealings. By this you will be held in greater esteem by both parties. Abide nothing in silence.

SCORPIO (October 24 – November 21): Beware of secret enemies where occupation, credit, honor or rank are concerned. Express your opinions openly and clearly, and make it known that you will meet your opponents on an open field, honestly and fairly. You have nothing to fear, as opponents fear your open vengeance most of all.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 – December 21): Carefully weigh information at hand, accepting nothing for face value; consider the source. Sensual enjoyments play a prominent part in your activities this month, and admirers are hard to number. Play along, and remember at least "fifty ways to leave your lover."

CAPRICORN (December 22 – January 19): Be patient with those who seem not to care – they're just extra busy. Go ahead and make plans in romantic adventures. Unanswered cor-

by Robert Fenn and Jeff Newbold

Was it enough that Monty Rock III managed to camp and carry on to millions of ears via the national airwaves? It should warrant some kind of a Grammy from gay people, for he has done his part for our liberation.

But we have more than that to thank him for. Monty Rock III's Disco Tex and the Sex-O-Lettes Revue album was responsible for a major part of the disco revolution in the music industry.

Aside from being simply a good album, it had a magic about it, a flair and a conceptual genius that overshadows most all of the output of major artists in the past half-decade. It was wicked. It's a mastery of showmanship, the burlesque and bizarre, song and dance. It had balls.

Moody Blues, Grand Funk, the Rolling Stones, et al.

For a while, song and dance as a dual artistic concept seemed almost forgotten. Deluged by Meistersingers with something to say, whether about war and famine, hard days and straight sex, or politics and religion, we made do with poets.

It was a vanilla rock and roll, however worldly. And it was a music ill-designed for dancing — and so lacking at that. One does not dance well and hard at acid rock. So there.

Something was missing in the music coming out of Hollywood, New York, Nashville and London, whether it sold well or not.

Lo, enter Monty Rock III, the obscure and done-well-to-have tried-to-forgotten, who exhorts us, and get this, to get dancing! Listen to this faggots, he's too much.

We did. He was. The album was an undisguised smash.

The key to his magic, and the predominant theme of Revue, is audience participation. We feel like a part of the show, for we can hear us shouting and celebrating, camping and carrying on, going crazy. That's hot.

It makes you want to dance since according to your senses you already are. It makes you feel trashy, since according to the lyrics everybody is.

And read this: it makes you feel like liking feeling trashy. Now, that's fun.

In some way, Monty Rock (Sir, the third, if you will) has controlled us. It's no secret (or is it?) that when a public is generally demoralized, its tastes take a turn toward the exotic, if not its morals a turn for the worse. Miss Rock is, if anything, exotic; hinting as he does, at something less than morals. Viet Nam, Watergate, the recession — I can name any number of reasons why the American Public felt demoralized in the past two years. Small wonder that people have stopped listening to entertainers reminding them of their problems. None love the messenger who bringeth bad news.

"It's that time!" sings/screams Disco Tex, jubilantly.

It is the collective trauma of a public conscience that gives the entertainment industry its audience. And a true entertainer — whether a comedian, a singer, or a lovemake on a screen — does his job in capturing at least momentarily the attentions and the minds of his audience; creating, in a word, diversions.

Well, fine. They've done it. Little

Like its print and stage predecessor, the film version of One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest is a dirty, filthy film. But not in a style to which we have become accustomed. Of sex and words there is little to offend the sensibilities of the American hipster. But it is to the U.S. chic that this cinematic effort will most offend the sensibilities.

The film is not a product that offends the viewer. It merely reflects the society in which we exist — and shows us for what we, as a society, have become. Offensive. For those prone to predict doom will come the realization that the tragedy of our existence has already reached that point. A plastic, oppressive culture repugnant to the heritage we so commonly tout in public.

As you probably already know, the action of the film is centered in a ward for the mentally ill. But as you might also suspect, the question of whether it is the animal or the zoo keeper that is really meritorious of being caged is not moot. Despite our modern day efforts to force such questions to a comfortable hidden position, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest forces attention on such thoughts and reveals that in the game of society there are winners and losers — and for the most part, we are all losers.

The mantle of performance worn by Jack Nicholson is not unlike that garnered by Cliff Robertson in his Oscar-winning role in Charley, a film whose overall general message is closely akin to that of Cuckoo's Nest.

But where Charley left the viewer with a gentle, wrist-slap indictment of the folly of our society, One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest is not so kind. And rightfully so.

Audience reaction to this Christmas-present release film comes in direct proportion to the political and social attitudes of those viewing. Little will be the variance of appreciation based on standard cinematic judgment criteria. The film stands almost flawless. So opinion falls not in the nature of presentation, but in response to the message once perceived.

Most leave the film on one of three moods. There are those who are little moved by the film's message. Those in that category would include the John Wayne-Susie Sorority types who just can't believe there is really anything wrong with our Henry Kissinger-Gulf Oil-Sara Lee society. Secondly, confirmation of all the ills of our society they have suspected all along. And finally, and most visibly shaken, will be those individuals who once thought all was well with our society, but are just now beginning to become shaken by the fraudulent premises on which it is built.

Don't get me wrong. This is not a politically dogmatic theme under discussion. To the contrary, it is a deeply moving personal story of a group of society's outcasts and the effect of one man who wouldn't conform. But it is played against a background that requires affiliation to a specific pessimistic view of our inhuman efforts in being a society. And the greatest personal appreciation of the film comes to those with the ability to perceive the disgustingly true nature of our collective existence.

This film makes you view with a little more compassion all those stories of people giving up their worldly belongings to go sit out on a mountain and wait to be rescued by aliens from another planet in a UFO. They may just be smarter than any of us left behind. Even if the UFO never comes!

matter that it took two years to produce the Disco Tex album. We'll gladly wait for the next.

respondence will be answered soon. Listen to what friends have to say; it may concern something you have in mind to do yourself.

AQUARIUS (January 20 – February 18): If you didn't get away for the holidays, chances are you will soon have the opportunity to do so. Social activity is still abundant, and you could quite possibly meet a friend for life. Take a good look at your outlook on things and determine if it couldn't be keeping you from experiencing a lot.

PISCES (February 19 – March 20): Looking out for others is a job you are usually good with, and the opportunity comes to play Momma Bear. Enjoy good times to the fullest and try to overcome the challenges of beginning a new year. Say to yourself, "This is the year for me."
