This map displays the residential development areas of Aurora, Colorado, for the 2024-25 school year. The map is color-coded to show different types of development: blue for active development, orange for planned development, and various colored dots for school locations. Major roads, including Interstate 70 and Interstate 225, are shown in yellow. The map also includes labels for various neighborhoods and landmarks, such as the Anschutz Medical Campus, Buckley Space Force Base, and the Denver-Arapahoe Landfill. The map is divided into sections by major roads, and the names of these sections are listed along the top and left edges. The map is a detailed overview of the city's residential landscape, showing the distribution of schools and the locations of new and planned developments.
