1992 Pride Week Elections

by Donn Mumma

On August 20th, the Pride Week committee will hold the last meeting for Houston Gay/Lesbian Pride Week 1991 and hold elections for next year.

Believe it or not, it's already time to start thinking about next summer's events! Because of the broad scope of Pride Week activities, year-round planning and organization are required to ensure a successful celebration.

The event's title alternates between "Lesbian/Gay Pride Week" and "Gay/Lesbian Pride Week".

September marks the official beginning of the fiscal year for Pride Week. As specified in the bylaws, anyone can become a voting member of Pride

Week by simply attending the August meeting; this also entitles those who attend to run for office and to vote for officers. After the August meeting, one must attend two consecutive Pride Week meetings to become a voting member.

Pride Week has two co-chairs (a male and a female), a secretary, and a treasurer; members must nominate themselves to run for office in the organization. As of this writing, the self-nominations have been Jack Valinski for male co-chair, Carol Clark for female co-chair, and Jim Wunroe for treasurer. Self-nominations may also be made at the election meeting.

Among the ideas already being considered in the course of planning for 1992 are the possibility of obtaining a separate 501(c)(3) nonprofit organizational status for Pride Week, and producing a video tape of next year's parade.

So please come out for the August meeting at the Service Center—it's the best way to become a voting member and to make sure your voice is heard in how Pride Week is run. λ

A Look Back...

by Jack Valinski

September begins a new year for Pride Week. As we look back at the year, the Houston Gay and Lesbian community has made tremendous progress. Glen Maxy was elected as the first openly gay official in the state house. The Out series at Diverse Works was a success not only in the fact that they had full houses, but also that the performance art pieces were probably the best this city has ever seen.

Pride Week was not only a fiscal success, but a critical one as well. This is the first year I can remember in which there were no critical letters appearing in the gay press. Both Carol and I were overwhelmed since we became co-chairs late in the year. The non-gay press coverage was tremendous. The Houston Press cover story during Pride Week was probably better than if we had written it ourselves, and basically told the stories that our TAKE PRIDE poster tried to show. It was also the first time that the Houston Chronicle did a positive local story rather than covering other pride celebrations nationwide in a not-so-positive light.

Our merchandise committee sold out of all the T-shirts and buttons. In fact, we did not even have enough to give a sample to our art advisor and designer, Greg Scott.

Then the tragic events of the July 4th weekend occurred. I was in Florida and still heard about it. Could it be that because there was so much press during Pride Week that the crazies came out? We can never be sure. The crazies are always around and what provoked them to murder Paul Broussard we will never know.

It was the never-tiring efforts of community activists which alerted the non-gay media. And this time, we had witnesses—this tragedy did not go unnoticed, like so many in the past. The press finally did give this story front page coverage.

A new organization in Houston called Queer Nation decided that they were not going to take it anymore. These (mostly) young people called for a march in the Montrose that drew about 2,000 people. This was a tremendous turnout for a city that is not known for protest. Queer Nation's continued success is a breath of fresh air to many of us who have been involved in the community for many years. It is great that there are new, young people who demand that gays and lesbians not be treated like second class citizens in Houston.

Then came the Juan Palomo story. A Houston Post columnist wrote a story on Paul Broussard and tried to come out at the same time. Who would ever think that the story of Juan's firing would be on local television in San Francisco and in The New York Times. The story had a happy ending where Juan was re-hired and is now on the editorial board of the Post, perhaps the first openly gay person to be on an editorial board of a major daily.

It seems that Houston has come alive with a new activism, and it feels great that we seem to have respect from other areas of the country such as New York and San Francisco. But as important as having people who are willing to be arrested for their beliefs and who want change, it is also important that we have people to do the bureaucratic work and to staff our other organizations, which are also vital. What kind of community are we if we don't have the Gay and Lesbian Switchboard open, or if we don't have volunteers at the AIDS Foundation Houston, or if we don't have a strong Pride Week?

I am not just trying to push for activism in Pride Week because I am

part of it. Pride Week is important because it reaches out to people through the many events that happen during the week in late June. In the past, it was usually the only time when we in the community got press coverage from the major newspapers and TV stations and when we were able to tell young people that there is a community of us.

As important as Queer Nation's message is—that we are not just going to sit back and take it—Pride Week has a message, too: that we can be proud of who we are, that we represent all types of people, and that we have interests in all types of activities.

It is now time for Pride Week to do more than just organize the events in June. As we grow and work toward becoming our own organization, we want to expand our scope to produce events around the year. To do this, we need people who want to join us in our ideas.

Our organization is one that is open to everyone in the community. All you have to do to vote is attend two meetings. We welcome input and certainly welcome your help. The officers and Executive Team are only one of the many aspects of this organization. Our organization is for the community.

And we would love to see you at the next meeting. λ

Proud About What?

by Brian McNaught

Now that we have rolled up our banners, swept up our confetti and tucked away our Lesbian and Gay Pride T-shirts for another year, a bit of reflecting on our celebration seems in order. What are the particulars which make us proud about the gay and lesbian presence in the world?

I'm proud of our resilience. Most of us grow up in families which are afraid to know our secret, go through schools which deny our existence, head into jobs which encourage our duplicity, encounter doctors and ministers and other honored healers who seek to transform us and we nonetheless survive!

I'm proud of our history of heroes and heroines who, one by one, throughout time, pounded, shoved, scratched and oiled the hinges of our closet door.

I'm proud of how we gay men and lesbians today hang together when we deal with tragedies such as AIDS.

TAKE PRIDE

Houston To Be Represented At Conference

Houston Pride Week's newly-elected co-chairs Jack Valinski and Carol Clark will join delegates from around the nation and the world in Boston next month for the tenth annual conference of lesbian and gay pride coordinators.

The four day conference focuses on sharing information and skills necessary to organize successful pride week celebrations. This year's conference will include workshops and seminars on public relations, effective use of the media, coalition building, and fund-raising skills and ideas. The International Pride Theme is also chosen at the conference.

From the first meeting held in Boston in 1982 and attended by delegates from six US cities, the event has grown over the years to include representatives from most major US cities, as well as Canada and Europe. In 1986, the sponsoring group became known as the International Association of Lesbian/Gay Pride Coordinators.

Proud About What?

Though we're the orphaned children of the civil rights movement; though we may have no family, church or other institutional support, we time and time again baffle our enemies by our ability to dig in, generously donate our time and money to take care of our own and sacrifice our private lives to make sure that no one who travels with us walks unassisted.

I'm proud of those lesbians and gay people of color and disability who struggle to stick with the movement when all too often able-bodied gay white men pretend they don't exist, or, worse yet, pretend that our agenda meets their needs. And I'm proud of those able-bodied gay white men who struggle to rid themselves of a limited agenda and world view.

I'm proud of those lesbian mothers and gay fathers who choose to fight for custody when they feel they would be the best parent to raise their children.

I'm proud of those gay and lesbian children who hold on to the dream of one day building a healthy and secure environment for themselves.

I'm proud of those gay and lesbian college students who don't give up when their posters are repeatedly torn down and of those who hold strong when their university refuses to recognize them as a legitimate group. They spend what little money they have to pay for the telephone, supplies and office space other student groups get for free.

I'm proud of those office workers who refuse to play charades with their peers and who therefore endure the daily cold shoulder rather than the daily lies. They know that if someone has to be uncomfortable about their being gay, it ought not to be them.

I'm proud of those gay men and lesbians who have gay literature and art prominently displayed in their homes and who do not put them under the bed when family arrives for a visit. It takes a while to understand that one's home is one's only space for free expression. If visitors are made uncomfortable by our self-expression, visitors should not visit.

I'm proud of those gay men and lesbians who recently marched in their first Pride Parade, even if it was in straw hat and sunglasses; of those who have bought their first lesbian or gay periodical or book from a straight sales clerk; of those who cautiously stepped foot into their first gay bar or attended their first meeting of a gay organization. I know how frightened they were and how much courage it took.

I'm proud of all those gay men and women who have written letters to the editor to protest inaccurate or nonexistent reporting on our community and of those who have made phone calls to station managers to compliment a sensitive portrayal of our issues. These gay people know the media must serve everyone.

I'm proud of the volunteers who staff our hotlines. They give up their free time so that lonely, frightened and often desperate people will have at least one friendly voice and open ear to rely upon. I know that the abuse they endure from those who call with death threats and obscene messages takes its toll.

I'm proud of those lesbians and gay men who head up our local and national organizations. They are paid little, if anything, and put in far more time than is good for their health. Rarely are they adequately thanked. Too often are they senselessly criticized. Nevertheless, they have a dream and they are willing to sacrifice for it.

I'm proud of those gay Christians and Jews who won't give up on their institutions. Their's is a courage and faith even the churches will one day honor. And I'm proud of those who have held on to their spiritual beliefs though not their institutional ties. They have had the nerve to walk it alone.

I'm proud of those who are still willing to take to the streets to draw attention to injustice against gay people and of those who are willing to work the system for change. I am most proud when both approaches are affirmed by gay men and lesbians as being choices and not mandates for everyone.

I'm proud of our free press which began as mimeographed sheets with misspelled words and has matured into a sophisticated network of independent professional periodicals which inform us, challenge us and enable us to express our feelings. And I'm proud of our lesbian and gay authors and poets and photographers and painters and recording artists and of our gay and lesbian publishing houses and record companies and radio shows, all of whom give us the sights and sounds of gay and lesbian celebration every day of the year.

These are only some of the particulars which make me proud about the gay and lesbian presence in the world. There are many more. I encourage you to think about them during a quiet moment. I encourage nongay people to think about them too. Perhaps if they were to become aware of the treasures that we hold and offer generously, they would add their own confetti to next year's pageant. λ

HOUSTON LESBIAN/GAY PRIDE WEEK newsletter

vol 2, no 9      november, 1991

Community To Choose 1992 Logo, Slogan

In preparation for next year's Pride activities, the Pride Week Executive Committee has announced a contest to create the official logo to be used for Houston's Lesbian/Gay Pride Week 1992.

A slogan for Pride Week will be chosen at the November meeting, which will be held at the Montrose Palace on the 17th. Voting members will have the choice of adopting the national slogan, "Pride = Power", or selecting a different one. The national slogan was selected in Boston last month at the conference of the International Association of Lesbian/Gay Pride Coordinators, which was attended by Houston's Pride Week co-chairs.

A panel of judges will narrow the field of logo entries to semi-finalists, then Houston's gay and lesbian community will vote for their favorites at the December 17th general meeting. The winning artist will receive a $300 prize.

According to the Pride Week by-laws, a person must attend the August meeting or two consecutive later meetings to be eligible to vote on issues.

The logo contest is open to all who live in the greater Houston area. Logo artwork, including both a color and black-and-white representation, should be camera-ready and mounted on a board that is approximately 11 by 17 inches. The color and black-and-white versions allow judges to see how the logo would look on posters, T-shirts, and in print. Because of the varying uses of the logo, it should be one which "reads" well when reduced to small sizes.

Entries must be submitted to Printex Plus at 1617 West Alabama by 5 pm on Monday, December 9th. Artists may submit as many entries as they wish. All entries become the property of Houston Lesbian/Gay Pride Week 1992. For more information, call Jack at 529-1223. λ
