Off the Air

by Jack Valinski

I begin my professional career as a radio station engineer. Radio engineers train themselves to listen to the sound of their radio station even when they are doing other things. The worse thing is to hear silence. Most engineers can hear this silence over other things, it is automatic or inherent. Silence, and there is a mad dash to get the back on the air. This silence is because of some equipment failure. Any amount of silence gets everyone nervous, from the program director worrying about losing ratings; to the sales manager worrying about losing revenue; to the engineer worrying about losing his or her job.

Radio shows can go off the air because of another reason. It no longer fits the format. Since 1974 our community has had at least one radio program 1974. This will end on December 1, 1992 when KPFT will begin to reach a much larger audience beyond the converted few. Breakthrough and Wild 'n' Stein will no longer be part of the KPFT schedule.

After being part of Wilde 'n' Stein for the past 10 and half years it is somewhat difficult to separate the personal loss from the loss of an uncensored voice to our community via the air waves of KPFT. Only radio can get into the homes of the young and closeted people. The young cannot just hop in a car and drive to the Montrose and pick up a Voice or TWT.

I do confess that Wilde 'n' Stein is what helped me deal with my own coming out. It was the first time I volunteered for any community related organization. It is what taught me a lot about the community because the show was able to look at many aspects of the community. I hope that it has helped others in dealing with their sexuality lucky to be intrusted with the power of uncensored radio. Mike introduced me to Romanovsky and Philips.

When Mike became sick, it was Wilde 'n' Stein that gave him a reason to live. There was a time when Mike had a hard time at the control board because of his sickness. I did not want to intervene, but was trying to balance Mike's needs with the audience. Mike did come to the realization that he needed help and very gracefully asked for help in running the board. I learned a lot from Mike. He was such a loving person and cared most about the community before himself.

Mike left a request that his ashes be spread in the back yard. This was one of the most touching points in my life. One evening before the show Ray Hill, Clar Kern, myself and a few others has a very small ceremony and spread his ashes.

This seemed like the right thing to do. Here was a person who's whole purpose in life was to try to bring an understanding in the world. He is now forever connected to the Pacifica radio mission to bring a greater understanding to the world.

As AIDS changed our world we spent a lot of air time on the topic. Wilde 'n' Stein was the first mass media to discuss safer sex in an open frank and adult way. I don't know if we were able to save anybody life, but we tried.

Perhaps some of the best shows have been when we talked to the heroes of our community. Our heroes are the people who spend time in helping others in the community. We have had so many on the show.

Bill Scott, founder of the Montrose Counseling Center, has always been so good about talking about self-esteem. Bart Loser, from the AIDS Foundation Houston, has done many safer sex programs with us. Sharon Stone has talked many times about how we cope with life. Annise Parker has kept us informed

Very much like the community it reflects our radio show mirrors the community. The music of Breakthrough has changed as Women's music has matured. Wilde 'n' Stein changed as AIDS moved through the community. We have lost three very talented and dedicated men.

Art Tomesfesi was diagnosed with AIDS early on. At that time, I, as most of the community, did not understand the disease. Art was not living up to his share of the work. It was too late before I realized how the disease taxed Art. Shortly, we lost another friend, Doug Turner.

Probably the person that most exemplifies Wilde 'n' Stein was Mike Meish. It was probably the early 1980s when Mike returned to Houston to resume his radio duties. I was not sure of him, he was not sure of me. But through our mutual suspicion we saw that we were very Sharon Stone has talked many times about how we cope with life. Annise Parker has kept us informed with the many political events in the community.

Ray Hill is the person who reluctantly let me in the door at KPFT. He graded the access to the media very well. I had to prove myself before he eventually turned over one of his prize possessions. I hope I have lived up to his ideal. He has been such a friend and mentor in my life. Over the years, we have shared so much over the air waves. The depression we all felt over the defeat of the referendum in 1985, the loss of so many to AIDS, the good times of the Marches on Austin and DC, and the good times at Pride Week Parades and Rallies.

The good and bad times are not over. We have achieved many in the past few years. A new administration already seems to give us more access. The New York Times has more stories about out community than ever before and does positive op-ed pieces. The Houston Press has done positive cover stories on our community. Our own press is much more professional and there are more of them.

Still Wilde 'n' Stein and Breakthrough were our piece of the electronic media where we as a community had a uncensored presence. And for now, After Hours will still give us two hours at 1 AM Sunday morning. Also, the gay and lesbian programmers are going to be able to submit program modules in the new morning news program.

After a decade of being involved with community radio, I still have been happy to helped out. If I and Wilde 'n' Stein has helped one person to feel better about his or her self it had all been worth it. It is just sad that after 18 years to be off the air. λ

The 1992 Elections

By Jeffrey Schmalz
from The New York Times

After a bitter year in which homosexual issues figured in a Presidential election for the first time, men and women took to the streets Tuesday night in gay enclaves like San Francisco and West Hollywood weeping, dancing and hugging to celebrate the victory of Gov. Bill Clinton.

Gay and lesbian leaders described the election of Mr. Clinton, an advocate of homosexual rights, as a historic moment in the history of gay politics. As recently as a decade ago, strong advocacy of gay rights was considered political suicide for just about any candidate, let alone one for the Presidency.

"This is a rite of passage for the gay and lesbian movement," said Urvashi Vaid, the executive director of the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force. "For the first time in our history, we're going to be full and open partners in the Government."

VICTORY IN OREGON

In another victory for homosexual rights advocates, voters in Oregon rejected a ballot measure to denounce homosexuality as "abnormal" and "perverse," allow discrimination against gay men and women and require the state and local governments to take steps to discriminate against homosexuals.

sexuals. The measure—which overrides gay rights ordinances in Denver, Aspen and Boulder—won by a wide margin, 54 to 36.

EYES ON THE BIG BATTLE

But it was the Presidential race where all eyes were turned. For months, starting in the spring, Republicans had sounded the theme of "family values," which many homosexuals took as code for "anti-gay." Then, at the Republican National Convention in August, the anti-gay oratory hewed into the open as the party sought to firm up its support with the religious right. Speaker after speaker railed against gay rights, portraying Mr. Clinton as promoting the gay style of life.

Gay men and lesbians, whose political allegiances had been split between Democrats and Republicans, rallied to Mr. Clinton with voter registration drives and more than $2.5 million in contributions. In the end they also voted for him in large numbers, according to the first nation wide poll that asked people leaving voting places if they were homosexual or bisexual.

Murray Edelman, the director of Voter Research and Surveys, a consortium of the four television networks, which conducted the poll, said 2.4 percent of the voters described themselves as homosexual or bisexual. But Mr. Edelman said the figure was probably an undercount: many people are reluctant to disclose their homosexuality, and many do not fill out the poll questionnaire all the way to the end, where the question was.

Mr. Edelman estimated the gay vote at possibly 4 or 5 percent, which would make it the size of the Jewish vote.

Of those who identified themselves as homosexual or bisexual, 72 percent chose Mr. Clinton, with 14 percent voting for Mr. Bush and 14 for Ross Perot.

Homosexual groups yesterday called on Mr. Clinton to move quickly on his promises to end, by executive order, the ban on homosexuals in the military and to press

VICTORY IN OREGON

In another victory for homosexual rights advocates, voters in Oregon rejected a ballot measure to denounce homosexuality as "abnormal" and "perverse," allow discrimination against gay men and women and require the state and local governments to take steps to discourage homosexuality. The sometimes violent battle over the measure ended with a vote of 56 to 44 percent against.

In Portland, Me., voters also rejected, 5743, a measure to repeal a local gay-rights ordinance.

But Election Day also brought its share of defeats for gay advocates. In Tampa, Fl., the repeal of a gay rights ordinance passed 58 to 42. And in Colorado, voters passed a ban on local anti-discrimination laws that specifically protect homo-

MARTINA NAVRATILOVA said she was devastated by passage of an anti-gay law in her home state of Colorado and pledged to be part of a legal fight to get it overturned "The people fighting against it were fighting too nicely," said Navratilova, who lives in Aspen, Colo. "They didn't fight as dirty as the Colorado family values (group) did." The tennis star said it was ironic that she gets invited to speak at Colorado schools but as a lesbian would face possible discrimination if she wanted to be a teacher. λ

I was a member of the Bush Administration, and I am gay.

Until my resignation last month, I served as a legal adviser to the federal "drug czar," William Bennett, and his successor, Bob Martinez. I was a political appointee, having gotten my job in part because of my political credentials. I worked as a volunteer on George Bush's 1988 Presidential campaign. And I was active in Republican and conservative causes in high school, college and law school.

But like every other gay man and lesbian I know, and millions of gay men and lesbians, as well as millions of my fellow Republicans, I did not vote for George Bush but rather for Gov. Bill Clinton. I still respect President Bush and admire many of his achievements. The men and women in his Administration are by and large decent, honorable people. But the litany of the White House's attacks on lesbians and gay men was simply too long and too painful.

In early March, I listened to Charles Black of the Bush campaign tell a group of junior political appointees that the campaign planned to make gay rights a major dividing line between the two parties. I felt upset but remained silent. He was true to his word.

The Administration reaffirmed the cruel and wasteful exclusion of gays from the military. Vice President Dan Quayle insisted, repeatedly and against all scientific evidence, that homosexuality is a "life style choice"—and a wrong one at that. The President stated that same-sex couples make poor parents. His campaign staff demoted an openly gay member because religious fundamentalist groups objected to his presence. And the Republican Party spent a large portion of its convention denouncing lesbian and gay rights generally.

In its failed family-values offensive, the campaign took a kernel of a good idea—that the abdication of parental responsibility in the inner city has a moral and not just an economic dimension—and turned it into a slogan for intolerance and exclusion. Whatever else the family values rhetoric did, it mobilized gay people and their allies to an unprecedented frenzy of political activity on behalf of Mr. Clinton. Many of my gay friends, young people in their 20's who might otherwise be as apolitical as most of their straight contemporaries, registered to vote for the first time.

The Human Rights Campaign Fund, a national gay political-action organization, estimates that more than $3 million in gay political contributions were channeled to the Clinton campaign by various routes.

Bill Clinton has promised to repeal the ban on gays in the military; to issue an executive order ending discrimination based on sexual orientation in Federal employment and contracting; to support a gay and lesbian civil rights bill; to increase Federal financing for AIDS research, treatment and education, and to appoint an "AIDS czar" to oversee all Federal programs against the epidemic.

Mr. Clinton's sizable victory indicates that this election marks the arrival of the gay movement as a political force to be reckoned with.

What on earth possessed the Bush strategists to deliberately alienate so many voters? Didn't they read the newspapers? By many accounts, gays constitute 10 percent of the population; collectively, they have millions of relatives, friends and colleagues who know they are gay and are comfortable with that knowledge.

For my own part, I have learned that being silent about my sexual orientation merely invites the sort of persecution that the Bush hierarchy tried in the campaign. I plan to remain a Republican. But from now on, I will support only those candidates who acknowledge that America is enriched, not endangered, by the contributions of gay men and lesbians. λ for a gay and lesbian civil rights bill. They also urged him to more quickly in beginning a "Manhattan Project" to fight AIDS and naming a Federal chief to direct it, as he promised.

Mr. Clinton, in a speech Tuesday night after his victory, called on the country to mobilize in the war on AIDS.

David Miner, a Clinton friend and adviser who is homosexual, said that with the Governor's victory, "I believe thousands of my Friends who wouldn't make it, who would die of AIDS, might make it now because Bill Clinton is President."

The religious right conceded it had suffered setbacks in the voting Tuesday, but said that would only cause it to fight harder. "We now have another front-burner issue in addition to protecting the unborn," said the Rev. Lou Sheldon, chairman of the Traditional Values Coalition, which represents 25,000 churches nationwide. "This may be a blessing in disguise. We will fight harder. We will double in size." λ for gays—against discrimination in housing and employment—are somehow undeserved "special rights." But in doing so, they made clearer than ever why such protections are essential. λ

Commentary

Prejudice on Parade

The haters of homosexuals lost last week in Oregon and in Portland, Me., but they'll be back. Buoyed by the distressingly strong showing for antigay initiatives in those states, and the approval of anti-gay measures in Colorado and Tampa, Fl., conservative Christian groups are already planning their next round of gay-bashing proposals.

The response to this year's initiatives is a jolting reminder of the prejudice homosexuals still confront daily. Just as homosexuals were celebrating the election of a President who is more sympathetic to their concerns, they were confronted with an outpouring of bigotry at the grass roots.

In Tampa, voters approved a measure to repeal the city's gay rights ordinance by a wide margin, 58 to 42 percent. In Colorado, fairness suffered an even bigger setback. Departing from the Rocky Mountain state's live-and-let-live tradition, voters approved a ban on local anti-discrimination laws that protect homosexuals. The measure, which repeals gay rights ordinances in Denver, Boulder and Aspen, passed 54 to 36 percent.

Legal challenges to both these measures are planned. But even if they succeed, voters in the two states have sent a damaging message that can only encourage discrimination and anti-gay violence.

In Portland, Me., meanwhile, voters defeated a measure to repeal the city's new gay anti-discrimination ordinance. It's a welcome outcome, but the fact that 43 percent voted for repeal reflects a distressing level of ignorance and bigotry.

Oregonians defeated the most rabidly intolerant of this year's anti-gay initiatives, Measure 9. It would have amended the State Constitution to classify homosexuality as "abnormal" and "perverse," and barred government from doing anything that might be seen to promote it—from hiring openly gay teachers to allowing libraries to offer books that depict homosexuals in a favorable light.

The leader of Oregon's anti-gay forces, LO Macon, acknowledges a setback. But he notes that 44 percent of the state's voters supported the measure's harsh bigotry and says he will try again in 1994 with a more subtle, "Colorado-style" approach.

It's discouraging that religious extremists, marshaled by Pat Robertson's Christian Coalition and other fundamentalist groups, have persuaded so many mainstream voters that legal protections

Houston Gay/Lesbian Pride Week Volunteer Application

Every year this committee is responsible for the largest celebration of PRIDE in the Republic of Texas. This includes the annual parade, Pride Rally, coordinating the ten days of events before the parade, getting the word out to the media and producing the Pride Guide.

Our Committee is a hard working, dedicated and very cooperative group of volunteers, yet there is never enough of us. We ask you to consider helping us spread PRIDE both within our community and to the community at large.

The Houston Gay/Lesbian Pride Week Committee was founded in 1979 by a small group of Houston gay activists to coordinate a formal program and celebration each year for the gay and lesbian community of Houston.

HG/LPW, through its many cultural, athletic and educational events, seeks to "increase understanding of social, racial and sexual minorities, and to encourage acceptance and tolerance of alternative lifestyles so that, together, the citizens of the City of Houston and the State of Texas may work in the spirit of peaceful cooperation to build a better society."

Your involvement can be as little, or as much, as you would like. There is a great need for participation during the Pride Week, the Parade and the Rally. We also operate year-round producing fundraisers and to keep the PRIDE in our community. Volunteering is a good way to meet new people and to have an impact on the betterment of our community.

If you cannot offer your time a contribution would support us in continuing the PRIDE tradition and the publication of our monthly newsletter.
