DignityUSA, GLAAD Keep Watchful Eye on Bishop Conference

DALLAS – All eyes were focused on north Texas late this week as American Bishops assembled at the Fairmont Hotel in downtown Dallas to formalize a policy to address rampant sexual abuse by Catholic Priests and the inaction of the Catholic hierarchy.

The bishops arrived throughout Wednesday, the same day the Dallas Morning News reported “roughly two-thirds of the top U.S. Catholic leaders have allowed priests accused of sexual abuse to keep working, a practice that spans decades and continues today.”

“The bishops conference represents an historic opportunity for the American public to see a more complete picture of our lives” GLAAD media director Cathy Renna said. “This is not, nor has it ever been, a matter of ‘gays vs. religion.’ We have always been part of the church, both in the pulpit and in the pews. Rather, it’s about a small group of people who hide behind religion while they denigrate and stigmatize gays and lesbians.”

President of DignityUSA, Mary Louise Cervone, had harsh words for the Bishops gathering Wednesday. “It is time for every bishop and cardinal, who knowingly harbored a child abuser, to resign,” she said in a nationwide press release. “These very Bishops are the guardians of Catholic moral authority. Yet, for decades, they are the ones who have been morally bankrupt.”

If the 111 of 178 Catholic leaders that covered up sexual abuse were to resign, the Church would have unprecedented vacancies in the priesthood. “That’s right, reform aint easy,” Cervone said. “And if that’s what it takes - if there are 111- they all need to step down.”

Cervone said DignityUSA came to Dallas to put the Bishops on notice. “They must put the victims first, they must put Catholicism first, and they must put self-preservation last,” she told the Triangle. “They cannot scapegoat gay priests, they cannot demonize gay Catholics. They fabricated the link between homosexuality and pedophilia. That link doesn’t exist, yet our church leaders have created this link and they’ve used it as a shield to protect themselves from their own culpability in this scandal.”

The oldest and only GLBT Catholic organization, DignityUSA has been advocating for equality in the Catholic Church for 33 years.

“I was devastated to read that over 60% of the bishops that are here to adopt the guidelines to protect our children are they themselves guilty of protecting the criminals,” Cervone said of Wednesday’s News article. “Yesterday, I felt hopeful that they could do the right the preservation of the gospel message of Jesus?” she asked.

GLAAD’s Renna will post continual updates from Dallas to the organization’s website to keep the GLBT community and media outlets informed on community-specific developments.

“I think the bishops are going to be in for a surprise when they walk into the press room at the Fairmont. They’re going to be talking to reporters from across the country (and around the world) who’ve come to Dallas with the stories of abuse victims who live in their cities, sometimes in their own neighborhoods or in their own parishes,” Renna said in her first posting. “There are going to be 750 reporters and outlets - and millions of watchful eyes across the nation - looking for church leaders to take accountability for the abuse and convince us that it won’t happen again,” she said. “The church will be courting disaster if it tries to scapegoat one vulnerable minority to cover up its role in the abuse of another.”

GLAAD and DignityUSA said they were pleased overall with the mainstream media’s coverage of the scapegoating attempts and noted that although right wing action groups are continually issuing press releases that report links between homosexuality and pedophilia, most outlets have refused to take the bait.

Expecting big-name protestors on site like Westboro Baptist Church’s Fred Phelps and supporters of the Family Research Council, GLBT groups asked community members to join a Thursday night 12-hour prayer vigil surrounding the Fairmont Hotel. A Liturgy of Solidarity and Support is also scheduled tonight at Dallas’ Cathedral of Hope at 7 p.m.

“We are inviting Catholics, non-Catholics, both gay and straight, to come to share with us the gift of who we are as gay Catholics,” Cervone said.

As the Triangle went to press Wednesday, the three-day Catholic Bishop’s Conference had just begun. Pick up next week’s issue for complete, comprehensive coverage.

The bishops arrived throughout Wednesday, the same day the Dallas Morning News reported “roughly two-thirds of the top U.S. Catholic leaders have allowed priests accused of sexual abuse to keep working, a practice that spans decades and continues today.”

In addition to attracting over 750 media outlets, the conference has garnered the attention of several GLBT watchdog and activists groups, poised on-site to ensure that the policies and statements emerging from the conference do not attempt to blame the crisis on homosexuals.

In recent months, a wide range of Catholic officials – including Cardinals Theodore McCarrick, Anthony Bevilacqua and Adam Maida; Bishop Wilton Gregory, Monsignor Eugene Clark; and Vatican spokesperson Joaquin Navarro-Valls – have attempted to scapegoat gay priests for the scandal, claiming that the problem is not one of child sexual abuse, but rather one of homosexuality and gay priests.

Spokespersons for the national Bishop’s conference have since characterized such remarks as “unfortunate and not based in fact,” but GLBT groups say some Catholic leaders in the United States have used such statements as permission to continue to raise the homophobic fear still present in today’s society.

In response, DignityUSA, the nation’s only GLBT Catholic organization, as well as the Gay and Lesbian Alliance Against Defamation (GLAAD), New Ways Ministries, and other progressive Catholic and allied organizations, have joined forces in Dallas to promote visibility of GLBT Catholic voices in media coverage.

“I was devastated to read that over 60% of the bishops that are here to adopt the guidelines to protect our children are they themselves guilty of protecting the criminals,” Cervone said of Wednesday’s News article. “Yesterday, I felt hopeful that they could do the right thing – it would be difficult, challenging – but they could do the right thing. Today I am not as hopeful. The pedophile priests are the foxes watching the henhouse and now we have the farmers watching the foxes. They’ve lost all credibility with Catholics. How can they adopt guidelines and ensure that those guidelines will be implemented?”

Cervone said that through the Bishop’s actions, they have allowed the children of the Church to be physically and emotionally abused with wounds so deep, they may never heal.

“Through their words, the Bishops scapegoated gay priests, further demonizing gay Catholics. How dare they place self-preservation before posting. “There are going to be 750 reporters and outlets - and millions of watchful eyes across the nation - looking for church leaders to take accountability for the abuse and convince us that it won’t happen again,” she said. “The church will be courting disaster if it tries to scapegoat one vulnerable minority to cover up its role in the abuse of another.”

As the Triangle went to press Wednesday, the three-day Catholic Bishop’s Conference had just begun. Pick up next week’s issue for complete, comprehensive coverage.

Michael Brennan, an out of town activist, set up a small protest Wednesday. “There will be more of us later this week,” he said.

Katy ISD issues a Second 'First'

Yearbook Reprint Attributed to Errors, not Gay Content

By Jone Devlin

KATY — What is the real reason that Katy Independent School District officials have opted for a reprint of the 2002 Cinco Ranch yearbook? Some say it is because the first edition of the yearbook included a controversial student essay on the topic of being gay. Others say it is because the yearbook was fraught with errors, including entire teams and after school groups being left out of the publication.

The Triangle spoke to several KISD students and parents, all of whom requested anonymity. According to these individuals, the "gay essay" caused a select group of parents to complain to school officials, who then responded by having the yearbook reprinted minus the essay in question. All of the individuals interviewed, however, were also quick to point out that this story was merely a "rumor we heard, kind of a 'he said, she said' thing that was passed along among the kids in the school. As far as we know, no real reason was ever given as to why the yearbook was being reprinted."

According to KISD's Director of Communications, Kris Taylor, the rumors are just that: rumors. "The upshot of the whole deal was that when the annual came out, there was a tremendous amount of literary content to it, a lot of long, personal essays. The annual consisted of two page spreads and on a lot of the two page spreads, two thirds of one page would be an essay - a work that was very much personal expression, geared more toward a literary manual than a yearbook."

The Cinco Ranch Yearbook is titled First since this year's class is the first to graduate from Cinco Ranch High. Taylor stated that there was no prior reviews of First, other than by a yearbook sponsor who "thought that it was wonderful that the annual was picture-light and text-heavy." But, said Taylor, when the principal and others looked at it they felt that for a yearbook that is "chartered to provide a broad brush overview of the school year" the current annual wasn't adequate.

Taylor admitted that there were concerns raised about some of the essays, but noted that a piece about a seance and another about how to "lie creatively" caused far more reaction and raised eyebrows among the administration than the essay written about being gay. The Director also made it clear that many complaints about the yearbook came from the student body itself. "The students felt that there were a lot of things that, blended all together, were really out of sync with the year's experience for the student body as a whole," Taylor said. Another problem with the annual was that quite a bit of content was downloaded from the internet. "A lot of kids [wondered] 'Why am I paying $56 for a book that includes pages downloaded from the web that I could go online and read for free?'" said Taylor.

The annual was returned to the printer, who ended up "revising all but 20 of the book's 296 pages." Taylor added that some of the problems corrected included "color corrections, because the school's colors, which are maroon, came out looking burnt orange in the annual. There were also no pictures of Cinco's award winning marching band in action, there was no picture of our undefeated freshman girls basketball team, and these were omissions we felt had to be corrected."

Taylor made it clear that the first edition of the annual has been distributed already and will not be pulled. "The second edition will be distributed at the beginning of school next year, and graduating seniors will have theirs mailed to them," she said. "Every student who bought an annual has the first edition, which contains the literary content. Those aren't being gathered up and no one has to turn the first edition in to get a second edition.

"The students can put the second edition on the bookshelf side by side with the first edition," Taylor concluded.

Queer Voices' JD Doyle Honored by National Music Organization

By Jone Devlin

HOUSTON — On Monday, June 10, a network of gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgendered musicians and supporters, announced its "Members Choice" award winners for 2002. Among them was Houston's own JD Doyle, creator and producer of "Queer Music Heritage" (QMH), an hour long monthly program aired on KPFT Houston's Queer Voices radio show. Doyle is also the producer of the "Audiophile" segment on the nationally syndicated GLBT radio program This Way Out.

"I love queer music, old and new, I love sharing it and preserving it, and getting the word out about it," said Doyle. "So to be recognized for doing something I love is very gratifying."

Performers, composers, lyricists, producers, recording artists, activists, promoters, press/media and even non-musicians who support GLBT music have joined Outmusic over the years.

Doyle was awarded the "Outstanding Support" prize for QMH, going up against such GLBT music notables as Robert Drake, host of Q'zine, and Daniel Jenkins, founder of Out Voice.

Said Queer Voices Producer Jack Valinski: "We wanted to add some GLBT music to Queer Voices, and JD has taken that mandate and made the segment a hallmark and showcase of music history in our community. JD deserves the award. We are honored to have him as part of our program."

For more information on the Outmusic awards go to www.outmusic.com. For more information on JD Doyle and his "Queer Music Heritage" program, go to www.queervoices.org.

Bat Boys Score in Gay Softball Tournament

By Bruce Vasbinder

HOUSTON — The Austin Bat Boys, one of the city's two gay softball teams, battled the heat and top-notch competition from teams across the country during the annual Lone Star Classic Softball Tournament held in Houston during Memorial Day weekend. The Bat Boys captured second place in the "C" Division, losing the championship game by one run.

The first three games of the tournament were a round robin format to determine a team's seeding in the championship rounds. The team began the tournament with a one-sided victory as they "run-ruled" the Dallas Travelers. The run rule is in effect when one team is ahead by more than 15 runs after five innings. The Bat Boys also defeated the Comets of Houston during the first round. The team finished the opening round with a 2-1 record with its lone loss was to the Meteors of Houston.

Tied with several other teams after the opening round of games, the Bat Boys were seeded third entering the double elimination rounds. In their fourth game of the day, the Bat Boys faced Chaos of Houston. The teams battled to an eight-all tie at the end of the regulation seven innings. In the top of the ninth inning, Chaos erupted for nine runs and beat the Bat Boys 18-9. Now in the losers' bracket, every game meant possible elimination when the team returned to play on Sunday.

A familiar opponent, the Dallas Travelers, awaited the Bat Boys Sunday morning. The Austin team prevailed in a close rematch, 8-6. Little did the Bat Boys know, the game would be the start of a marathon afternoon of softball. The team put together a string of five back-to-back wins to earn a spot in the championship game. Along the way, the Bat Boys eliminated teams from Portland, Oregon (the Titans), Houston (the Comets), Chicago (North End) and Dallas (The Assassins). The sixth game of the afternoon for the Bat Boys was the championship game against Xpress of Phoenix, AZ. The Bat Boys prevailed in their last at-bat and defeated Xpress 18-17. Since both teams had one loss at that point, an "if" game was needed to determine the tournament champion. After another full seven innings of softball and their seventh consecutive game that afternoon, the Bat Boys came up one run short 14-13.

Ted Burton, coach of the Austin Bat Boys, was pleased with the team's performance in the tournament. "It was a hard-fought tournament and we really have a lot to be proud of, he said. "Not only did we play some really good teams from across Texas and the country, we had to play seven games in a row without a break in 90-plus degree heat. I think we represented Austin very well and earned a little respect from the gay softball community along the way."

The Bat Boys have now set their sights on the Emerald City Classic Softball Tournament in Seattle, WA during Labor Day weekend. Always the bridesmaid, the team finished second in Seattle last year.

Gay Softball North America

A gay softball league in time has come. Well, at least the question. Currently two teams of gay players compete in the leagues. Rumor has it a third cities like Houston and Dallas leagues established — The Houston has 18 teams; the Association (celebrating its 10th year) has 13 teams.

Gay softball leagues in the United States and Canada are governed by the North American Gay Amateur Athletic Alliance (N.A.G.A.A.A.). Founded in 1977, N.A.G.A.A.A. is a non-profit promoting amateur athletic was formed to encourage players in organized softball currently 50 gay softball leagues in America.

Since both teams had one loss at that point, an "if" game was needed to determine the tournament champion. After another full seven innings of softball and their seventh consecutive game that afternoon, the Bat Boys came up one run short 14-13.

Ted Burton, coach of the Austin Bat Boys, was pleased with the team's performance in the tournament. "It was a hard-fought tournament and we really have a lot to be proud of, he said. "Not only did we play some really good teams from across Texas and the country, we had to play seven games in a row without a break in 90-plus degree heat. I think we represented Austin very well and earned a little respect from the gay softball community along the way."

The Bat Boys have now set their sights on the Emerald City Classic Softball Tournament in Seattle, WA during Labor Day weekend. Always the bridesmaid, the team finished second in Seattle last year.

Bat Boys coach, Ted Burton, bats against the Dallas Assassins during in the semi-finals.

Gay Softball Swings a Big Stick Across North America

A gay softball league in Austin? A novel idea who's time has come. Well, at least it's not that far out of the question. Currently two teams consisting of primarily gay players compete in the City of Austin recreation leagues. Rumor has it a third team is in the works. Larger cities like Houston and Dallas already have gay softball leagues established - The Montrose Softball League in Houston has 18 teams; the Pegasus Slowpitch Softball Association (celebrating its twentieth anniversary this year) has 13 teams.

Gay softball leagues in the United States and Canada are governed by the North American Gay Amateur Athletic Alliance (N.A.G.A.A.A.). Founded in 1977,

N.A.G.A.A.A. is a non-profit organization dedicated to promoting amateur athletics for the gay community. It was formed to encourage participation of gays and lesbians in organized softball competition. There are currently 50 gay softball leagues in about 30 cities in North America.

League play is divided between open and women's divisions. The open division is comprised of teams of men and women or exclusively men competing in either A, B, C, or D classes based on competitive level of play. The women's division features women-only teams competing in either a competitive or alternative bracket. Teams may also carry a maximum of two non-gay players on their rosters.

Competing players are given a player rating which helps determine which class (A,B,C, or D) teams compete in. Player ratings are determined based on a players' ability to field, catch, throw and hit a softball as well as base running abilities. Points are awarded in each category based on whether the player displays these abilities occasionally (without regularity - for example, two out of five times) or consistently (with regularity - for example, four out of five times). The top 10 players' scores are added together to determine the overall team rating.

Not only does competing on a gay softball team offer athletic competition and team bonding experiences but it is also a great way to travel. Pridefest Hits Alamo City this Weekend

By Boun Homratsamy

SAN ANTONIO — This Saturday, the Alamo City will embark upon a much-anticipated annual extravaganza: Pridefest 2002. This year's festivities, themed "Be Yourself, Change the World," is looking to draw more than 10,000 onlookers filling Main street with hopes of catching a glimpse of colorfully decorated floats - and people - as they sashay down a rainbow-colored road.

The theme, taken from L.A.'s gay pride festivities of last year, signifies gay pride and unity. With a small gay community, group solidarity within San Antonio's gay population is one of the most important issues to the Pridefest committee. "This time of year is one of the only times the gay and lesbian community come together to celebrate gay pride. San Antonio is not a city like Los Angeles or New York City where the gay community is large and centralized," says Martin Herrera, Pridefest co-chair.

Indeed, Pridefest is a community affair. With over 40 businesses participating in the parade this year, much support for the gay and lesbian community extends across renowned businesses such as JP Morgan Chase, Halo Distributing and Fleet Communications.

The Pridefest committee promises bigger and better things this year. Last year was the first year the Pridefest committee decided to have the parade at night. In previous years, the parade took place mid-day, drawing out only a few hundred people, at most. As parade goes sat alongside Main Street, burning up in the sweltering Texas summer heat, the Pridefest committee decided to extend the picnic and have the parade later in the evening, hoping that this strategy would bring out more patrons. And it did.

"This year's celebration will be different from years before in that the parade this year will be in the evening. Last year, we had over 8,000 people in attendance compared to the year before when only 200 people came out to the parade. People don't want to deal with the blazing heat that comes along with Texas summers," says Herrera.

With rising temperatures, voyeurs won't be the only things sizzling in the summer heat this year. This year's entertainment features a performance by San Antonio native and Latin music sensation, Jade Estrada, who will also be the honorary Grand Marshall for the parade. Estrada, an openly gay pop star, will be the first big-name performer to ever grace Pridefest. Currently on tour, Estrada has taken time off to make an appearance at Pridefest. Estrada has been honored this year by the Human Rights Campaign for his work and is one of the stars endorsing the "Being Out Rocks" event for National Coming Out Day on October 11, 2002. In the past, many smaller, local acts took center street. San Antonio's locals say it will be a treat for Estrada to return to his hometown to perform at this year's parade.

LGRL: S Assume

By Matt Lum

AUSTIN — The Lesbian Rights Lobby of Texas (LGRL) Wednesday that Francisco Sanchez last month to lead the lobby director, will not assume the board of directors has once again search to fill the vacancy, just from Texas' next legislative session.

"I can't go into specifics, that it was not me that backed agreement," Sanchez told the press. "Any indication that would suggest Sanchez back out would be disingenuous at best."

The formal announcement came in the form of a press release issued Wednesday morning. "Mr. Sanchez will not be assuming the executive director of the Rights Lobby of Texas. The Directors of LGRL continues to search for an executive director," it said in part.

"Unfortunately, I cannot say more," LGRL board co-chairman Atkinson said. "We are only able to say what we have said. Sanchez will not be the new ED. The board has opened up again, but Francisco Sanchez is not our new ED as we had thought."

LGRL announced Sanchez's departure about a week before Austin's Pride Festival held the first week of June. Sanchez, the community was told, would be at the festival as well as LGRL's legislative brunch for a formal introduction. Sanchez was not introduced there, to the surprise of many.

"The announcement was made at the time we made the announcement. It was the situation," Atkinson said.

AIDS Services of Austin Goes Vegas

AUSTIN — AIDS Services of Austin, the largest HIV service provider in central Texas, has announced the ninth annual VIVA Las Vegas celebration is set for Saturday, June 29, 8 p.m. at the Austin Music Hall. This year's VIVA features cuisine, live music and Vegas-style gambling.

The beneficiary for the event is Capitol Area AIDS Legal Project, CAALP, a non-profit, volunteer-based provider of HIV-related pro bono legal services. CAALP provides direct representation, advocacy, community education and outreach, and related legal efforts.

"The HIV/AIDS epidemic is far from over," said Liz Cohen, director of CAALP, "and the legal needs of low-income people living with HIV/AIDS are growing."

The event features the new Sin City Lounge, described by organizers as "an exclusive, upstairs Vegas lair offering private seating, a fabulous lineup of music and entertainment by The Roustabouts and Mama's Boys, and the chance to rest between strolls through the silent and live auctions."

Tickets: $20-$25. Info: www.asaustin.org or 512-406-6175.

OZ Pool Party Travels to Wimberly

AUSTIN — Beat the heat this summer and enjoy a day of fun in the country while savoring Casa Peregrino's breath-taking view of the hill country, beautiful gardens and grounds and cool, enticing pool. The OZ Parties has announced it will hold its second annual Pool Party at Casa Peregrino Bed and Breakfast in Wimberly on Sunday, June 23, 12 noon 'til 5 p.m.

Organizers said a caravan/carpool will meet at the downtown Post Office at 6th Street and Guadalupe at 10:30 a.m. for anyone who needs a ride. This event provides the opportunity for all HIV positive gay, straight, bisexual and transgendered individuals to meet for fellowship and making new friends, they added.

The OZ Parties is a volunteer effort from people with HIV and receives no direct financial support from any individual or community-based organization, and is part of the Volunteer Program of AIDS Services of Austin.

Library Displays '70s Gay Activist Photographs, Memorabilia

HOUSTON — In conjunction with its 2002 Gay Pride Month activities, the Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Heritage Committee of the Houston Public Library had announced its historical exhibit on materials from entertainer and activist Anita Bryant's 1977 Gays Rights referendum, entitled Milestone in Miami, June 1977.

The exhibit focuses on the 25th anniversary of the controversial election in which Anita Bryant led a group called Save Our Children in an effort to repeal a local ordinance banning discrimination based on sexual orientation.

The exhibit includes several cases displaying materials from both the Save Our Children campaign in Dade County, Florida and the historic response made by gay rights supporters in Houston on June 16, 1977. Included are posters, full-page newspaper ads, colorful leaflets, and other material chronicling the groups' campaign in Florida, plus archival photographs - some never published - of a demonstration by 4,000 gay rights supporters in Houston, when Anita Bryant arrived to sing at the Texas State Bar Association convention. One striking photo shows a phalanx of helmeted, club-wielding policemen on the Houston Public Library plaza.

The display is located on the third floor of the Central Library, 500 McKinney and runs through June.

Pride Fun Run Raises $1,200 for AssistHers

HOUSTON — Organizers of the 2002 Houston Gay and Lesbian Pride 5K Fun Run/Walk reported that 176 entrants in this year's event helped raise $1,200 for the race's beneficiary, AssistHers.

Mac Crone, HMAA president and race director presented a check to AssistHers during a thank-you party hosted by Chipotle restaurant for volunteers who helped with the race. The presentation will be made at 7 p.m. at Chipotle, 5600 Kirby,

AssistHers, a volunteer organization that provides in-home support and care to lesbian women with chronic or disabling illnesses, has been the beneficiary of three of the five pride fun runs organized by HMAA.

Carlo Deason and Caroline Burum were the overall male and female winners of this year's 3.1-mile race along Memorial Drive, with times of 16:38.1 and 19:08.1, respectively. Richard Peoples (17:55.4) and Vicki Danielson (20:44.3) won the masters male and female division. Each received a trophy.

Medals were awarded to the top five males and females in age groups 30-34, 35-39, and 40-44, and to the top three males and females in all other age groups.

Winners who were unable to pick up their medals at the presentation ceremony are asked to contact Carlo Deason at 713-874-1686 or silentrunner@rocketmail.com.

AssistHers, a volunteer organization that provides in-home support and care to lesbian women with chronic or disabling illnesses, has been the beneficiary of three of the five pride fun runs organized by HMAA.

Carlo Deason and Caroline Burum were the overall male and female winners of this year's 3.1-mile race along Memorial Drive, with times of 16:38.1 and 19:08.1, respectively. Richard Peoples (17:55.4) and Vicki Danielson (20:44.3) won the masters male and female division. Each received a trophy.

Medals were awarded to the top five males and females in age groups 30-34, 35-39, and 40-44, and to the top three males and females in all other age groups.

Winners who were unable to pick up their medals at the presentation ceremony are asked to contact Carlo Deason at 713-874-1686 or silentrunner@rocketmail.com.

Billiard Players Shoot for PWA Coalition

HOUSTON — The People With AIDS Coalition of Houston's ability to keep up with the ever-growing HIV/AIDS epidemic and the rising costs of health care remains a constant challenge. One might even say the situation has them constantly "behind the eight-ball."

However, thanks to generous donors, they continue providing services to those in need and continue to increase the quality and continuum of care. They need and depend on continued support to ensure that Houston area persons living with HIV/AIDS are able to access services regardless of their ability to pay.

Offering that support The Independent Billiard League of Houston, Inc. is pleased to announce the sixth annual Houston Billiard Open will be on Saturday, June 22, at Slick Willies Family Pool Hall, 1200 Westheimer.

This one-day amateur tournament is open to anyone, organizers said, and the tournament will observe Billiard Congress of America (BCA) rules. The tournament is double elimination with a race to two. Trophies will be presented the top three places along with free dinners and flowers. The winner will receive a framed mounted poster with all players signatures and a $100 gift certificate from International Billiards.

Sponsored by Spaghetti Warehouse and Budweiser, this annual tournament is held each year to raise much needed funds for a deserving local 501(c)3 charitable organization, organizers said.

Registration for this charitable event will be at 10 a.m., with the tournament starting at 11 a.m. Tickets: $15-$20.

Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Launches Billboard Campaign

HOUSTON — Just in time for Pride Month, Montrose Counseling Center (MCC) is having five billboards promoting Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Houston put up to raise awareness of the hotline and its services. The billboards were installed in the early hours Monday morning, June 10.

The five billboards, which were donated by Clear Channel Outdoor, are located inside the 610 Loop, in key locations where it's hoped they will reach the most people.

The billboards are located at Buffalo Speedway at Alabama; Dallas Ave. at Crosby; West Gray at Cushing; Montrose Blvd. at Clay; and on Waugh at Clay.

Community Briefs

"We want to focus attention on the services the switchboard provides as we honor its 20th anniversary," said MCC Executive Director, Ann J. Robison, PhD, MPA. "We are excited that Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Houston was selected as Grand Marshal of this year's Pride Parade." Along with the billboards, Montrose Counseling Center will be promoting GLSH by handing out magnets at the Pride Parade with the switchboard's phone number on it (713-529-3211).

Robison believes that the Grand Marshal recognition was earned by the scores of volunteers who committed so much of their time and energy in the last two decades to help others in the community by lending a friendly ear. "There's no telling how many lives were saved because someone cared enough to volunteer." GLSH volunteers are eager to answer the call with no hang-ups, she added.

Saving lives is one of the main objectives of Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Houston, which provides information, nonjudgmental support, crisis intervention and referral services for Houston's gay, lesbian, bisexual and transgender population. GLSH exists solely for this community, unlike other crisis hotlines or intervention services in Houston, and volunteers are trained to handle issues specific to the GLBT community.

As part of Montrose Counseling Center's Anti-Violence Program, the switchboard is a conduit for people in crisis to get immediate help if they are sexually assaulted or the victim of a hate crime or same-sex domestic partner abuse. Volunteers can reach advocates 24-hours a day who may accompany a survivor to the hospital for treatment

Volunteers can reach advocates 24-hours a day who may accompany a survivor to the hospital for treatment or to the police to file a report. MCC has contracted with area hotels to provide a shelter system whereby those in immediate danger can be safe while their other emotional, physical and mental health needs are being addressed.

Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Houston always is in need of more volunteers, but for the time being, the focus is on making sure the community knows someone is available to listen to callers concerned with everything from HIV/AIDS and other sexually transmitted diseases, to coming out, relationship issues and suicide prevention, as well as crisis intervention and referrals.

Pride - Unstated, But Not Forgotten

By Katrina C. Rose

1981.

Trust me on this - you don't want to know what I was doing 21 years ago this month (although you might have gathered from the extraneous, definitely-non-gay fact-oids from my last piece, far too much of my spare time was spent sports spectating.)

In 1981 I had long-since figured out that the big, bad T word applied to me, but I had no idea when - or if - I'd ever be able to do anything about it.

I had heard of Christine Jorgensen, but being of the then-teen-ilk, other T names meant more to me at the time - names I'd seen on TV and in the newspapers (Renee Richards and Canary Conn as well as the brave women, some anonymous and some not, who were persecuted by enforcement of the Houston anti-crossdressing ordinance and who successfully fought to get it declared unconstitutional in part and, eventually, got it repealed in its entirety.)

One article in one newspaper that I'm ashamed to say that I missed at the time appeared in the Entertainment section of June 6 edition of the late, lamented Houston Post.

'Ladies and gentlemen . . . meet Christine'

During the second week of June, 1981, Christine Jorgensen was appearing at Rosco's Café and Jazzbar on Chimney Rock, back in show business mode after 14 years away from the stage. At the beginning of that period, she published her autobiography. The Post article mentioned that she was working on a second book.

Unfortunately for transgender scholarship, that second book never materialized.

But, speaking of that particular T-word, a word which was not then widely in use, Jorgensen said, "The term transgender will be used more often in the future. This has nothing to do with your sleeping partner. I have known people who have gone from male to female knowing that they were going to be lesbians. Gender has to do with who you are. Sex has to do with who you sleep with. We're going to find a lot of this is genetic. It's all there originally, so choose your ancestors carefully."

Despite the time of year of the article, there wasn't any mention of what we know as Pride, though her words evidence pride (uncapitalized), albeit of things and happenings that were thrust upon her.

In 1981, she was 55, having lived by then more of her life as her real self than as George Jorgensen. (For those who like my use of illustrative ratios, the Christine to George year ratio was 29 to 26; and, given the subject of my last piece, the ratio of occurrences of T-words to GLB-words in the Houston Post article was 4 to 1, rather reasonable considering the article was about a specific individual transsexual.) And of the publicity - OK, let's be honest and call it what it was, an outing - surrounding her return to America from Denmark following her transition, she said, "I was not at all happy about the publicity at the time," but added that "now I can laugh about it. I've had a marvelous time. I've done almost everything I wanted to do."

And part of her stage act she included a question-and-answer session - at which there was certainly some entertaining but also some, gasp, educating.

Education on transgender issues. You do know of that concept, don't you? (Yes, I know

Honor Marsha

By Bob Bouton

HOUSTON — The 20th anniversary parade will be held 6-9 p.m. on Monday, June 24, at the Bottom, 2400 Brazos. I hope the individuals chosen by the parade committee for this year's Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Parade.

Among the many high honors, Grand Marshal of the 1998 Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Parade was the Grand Marshal, Royal, Sovereign and Imperial Court. Of course, it helped that I was named Grand Marshal at the time. In fact, many Grand Marshals have come from the Houston area. As it has done for many years, the Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Court will host this year's parade on June 24.

Being named Grand Marshal is a great honor. Years of service to my community. Little did I know at the time of the many fun obligations and responsibilities. I went to great parties, heard the theater and, to top it all off, I did it myself. At the time, I thought I was doing so much for so many. It's not yet allowed me to retire.

And part of her stage act she included a question-and-answer session - at which there was certainly some entertaining but also some, gasp, educating.

Education on transgender issues. You do know of that concept, don't you? (Yes, I know some of you really don't despite persistently claiming to, but I had to ask nevertheless.)

Roughly eight years later, after I spent a lot of time educating myself on things that I used to divert my attention from who I knew I really wanted to be - and while I was recovering from surgery (not SRS, unfortunately) and working at an office not far from that Chimney Rock club at which she was appearing, I learned of Christine Jorgensen's death.

It would be years later still that, as part of my ongoing legal and historical research, that I would read that completed 1967 autobiography of hers as well as the numerous newspaper and magazine articles about her from the 1950s - some of which, as you might expect, were salacious and insulting while others were far more respectful of her and other then-well-known transsexuals such as Roberta Cowell (who, I've recently learned from an eminently respectable source, is alive and well, though not at all desirous of again being on the receiving end of T-related spotlight), than mainstream news articles at the time were of homosexuals.

What happened in the five decades since?

That's your subject. Now talk amongst yourselves about it - better yet, ask the folks who will be toting equal signs about it - at Pride before you decorate the Westheimer curve with recycled beer.

You'll respect yourself in the morning (although, granted, you might not remember why) and you'll be honoring the memory of those without whom there would be no Pride.

HOUSTON — The 2002 Grand Marshal Reception will be held 6-9 p.m. on Monday, June 24, at Brazos River Bottom, 2400 Brazos. I hope you will join me in honoring the individuals chosen by our community to lead this year's Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual & Transgender Pride Parade.

Among the many highlights of my year as the Male Grand Marshal of the 1998 Houston Lesbian & Gay Pride Parade was the Grand Marshal Reception hosted by the Royal, Sovereign and Imperial Court of the Single Star. Of course, it helped that I was a member of that organization at the time. In fact, many past male and female Grand Marshals have come from the Court and the Court itself was named Honorary Grand Marshal - Organization in 1996. As it has done for many years, Houston's Royal Court will host this year's Grand Marshal Reception on June 24.

Being named Grand Marshal was the pinnacle of years of service to my community and an honor beyond words. Little did I know at the time that there would be so many fun obligations and festive events to attend as well - I went to great parties, heard rousing speeches, attended the theater and, to top it all, presided over the Parade itself. At the time, I thought it was a wonderful end to doing so much for so many. Of course, my community has not yet allowed me to retire graciously.

Now I am in the proud position of being the person who nominated this year's Male Grand Marshal, Rusty Mueller. For Rusty, as it was for me, being named Grand Marshal should be the pinnacle of his many, many years of service to our community and his tireless efforts to raise needed funds for those less fortunate and should be one of the most fun tasks he will ever undertake. But we won't be letting him retire after this either.

Please join me at Brazos River Bottom on Monday, June 24, in honoring my friend Rusty and all of the other 2002 Pride Parade Grand Marshals: Female Grand Marshal Mela Contreras, Honorary Grand Marshals Jane and Irv Smith and Honorary Grand Marshal - Organization Gay & Lesbian Switchboard Houston.

The history of the Pride Grand Marshals is the history of our community's heroes. All of these individuals together have done an amazing amount of work for our community, have led the way for us and have shown us the potential we have as a people. In addition to introducing this year's Grand Marshals at the reception, we on the Court are also contacting as many past Grand Marshals as we can and we will introduce them as well. This year we

In this year's Pride line-up, June 24 is Community Awareness Day, devoted to talking about the issues affecting our community and the reasons we are proud. I can't think of a better way to become aware of the greatness of our community than by meeting all of our Grand Marshals, past and present.

Pride Worldwide

Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual & Transgender Pride 2002 Events

Compiled by Troy Christensen

Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual & Transgender Pride 2002 comprises nine days of social, cultural, educational and charitable events sponsored by the Pride Committee of Houston and other GLBT community organizations.

While Houston Pride celebrations of the past several years have lasted a month or more, this year's festivities are much more manageable and focused in what we on the Pride Committee hope will be a more meaningful series of events for Houston's GLBT community.

Another change the Pride Committee has made to produce a more meaningful celebration is in the scheduling of events. Between the Pride Kick-off Party on Friday, June 21, and the world-famous nighttime Pride Parade on Saturday, June 29, is a week of community-sponsored events. Each day has a different focus to emphasize the wide diversity of our community. We hope these themes inspire you to seek understanding of the issues facing our community and the reasons we celebrate our Pride, both through the events on these days and on your own. Saturday, June 22, is Health & Recreation Day; Sunday, June 23, Family & Youth Day; Monday, June 24, Community Awareness Day; Tuesday, June 25, Commemoration Day; Wednesday, June 26, Spirituality Day; Thursday, June 27, Pride Worldwide Day; and Friday, June 28, Arts Appreciation Day.

Arts Appreciation Day begins the exciting Parade weekend with the very special presentation of the first annual Pride Cabaret, Before the Parade Passes By, at Alley Theatre. Then Houston Pride 2002 climaxes with the exuberant Pride Parade on Saturday, June 29.

There are several ways to take full advantage of all the festive activities being offered during this year's Parade weekend. Purchase bleacher seating - the best spot for watching the Pride Parade - for yourself and your friends. Call 713-529-6979 for information.

Visiting from out-of-town? Spend Parade weekend at the Holiday Inn Select near Greenway Plaza, two miles from the Parade site. Call 1-800-HOLIDAY for reservations and use group booking code PRI for a flat rate of $69 per room per night. And join us at Rich's Houston, 2401 San Jacinto, host of the official Pride parties on Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

All Houston Pride 2002 events are open to the public and attire is casual, unless otherwise noted. Since event details are subject to change, contact the individual event sponsors for any changes, cancellations or additional information.

For all Pride Committee of Houston events, check out our web site at www.pridehouston.org for more information.

A Message to the Perennial Parade Protesters

Jimmy Carper (for Gay & Lesbian Switchboard):

"We don't need to address them. We should just be our proud selves, and that's enough. We know that we are good people, and that's all that matters — not their opinions. I think we should rise above antagonizing them and realize we are there for ourselves."

Irv Smith:

"By official decree we will ignore them. But if I could engage them in a dialogue (assuming they're mainly using scripture much as a drunk uses a lamp-post: more for support than enlightenment [attributed to Rev. William Sloan Coffin]), I would ask just which of the many proscriptions in Leviticus they follow in their personal lives in the year 2002."

"I also would offer to do a spell check on their signage, after laughing at some misspellings in their pathetic signs one year."

It was the AIDS pandemic that inspired Miller's on- and off-stage activism.

"When I started, it was at a time when there were limited resources, if any, available to help with the needs of the HIV/AIDS community," he said. "There was a need to raise money and drag shows were one way to do it. At first, it was to raise money to help a friend that was dying and then it evolved into raising money for the service organizations so they could assist a multitude of people."

The big question is whether or not Mueller will assume his drag persona - Crystal Ray Lee Love - for the Parade. And as of now he and/or she won't say.

munity.

"Only when we can all join together and stand side by side without any barriers from within, will we make a positive statement to the world," he concluded. "As Jose Sarria, the founder of the International Court System and a friend of mine, has said, 'United we stand, divided they will get us one by one.'"

Mela Contreras, Grand Marshal - Female

Mela Contreras, who will serve as Female Grand Marshal for the 2002 Pride Parade, is the first Mexican-American lesbian in Houston to open a Tejano nightclub, Mela's, serving the GLBT community. She uses her nightclub to reach out to the Hispanic GLBT community through fundraisers, barbecues, voter-registration drives, meetings, birthday parties, holy-union ceremonies and receptions, and has made Mela's a melting pot for GLBT people of all ages and nationalities.

Mela's work has been so influential that Houston Mayor Lee Brown honored her with a proclamation recognizing her 20 years of service to the GLBT community.

Jane and Irv Smith, Honorary Grand Marshals

What a difference a decade can make

Honorary Grand Marshals Jane and Irv Smith are active members and former board members of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) Houston. They often speak at events about human-rights issues and their experiences as parents of a gay son. Additionally, Irv has had letters to the editor on these issues published in the Houston Chronicle, while Jane is a board of directors member for the Gay Men's Chorus of Houston responsible for recruiting new volunteers. The Smiths' most prolific work has been with PFLAG, including answering the Helpline, helping implement the organization's billboard advertising campaign and the "Healing the Hurt" series of conferences for educators and distributing

Jane Smith:

"They have been damaged by their religion and instead of [being] love based, their religion is sin based. I have always said Jesus would love gay pride parades because he always supported the oppressed."

Rusty Mueller:

"Don't mess with my hair!"

"Actually, I would probably not say anything to them. We are all entitled to our opinions in life, and we will never all agree on everything. The protesters only serve to make us fight harder for what we believe in. Why give them the satisfaction of irritating us on a day we have chosen to celebrate what we believe in? They have 364 other days to do that."

Mela Contreras - Female Grand Marshal

"I keep going back and forth on that issue and will probably decide that day. There are those who think I should be Crystal and those who are vehemently against it. The decision will be mine and I will stand proud either way," he says.

Accompanying Mueller as an honor guard on his triumphant ride will be the Colt '45s. "They will be there with me, but I will be celebrating pride with each and every member of this community," Mueller said. "To me, that is what it is all about."

Ever the proponent of inclusivity, Mueller says his personal Pride mantra is "Pride Without Walls."

"We all have the right to be proud of who we are and what we choose to do in our lives," he explained. "Unfortunately, there are many within our own ranks who erect walls to block those of us who don't fit into their definition of what the GLBT community should be. Jane and Irv Smith, Honorary Grand Marshals

What a difference a decade can make

Honorary Grand Marshals Jane and Irv Smith are active members and former board members of Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) Houston. They often speak at events about human-rights issues and their experiences as parents of a gay son. Additionally, Irv has had letters to the editor on these issues published in the Houston Chronicle, while Jane is a board of directors member for the Gay Men's Chorus of Houston responsible for recruiting new volunteers. The Smiths' most prolific work has been with PFLAG, including answering the Helpline, helping implement the organization's billboard advertising campaign and the "Healing the Hurt" series of conferences for educators and distributing PFLAG materials to all high-school counselors in Fort Bend ISD.

What Irv Smith remembers most about he and his wife Jane's first pride parade "is that we didn't go to it." They had barely found P-FLAG in spring of 1992, six months after their son Paul came out at age 29. At the first meeting we attended, they were making plans to march in that summer's parade," Irv said. "On the way home in our car, Jane and I agreed that we would never march in such a parade. As they say, never say never."

They did attend their first Pride Parade the following year but they certainly weren't ready to lead it that year, either. "I remember being so concerned that someone I knew might see me, as we were still closeted," Jane recalled.

But all it took was a little human contact to alleviate those concerns. "A young lady came up to me and said 'I wish you were my Mother' I gave her a hug and was hooked on Pride Parades!" she said.

"We knew so little about homosexuality but loved our son so much, so we were forced into educating ourselves through P-FLAG, and reading lots of books," Jane said. "We had hurt so much and knew so little that we wanted to help other people both parents and their children."

The previous year, in 1992, she and her husband Irv had become involved with the Houston chapter of P-FLAG. One of their first big outings - so to speak - occurred when they traveled to Washington DC on the P-FLAG organized bus that visited many P-FLAG chapters through the south and picked up people as they stopped along the office they would not see our us."

Continuing their advocacy Smiths became membership chair of PFLAG's Helpline. "Many people PFLAG comes through material helpline," Jane said. Additional in the group's Speaker's Bureau rate small groups. In a major Houston's GLBTs, two years ago putting 'diversity awareness bi "We raised money through grants them up for one year."

Most recently, the Smiths participated in a successful 'Healing the Hurt' conference.

"We joined P-FLAG for our son's coming out," Irv said. Taking to heart that they no longer need P-FLAG, P-FLAG eventually moved to the Education and Advocacy wings of the P-FLAG triangle. "We did this on behalf of all GLBT people and their families." One person who inspired us in the early P-FLAG years was Gail Rickey, Irv added, whose enthusiasm was contagious and "idea-generation was nonstop."

A defining moment in terms of coming to grips with her son's homosexuality came for Jane when she and Irv attended performances of the Gay Men's Chorus of Houston. "It was very meaningful to me as each of those men was my son at a different age. I found it very encouraging."

Smith are active members of the National Association of Friends of Lesbians and Gays. She speaks at events about her experience as the parent of a gay son. She also writes or on these issues published in the New York Times. She is a board of directors of the National Association of Friends of Lesbians and Gays responsible for the organization's prolific work has been in the past year, helping implement a national campaign and the "Healing Through Writing" project and distributing materials to churches and community groups in East Boston.

Most recently, the Smiths participated in three highly successful 'Healing the Hurt' conferences.

In addition to embracing this year's theme, Worldwide Pride, the Smiths have adopted personal theme of "Family Pride".

"Both for parents and gays," Jane said. "Don't turn away from your loved ones. We always tell gays coming out to their parents to give them time."

"By learning tolerance for one group of humanity, we learn tolerance for all groups of humanity," added Irv. "Or, as Cher said in addressing one P-FLAG national convention 'When one prejudice goes, they all have to go.'"

Meet Rusty, Mela, Jane, Irv and members of the Switchboard in person at the Grand Marshal Reception, 6-9 p.m., Monday, June 24, at Brazos River Bottom, 2400 Brazos. They will also be attending many of the community Pride events listed in this issue of the Texas Triangle.

And, of course, give them a big hand as they lead the nighttime Parade down Westheimer on Saturday, June 29!

The Wait Is Over! Get Ready for Ten Days of Houston Pride

By Troy Christensen

HOUSTON — Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual & Transgender Pride 2002 is here! You had to wait a little bit longer this year since it's more of a Pride Week than a Pride Month, but we on the Pride Committee promise a compact, fun and meaningful series of events lasting through next weekend to make up for the wait.

Pride Kick-off Party

It all starts tonight with the Pride Kick-off Party from 8 p.m. until 2 a.m. at Sonoma, 1415 California. A $10 donation is requested at the door for this all-ages event that offers something for everyone.

Early in the evening, enjoy a cash bar with your friends while you meet and mingle with the Pride Parade Grand Marshals and other Houston dignitaries.

There will also be a number of vendor booths for Houston Pride sponsors with samples of Sparkletts water, Red Bull energy drink, Ecco Domani Pinot Grigio and Rancho Zabaco Dancing Bull Zinfandel wines, the brand-new Vanilla Coke and other products.

The early-evening star of the show is Kristie Stremel, a Kansas City-based singer/songwriter who really rocks. Her low, cigarette-flavored growl is reminiscent of Melissa Etheridge and her lyrics are inspired by some of the best of the singer/songwriters, like Lucinda Williams and Tom Petty. Kristie's latest album, All I Really Want, was released late last year to rave reviews. But more importantly, she's a crowd-pleaser at live performances. Kristie's dividing her time right now between recording her upcoming album and playing at Pride celebrations. Catch her now because she won't come to town again until the Houston Women's Festival this Fall.

At 10 p.m., enjoy a spectacular drag show with some of Houston's top performers. Tip often and heartily-everything goes to support Pride activities. Then dance into the night as DJ Michael Kessler spins from 10 p.m. until 2 a.m. Maria Todd of the 104 KRBE morning show will emcee the entire event, giving a preview of her legendary announcing at the Pride Parade.

Pride Days

Following the Kick-off Party is a week of community-sponsored Pride events, with a different theme for each day. This is a big change from the past few years, when events were scattered through most of June, but it harkens back to Pride celebrations of the early- and mid-80s. Pride Days

Following the Kick-off Party is a week of community-sponsored Pride events, with a different theme for each day. This is a big change from the past few years, when events were scattered through most of June, but it hearkens back to Pride celebrations of the early- and mid-80s. Every major change has its own growing pains, but we believe the Houston GLBT community will be better served in this new (yet old) way.

With the new arrangement, called Pride Days, we've been able to publicize all of the events in ways we never could in the past few years. It's also easier for the community to attend a concentrated week of events, especially if coming from out-of-town.

A week of events arranged by theme is also much more meaningful than events scattered throughout a month with little rhyme or reason. A major part of the Pride Committee's mission is education, and it is important to educate our own community about the issues facing it. With the themes chosen for the 2002 Pride Days, we hope you're inspired to seek understanding of some of our community's issues and the reasons we celebrate Pride, both through the events on these days and on your own.

In future years, there will be room for improvement in Pride Days. However, we think this year's celebration marks a grand return for an idea whose time has come again.

Tomorrow, Saturday, June 22, is Health & Recreation Day. Pride Day at AstroWorld certainly covers the recreation part. Q Texas, South Beach and Gallery Furniture are this year's sponsors of this popular Pride tradition at Houston's Six Flags theme park. The park, at 9001 Kirby at the 610 Loop, is open between 9 a.m. and 11 p.m. and there will be a concert by dance diva Pepper Mashay at 6 p.m. in the Coca-Cola Southern Star Amphitheater. Tickets are $29 and are available at Basic Brothers, Crossroads Market, Lobo and M2M Fashions. Proceeds benefit the Pride Committee and Houston Black Tie Dinner.

That evening, the Community Center Art Festival will include a silent auction of several artists' work, live music and refreshments, all benefiting the Houston Lesbian and Gay Community Center. The Art Festival is 7:30-11 p.m. at the Community Center, 803 Hawthorne. The cost is $10 at the door.

On Sunday, celebrate Family & Youth Day with Pride Family and Youth Fun Day, 1-4 p.m. at Hermann Park. Sponsored by JPMorganChase, the Fun Day will feature lots of activities for the kids, a visit to the Houston Zoo and speakers from the Houston Energy, our champion Women's Professional Football team. Call 713-216-0372 for pre-registration.

Events continue into next week with Monday's Grand Marshal Reception, marking Community Awareness Day. The Royal, Sovereign and Imperial Court of the Single Star introduces the 2002 Pride Parade Grand Marshals, along with Grand Marshals of parades past. The reception takes place 6-9 p.m. at Brazos River Bottom, 2400 Brazos.

A roundtable of Houston's GLBT history-makers will show us the road we took to get here on Commemoration Day, Tuesday, June 25. GLBT History - Houston's First Decade: 1975-1985 is presented by Stonewall Lawyers Association of Greater Houston and features speakers Ray Hill, Phyllis Frye and Donna Garrett. Lessons are held 6-8:30 p.m. at the Moot Court Room in the Thurgood Marshall School of Law at Texas Southern University, 3001 Clayburn. A $5 donation is requested and proceeds benefit several GLBT groups.

Wednesday is Spirituality Day and will be celebrated with two spiritual events and a play. The Interfaith Pride Worship Service is a longstanding Pride tradition, but this year marks the first time it will be held at a Jewish temple. The ecumenical service takes place 7-9:30 p.m. at Congregation Beth Israel, 5600 N. Braeswood. Also, an Introduction to Nichiren Daishonin's Buddhism will be sponsored by SGI-USA Houston "Living Out Loud" at 7-8:30 p.m. at 3465 W. Alabama. Comfort & Joy is a hilarious gay, Christmas-themed play performed as a benefit for the Pride Committee and the Gulf Coast Archive and Museum of GLBT History. The show goes on 8-10 p.m. at Theatre Suburbia, 1410 W. 43rd. The cost is $20 (and well worth it, if thinking about Christmas gets your mind off the Houston heat!).

On Thursday, June 27, we explore our community's diversity during Pride Worldwide Day. And the day has some pretty diverse events. First up is HRC Pride, a cocktail party to introduce you to the Human Rights Campaign Federal Club, to be held 6:30-8:30 p.m. at Farrago Restaurant, 318 Gray.

Then the Houston chapter of the Lesbian and Gay Immigration Rights Task Force presents "Love Knows No Borders" - A GLBT Immigration Talk by attorney John Nechman. The talk, focusing on the right of lesbian and gay binational couples to make a life together in the U.S., will be held 7:30-9:30 p.m. at Bering Memorial United Methodist Church, 1440 Harold. Donations are requested. Finally, the Montrose Clinic participates in National HIV Testing Day with free HIV, syphilis and Hepatitis C testing from 8 p.m. until 12 midnight at both Brazos River Bottom, 2400 Brazos, and EJ's, 2517 Ralph.

Before the Parade Passes By

Next Friday ends Pride Days with Arts Appreciation Day. You'll have a variety of ways to celebrate GLBT contributions to the arts, but we on the Pride Committee hope you will join us as we present the first annual Pride Cabaret.

Directed by Ken Williamson, Before the Parade Passes By is a musical celebration of our lives. Ken has served in a variety of roles for the Houston stage, from dramaturg to actor to director, each with critical acclaim. For this production, he has assembled a fine cast, including such stars as Alley Theatre Resident Company member Paul Hope, Houston actress Chesley Ann Santoro and Houston Ballet Principal Dancer Lauren Anderson, along with many of the city's finest singers, actors and dancers. A live band, a silent auction and special surprises will make this a night to remember.

Before the Parade Passes By will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, June 28, at Alley Theatre, 615 Texas. Tickets are $25-$100 and all proceeds benefit Houston Pride. A private reception with the cast will be held immediately after the performance for $75 and $100 ticket holders. Call 713-228-8421 or stop by the Alley box office for tickets.

Your other options next Friday are also musical, but still pretty diverse.

First, there's GoGirlsRock! Houston Pride, a concert presented by GoGirlsMusic.com, the Houston-based online community of women artists. The event goes from 7 p.m. until 2 a.m. at Rhythm Room, 1815 Washington. The cost is $7 at the door. Actually, our loyalties are a little divided between the Pride Cabaret and the GoGirls concert because it features our friend and Texas Triangle Associate Publisher Nancy Ford and, well, as the web site says, "cuz chicks rock!"

You also have a couple of choices later in the evening. Baile Internacional 2002 brings back a Latino tradition that has been missing from Houston Pride for the past couple of years. This black-tie celebration, dance and fundraiser for gay and lesbian community groups will be held 9:30 p.m.-1:30 a.m. at Ripley House Ballroom, 4410 Navigation.

You can attend all of these events and still catch part of Frequency Friday-Pride Edition at Rich's, 2401 San Jacinto. Fabulous drag performer and songstress The Lady Bunny performs at this special edition of Rich's high-energy house music night. The doors open at 10 p.m. and stay open until 4 a.m. The cost is $7 at the door and proceeds benefit the Pride Committee, as they do for all of Rich's parties over Parade weekend.

Of course, all of these events lead up to biggest festivity of them all, the glorious night-time Pride Parade at 8:45 p.m. on Saturday, June 29, on Westheimer between Woodhead and Whitney. Be sure to check out next week's Texas Triangle for the latest information about the Parade and all of the fun post-Parade parties that will be held at Rich's and elsewhere.

We hope readers from all over Texas will be able to take advantage of the compact Days of Pride and come to Houston for the entire celebration. But we'll welcome you even if you're only here for Parade weekend. Spend it at the Holiday Inn Select at Greenway Plaza, two miles from the Parade site. Call 1-800-HOLIDAY for reservations and use group booking code PRI for a flat rate of $69 per room per night.

No matter where you live, you'll also want to make sure you have the best spot for watching the Parade by reserving bleacher seating near Montrose and Westheimer for yourself and your friends. Call 713-529-6979 or e-mail info@pridehouston.org for information.

Houston Pride 2002 Ends with Parade and Weekend of Festivities

By Troy Christensen

Houston's fabulous nighttime Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual & Transgender Pride Parade steps off at 8:45 p.m. tomorrow on Westheimer between Woodhead and Whitney. Come to experience all the light, sound and motion of our annual tradition, and see some additions-new lighting, new announcers and new entries like the Houston Fire Department. The Parade is the spectacular climax to Houston Pride 2002, but it's also just one part of a full weekend of events.

Parking in the residential area around the Parade route is very limited, so plan on getting to the Parade early. To make your wait a lot more fun, we'll be broadcasting music and interactive vendor booths along the Parade route starting at 6 p.m.

Vendors, including Perfect Places Travel, Green Mountain Energy, Trojan Condoms, Nair for Men, Arm & Hammer Breath Mints and Red Bull will be set up with lots of giveaways at Westheimer and Mt. Vernon, between Copy.com and Light Bulbs Unlimited.

Music will be broadcast from the judges' stand at Lincoln and Westheimer, where 104 KRBE's Maria Todd and Ernie Manouse of Weekday on Houston PBS will emcee the Parade. This year there will be Parade announcers at two other spots along the route that will also broadcast music before the Parade starts. You won't have to stand in the crowd near Montrose and Westheimer to hear the Parade being announced. Jeff Austin of Mix 96.5 will announce the Parade entries at Stanford and Westheimer, in front of Leather Forever, and emcees from Estereo Latino 102.9 will announce in Spanish and English on the Westheimer curve between Windsor and Yupon.

No matter where you view the Parade, you won't miss this year's amazing new light display. The disco ball of the last few Parades was fabulous, but the new display literally says PRIDE. It is a brilliant strobe light wall on top of a 25-foot support at the corner of Montrose and Westheimer and its eight-foot letters spelling PRIDE will be seen from five miles away.

Another Parade addition that will have you cheering is an entry sponsored by the Houston Fire Department. Be sure to wave at Fire Chief Chris Connealy and our brave firefighters as they ride atop the Tower 6 truck, which is used to fight fires in high-rise buildings.

The Fire Department joins other government departments and officials that are taking part in this year's Parade, such as Houston Public Library, Mayor Lee Brown (this is his third Pride Parade in a row), openly lesbian City Councilmember Annise Parker and Montrose-area City Councilmember Ada Edwards.

After the Parade is over, Pride festivities continue throughout the weekend.

When the last entry goes by, dance your way down to Rich's, 2401 San Jacinto, for "It's a Small World After All," the Official Pride Worldwide Party. Spectacular eye candy will fill a dazzling carnival setting complete with rides and games. Chart-topping dance songstress, and Carol Burnett's daughter, Erin Hamilton performs on the main stage following her appearance on the Rich's float in the Parade. Doors open at 10 p.m. and stay open until 4 a.m. Proceeds from the party benefit the Pride Committee.

Then boogie on up to No-Do and join the Spoiled Boyz at Spy Nightclub, 112 Travis, for "Pride American Style," the Official After-Pride Party. M2M Entertainment/Spoiled Boyz presents an amazing dance party and laser light show featuring DJ Dawna Montel of Bump (SF, LA) and Red Eye (LA) fame as well as a surprise performance. Doors open at 3:30 a.m. and the party continues until 8:30 a.m. Sunday morning. The cost is $15 at the door and a portion of the proceeds benefits the Pride Committee.

After you take a nap, or not, come back to Rich's for the Pride Recovery Party and find out who won the trophies from the Pride Parade. Doors open at 4 p.m. and the Parade award winners will be announced from the main stage at 6 p.m. The cost is $2 at the door and proceeds benefit the Pride Committee.

We want to share Texas' biggest Pride celebration with everyone in the state! If you are coming from out of town, spend the weekend at the Holiday Inn Select at Greenway Plaza, two miles from the Parade site. Call 1-800-HOLIDAY for reservations and use group booking code PRD for a flat rate of $69 per room per night.

See you at the Parade!

What Unites Us?

The annual gay pride prompt some reflection on the movement and the community it represents. It's fair to ask, for example, do we really have a "community of civil rights" or is the civil rights movement could be sent? Or do gays comprise constituencies with such divergent (and conflicting) interests that the community is more aspiration than reality.

The truth is somewhere in between, but closer to the latter. This fact of gay activists, who plead for equality, shouldn't.

It's trite to say we're all in this case trite is right. We come from South, East, and West. Gay people come from rich families and poor families, from standing families and bigoted families, from those who worship God in every religion and those who do not worship God. We come in all ages, shapes, sizes, and colors like every kind of food, music, and occupation. We're in every occupation, from construction worker to CEO.

We are Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians, Independents, and the aforementioned. We're liberal, conservative, radical, reactionary, and everything in between. We've voted for Bush, Gore, Nader, and Clinton.

With all this diversity, it's not surprising to find that we come to a consensus on almost anything. We agree on what to call this purpose.

We are Republicans, Democrats, Libertarians, Independents, and the aforementioned. We're liberal, conservative, radical, reactionary, and unaffiliated. We voted for Bush, Gore, Nader, and Clinton.

With all this diversity, it's not surprising to find that we could disagree on almost anything. We argue about what to call this purported community. Gay? Gay and Lesbian? GLBT?

So what does a 50-year-old conservative, religious, closeted white male from the rural South who works in a factory have in common with a 20-year-old, out-and-proud self-identified lesbian from New York City who attends a liberal arts university? Can these people really share the same community?

What, for that matter, do we have in common with Barney Frank?

Gay people have two things in common. The first is their attraction to members of one sex, and the second is their attraction to members of the opposite sex. But it would be a mistake to speak of a single "straight community." We'd say, heterosexuals' interests and perspectives are too divergent to share a common moniker. Gays are fewer in number than straights but no less diverse, and that's why we share a sexual orientation.

Man in Long Beach Custody Could Have Texas Victims Police Seek Information on Man Who Targets Gays for Robbery, Assault

By Matt Lum

DALLAS — Police in Long Beach, California are asking gays and lesbians in Texas and Florida to provide information on 38-year-old Walter Meinhardt, in custody since May 22. According to police, Meinhardt is a drifter with a criminal history in Texas, Florida and California.

"He goes to gay bars and picks up on men and invites himself to their homes or apartments and once there attacks them with a knife and/or beats them, takes their money and fleas," Long Beach Police Detective Jeff Liberman told The Triangle. "He's been held to answer in L.A. County court for residential robbery — and two counts of assault with a deadly weapon."

Liberman said it is likely, considering the brazenness of the crimes in Long Beach, that Meinhardt has other victims in Texas that may have not reported their attacker to police.

"We're aware of the victim's reluctance to come forward to report it, but we believe this guy is very dangerous and we want him held responsible for all of his crimes," he said.

"Walter is a real threat to our community because he is very clever in the way he picks out his victims and tells them believable stories," said Justin (an alias), allegedly attacked by Meinhardt May 21. "He wants his victim to be the same height or smaller, then he strikes up a conversation designed to size up the potential victim. "He told me he was from Austin and that he had attended a party of my lesbian neighbors not too long ago," Justin told The Triangle. The two men spent a brief time at the bar, during which time Justin says Meinhardt was able to see the contents of his wallet by making him buy a drink. After Meinhardt massaged Justin's shoulders and expressed his desire to give him a full body massage, the two left to Justin's apartment. "He said we could go to his place, but it was a mess and that he had a roommate," Justin said.

"He goes to gay bars and picks up on men and invites himself to their homes or apartments and once there attacks them with a knife and/or beats them, takes their money and fleas,"

Once inside, Justin locked his door. Meinhardt allegedly then asked for food. When a television dinner only produced a fork, Meinhardt then searched the kitchen for something he would need a knife to cut.

"He took a big block of cheese out of the refrigerator so that he could ask for and use a kitchen knife to cut it," Justin said.

Justin then took a shower, removing his wallet from his shorts beforehand.

Justin says his shorts were neatly folded when he got out of the shower and Meinhardt began to massage his shoulders and lead him to the bed.

"He told me to lie on my back and relax and place my hands above the pillow," Justin said. "He then straddled me and forcefully sat on my stomach and pressed a kitchen knife to my throat," he said.

Justin says Meinhardt said, "This is no joke. This is what you are going to do. You are going to give me all of your cash and don't fuckin' lie to me because I know you hid your wallet."

Justin said Meinhardt made stabbing motions with the knife and told him he had killed three people before. He then allegedly forced Justin to produce his wallet.

Meinhardt's second attack occurred the next night when he met the next victim at a Long Beach bar, then followed him to two other taverns before inviting himself to the man's apartment. He allegedly brandished a knife, duct-taped the man's mouth and demanded his money.

Detective Liberman said Meinhardt left the scene without any money because the victim, age 42, was able to fight him off.

"We have no evidence to lead us to believe it's a hate crime — he does claim to have had gay relationships in the past," Liberman said, noting his feeling that Meinhardt has victimized others in Austin and San Antonio.

Liberman would not release a photo of Meinhardt, saying it would taint the evidence and prohibit an alleged victim from picking their attacker from a lineup objectively. "Both victims said he had an extremely hairy chest and speaks with a Texas accent, a southern drawl," Liberman offered.

Meinhardt is described as a Caucasian man with brown hair, brown eyes. He is 5 feet 11 inches tall and weighs 165 pounds.

Anyone with information is asked to call Detective Liberman with Long Beach Police Department at 562-570-7464.

What Rain? Clouds Part for Pride Parade

By Jone Devlin and Nancy Ford

HOUSTON — Thousands braved rainy forecasts and lined Westheimer Saturday evening, June 29, to witness the 24th annual Houston Gay, Lesbian, Bisexual and Transgender Pride Parade, which organizers described as the largest and most diverse in history.

With the theme Pride Worldwide, the nighttime parade featured approximately 135 entries sponsored by organizations and businesses in the Houston GLBT community and beyond, as well as government leaders, small businesses and major corporations and major media outlets.

One of the entries getting the loudest applause from the more than 130,000 spectators was the Houston Fire Department, with Fire Chief Chris Connealy riding atop the HFD's Tower 6 Truck. This marks the first year for a Fire Department entry in the Houston Pride Parade.

It was also the first year the Pride Parade added the words "bisexual and Transgender" to its title. The transgender community celebrated with a well-attended walking entry near the front of the parade lineup. "We registered right after last year's parade," said transgender activist Lilly Roddy.

It was the third consecutive Pride trip down Westheimer for Houston Mayor Lee P. Brown. Other elected officials in the parade included City Councilmembers Ada Edwards, Annise Parker, and Gordon Quan, State Representatives Garnet Coleman and Debra Danburg, and U.S. Representative Sheila Jackson Lee.

The parade was also historic, organizers of the Pride Committee of Houston said, because it included two of the founders of the first Houston Pride Parade, activists Ray Hill and Larry Bagneris. Hill was spotted with the KPFT 90.1 FM's entry, and Bagneris represented the City of New Orleans Human Relations Department.

Prize-Winning Pride

Deciding which entrants would win one of the nine prizes awarded by the Pride Committee of Houston (PCOH) was tough, as many of the entries and performances were standout. But after some intense deliberations the following prizes were awarded:

STONEWALL (Best Commemoration of Pride): Bering Church
PRIDE WORLDWIDE (Best Interpretation of Theme): Krewe of Olympus
SPIRIT OF MONTROSE (Best Overall Entry): Houston Fire Department
RUBY SLIPPER (Best Walking Unit): Houston Pride Band
GYPSY ROSE (Best Out of Town Unit): Rainbow Ranch
EDISON (Best Lighting on a Non Professional Float): Montrose Counseling Center
HOUSTON (Best Non Professionally Built Motorized Unit): Parents Families and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG)
RAINBOW LIGHTS (Best Lighting on a Professionally Built Unit): Chase Bank
TEXAS (Best Professionally Built Motorized Unit): Club Nergy

Judges included Jone Devlin of KPFT and The Texas Triangle, Rich Arenschmidt of AIDS Foundation Houston, Fred Walters of the Houston Buyers' Club, and Kay Dayus of the Houston Voice. Awards were presented to the winners on June 30 at a special event held at Rich's.
