BEFORE IT'S TOO LATE

today i stood in protest and chanted in front of a pharmaceutical building in Washington DC. we chanted AIDS CURE NOW! in anger because these people are making money from inflated drug prices for drugs that treat infected people. now that i have the virus i have a new perspective of the frustration many in the ranks must have always felt. now tears come for the first time. i feel compassion for those of us here in battle and for the many here in spirit; too weak to continue the fight or killed long ago. i joined this battle a few years ago for the loved ones i lost, in anger, now it is my personal battle. healthcare killers have to go! we march and chant : ACT UP FIGHT BACK! chanting PEOPLE WITH AIDS UNDER ATTACK, WHAT DO WE DO? ACT UP FIGHT BACK! and we repeat...ACT UP FIGHT BACK! and for how long will this battle go on? 13 years more?

every 90 seconds the list grows.

today in Washington DC i stand next to my best friend, Michael Crawford, a vigilante crusader for this cause; strong, courageous, intelligent, and determined. i watch fellow ACT UP members draw chalk outlines of each others bodies on the sidewalk in front of this building. one of the boys quickly inscribes the names of 3 people who have died in the war within the chalk bordered body. i cried today because i wonder how long it will be before Michael will be chalking my name in these ghostly sidewalk tombstones to remind the healthcare assassins that once i had hope in my lifetime there would be a cure but, "THE TIME THEY KILLED KILLED ME!"

Original Untitled Story

It's morning and I must bite the sleeping man. I'm about to discover the way he wakes up with a new blemish for the first time, the way he wakes up with me nibbles on his back. Soon I will know his back; its bumps and freckles and shadows better than he does. I see a scar just above his right kidney. Pink and raised, it carries the history of a permanent injury I know nothing about. I see the line where his ribs blocked the sun on some journey and some dark moles like the ones they warn about in pamphlets about cancer. Just above his rib there's a sharp and tender bald patch of skin, immune to his blunder of transparent hair. There his waistline sinks; he has colored bumps, an allergy, an organic revulsion to some anonymous substance. Three of his freckles form a triangle and if I had a pen I'd connect the dots like a target on that precious spot of skin, just beneath his left shoulder blade. But because this vulnerable place quivers with my slightest touch I refrain from sinking my teeth into the delicate moment. For now.

But suppose when I bite, he remains private, inaccessible, oblivious through deep sleep, immersed in a dream about walking unscathed down the streets of the Southwest France among stampeding giraffes. Into his blissful shell through the tall and spotted, he sinks deeper, sighs, lets out a moan, taking my precious chew for a paddle kicked up by a vegetarian quadruped.

Or Or suppose when I bite, he keeps his lids jammed shut and tries to闪闪remember if there's street cleaning Monday when he parked his car. Suppose his eyes stink but frantic, struggling to remember the identity of the man grazing on his back. Stricken with spontaneous amnesia, he pangs through the possibilities: the Hispanic startup from the party last week; his first crush, naked and dripping with sweat racing from the latrines to the showers; or the homeless, flinting boy at the dance last Saturday. Or me, this new and intollerable lover who tracked him for weeks, drugged him out for endless cups of coffee, set smacks in his lap, and now contemplates the taste of involvement.

so early in the morning. Suppose when I bite, his eyelids flutter. He thinks he has dreamed, forgets where he is, doesn't recognize the redwood balsam next to the bed. He snorts, fidgets, ignores my quivering lolliness, settles into silent irritation. After a while, he mutters something mean, because my indigent mouth has started him into waking. He panics, wonders what strange promises lurk in my head, fears that a precious part of him will die, that it's the wrong time for love, and that severing is inevitable, an amputation every time. He retreats, imagines me working to catch butterflies, and buy me little presents, maybe up for sympathy when I get the flu and say those words that make him want to crawl into a closet.

Or suppose this morning I'm considerate, my mulatto sleeps and I don't bite or brood or think about loves from the past. I'm soothed by the gentle shudder of his breathing, content to sample here behind him, my own hands around his long, narrow waist. Suppose I get out of bed, open him the hated slacks, then wake him gently with the smell of morning brew. He's quizzical, loquacious, hair sticking out all over. He pants at the sad fate of getting out of bed. In the kitchen we snorch and tip, pull our chairs together, knees bumping.

But we will not have such a morning. I am not a noble, considerate lover. I am not soothed, enchanted, apid content upon waking up next to this barrage of possibilities. I'm a knotted mess, and the man sleeps while I suffer alone with the desire of biting off... an involvement.

The alarm is about screaming.

The bite has become a primal need, surpassing food, water, sleep and pride. It's monumental, essential to survival, the arbiter of crisis. Bite the man, I tell myself, take the chance. It runs in practice, chew on my tongue, pull back my lips in preparation for a tiny, sumptuous pinch of his freckled skin. He winces. His ribs cage expand and that quivery place on his back moves a little closer. It will be easy and sweet, that small grasp of his flesh between just face it my teeth.

But when I open my mouth, he holds my warm breath on his back. Unable to wait any longer he rolls over, opens his eyes. Enchanted, his eyes open wider. I am even more beautiful than he remembered. I kiss it, he says, pulling me closer, you were about to bite.

Now I panic. What strange promises lurk in his head? A previous post of mine will die; it's the sunrise, time for love, of course, butterflies and buy me little presents, sample up for sympathy when he gets the flu; he'll say those words that make him want to crawl into a closet.

It's the one possibility I hadn't considered. It's a hard swallow but the pain goes down - with bold, unshed meat and obstacles, however. To sink my teeth right in.

Diva Study I

Last night I was who I wanted to be. Coked up, freaking, and dancing with the divas. It was techno, techno, techno. Living life to the fullest. Swirling in the 90's to a techno version of the big 80's thing New Order's "Blue Monday", imagine that! "let's take it over." "You know it." We rush the dance floor in a blur of sequins, PVC, vinyl, and mesh, "Move over boys the talent is here!" Of course they have to get out of the way. I'm fabulous; walking, talking or just standing still! "The music is divine won't you jump in?" "Don't mind if I do," "Don't out diva me dear." "Jealous much?" Our hands are raised and we are trying to catch the beat of the techno, trying to catch the voice that is singing the words that are out there.

"Look at him, he's so very cyber!" The music is techno, techno, techno. Then everyone has to try and be a diva when Nessiah's "Temple of Dreams" comes on. "He's so cyber!" "It's the Versace op-art stretch jeans!"

When there's no more room we go over to the juice bar for a "power drink". Nothing to lose. Tonight we can not help but enjoy those boys with their lunch boxes whispering, "ecstasy, ecstasy, ecstasy." Oh but "you don't need that tonight. Just go over and ask him to dance, he's not too fabulous or fierce." "Well, then why bother?"

Next all hell breaks loose. The techno stops and house takes control. The music is fierce and the dancing gets nasty. "Jump! Mother Fucker, Jump! Mother Fucker, Jump!" "We have to!" Now we're on the dance floor and he's gorgeously close. It's not like he could just wear a Calvin Klein t-shirt to top off those jeans, he has to work an entire Versace kinda "thing".

Here we are, "just a bunch of jumpin' mother fuckers". He touches my butt, o.k., he cups my buttocks in the palm of his hand. "Ya'll a bunch of jumpin' mother fuckers", the music slows to a crawl. "See you later love", I'm jumpin'. We grind. I am in the house, about to bring him home. "Suck me off, suck me off, suck me off, suck me off." We exchange smiles, "fabulous". And the mystery follows us, no the mystery proceeds us like a fine sorbet before the main course. The black room looms before me. This is too quick, he is too forceful, I'm too coked up! It's New York City! I can just do him and go. "James Brown is dead! dum dum dum dum dum dum dum ... * ", returns the to techno, Industrial techno house. The lights are strobing. He's a great kisser. He's on 3. I'm so relieved that it will be much easier. "Yeah, do me, do me do me!" I mean this guy is simply too messy with once-ejac. Thank God he's wearing Versace jocks as well. He's only flint hard. I wipe the thing clean and suck him till he gets twitchy then just nod him off. Christ where did they put the little boy's room anyway, My face is not too messy, just too much shine on the mouth. Here we are all fresh again. Industrial techno house. "Join in the Chant, Join in the Chant." Hands are raised trying to catch the beats. Some 'girl' steps on my foot. My shoes cost more than her and her outfit. "Who loves you and who do you love?" "Where have you been darling?" Thank God I'm a diva, a techno freak! Here's another note for your Chanel belt darling.

"He's a real prince Valient, a techno/cyber dream!" "He's fab, I'll happen, the bartender put some special f in his drink." "I know." Finally it's fabulous again returning to techno, techno, techno.

Does anyone know the name of this song, "Xeroxed" by Zero Zero... bam bam da da da, bam bam da da da.. The ground is shaking and the crowd begins to push itself into our aura. It's a wreck becoming one throbbing mess. Riding on a white horse or no it's just the usual 'fag hag', prince Valient is on his way over. "I know you", he says. Not yet but you will, you will, you will.

II

"God damn it ! this is bringing me down. I have to be up! Simply up, you understand." "Here have one more before it's gone" "I'm so coked up. Doesn't anyone drink anymore?" "Please in New York who can afford to drink?"

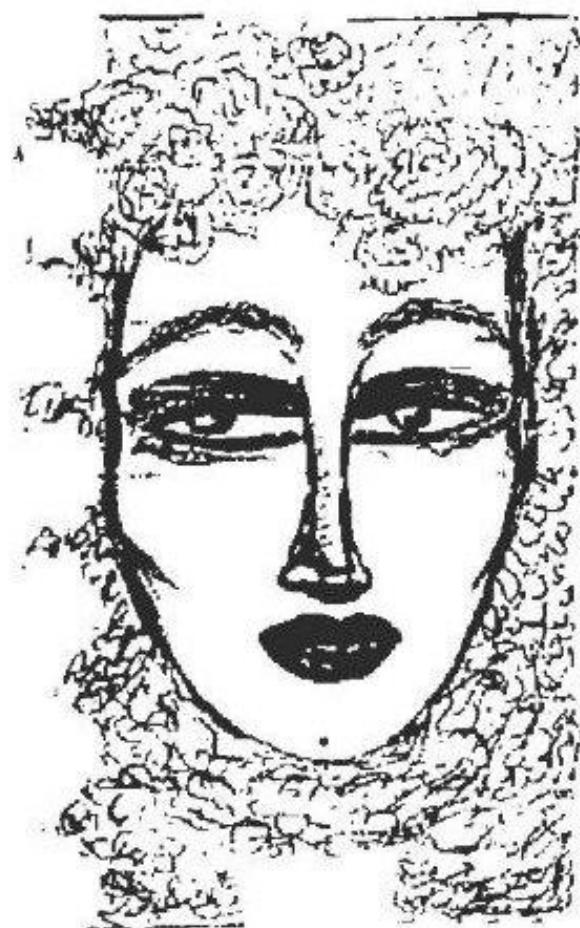

"Oh God look at that one. He's been terribly wronged by glamour." "Hello, George Michael burned that biker jacket in the "Freedom" video." "With a body like yours you only need the sequin hot pants and the boots work for you." "Faster baby, Sex on Wheels." He doesn't even know Thrill Kill Cult and what diva doesn't know Thrill Kill Cult? "I'm so sick of having fun. I just want to have more sex. Is'nt there anyone" "What happened with prince Valient ?" "Oh dear, I had him, I forgot. He used to have the nastiest dreads." Luscious to look at, delightful to taste, but all work. Techno into the 90's with the new version of "Everything Counts in Large Amounts." "Listen I want to leave because I'm coming down. I need to go and bug on my own." "Break the circle and go home with Bubba," "Forget it, I'm dazed, I'm crazed in techno. My head is full. Just take me to the dance floor, I want to be in a coma." " I will if you'll be a good girl and stop banging your head on the wall darling." "Oh ! I thought I kept seeing the same shot on the wall." "Here, here comes your friend take a ride on the soul train with him." "Fab, I think I will !"

Instantly we're grinding and twisting. He is a diva queen in an Armani summer vest and trousers. Our arms are intwining and we are weaving a fibrous web of cool while swaying to the rythm. He unbuttons his vest and throws it to the ground like he just heard Armani was available at K-mart.

"Oh stop deer, don't just yet get started, please!", "Let's go for a vodka cherry sour cocktail." Yes, at the bar the clouds part. " i see a change in the weather. See you later thanks soo much for the drink. Here's a real man no cyber punks. I can't handle that format anymore. I'm changing my font. I'm going back to the old program and finally I hear techno, techno, techno. "It's going to be a fine day today" the beautiful sound of Opus claims me. I proceed up to the man of the night. "How is your night ?" "It's getting better."

Away we go and suddenly we're exposed to the sounds of the outside world. WE are rushing to his bed and all lights are flashing. I'm smiling with expectation because darling what is there to say, I'm sitting in a giant faded blue seventies vehicle. The Stones God love them are on the radio blasting out "Hell Fire". This one is quiet no silly tit for tat, no do you know so and so. His legs are fly though girl! We get home and the Bee gees ask "How deep is your love". We kiss and touch a little while. I'm ready for what feels like nine inches to be mine. I sit on him and play with his package." His golden head rest on the pillow so cherubic. The music changes into a swirling disco mess. Before I know it the gentle kisses his cock was receiving has me on my back. I look up to see his hairy abdomen is attacking my face.

It's like I can't breathe, I'm gagging. His sweet nine inches is fucking my face to the hilt. His balls are slapping my chin.
He switches, "hello I need some air", I'm hard just for him.
I have never had my face fucked in such a graphic film sense.
This was'nt a blow-job. He reciprocates with a weak few strokes.
At last the Bee Gees are singing about "you can tell by the way I use my walk." This whole mess will be over in just about... it's over but messy. I rush to the bathroom to wash off his Polo scent. I tell him he must drive me back I have people to meet later.
He ask me to stay because he's "frisky" in the morning. I consider filing a date rape case. Back in the hiddeousness of the seventies, The car plays my old friend Axl screeching, "nothing last forever not even november rain." Axl is right, "take me down to the paradise city". I love these moments; "here's my number", "oh, great, well I'll see you, I mean o.k. I'll call you." Back inside the club it's the last song of the night... "holiday/celebrate-take some time to get away/do the bus stop" it's the Truth or Date version.

Needless

her story: "Steve My Queen"

I would rather sit here and obsess about the way I feel like Steve McQueen in the seventies, when he looked good and was still with Ali McGraw. Desire and dick are my top traits. I think it's been said many times many ways how intense or evil [I am - I'm not being vein, but yes, I know how I'm really hot. Wasn't Steve the first man on the cover of Vogue? Anyway it's taken this long for me to learn how to score anyone] anytime.

People judge me a safe outside package, but before they know it they've discovered a Pandora's box. They go too far. They want to go that far. They want to say dirty words to me. They want to be on their knees and suck dict. They pray for a real man to treat them like shit. They want to be taken out of the main-stream and forget that people are supposed to be nice and shake hands first. They crave the most empty experience someone can have sexually. They like to do this and move and just walk away from it. To me this is like there's guns going off on the big screen. I might as well have cards printed that tell people I'm the object of their desire, lie medium to express their little fantasies, but I'm not human and don't deserve any kindness. Feel free to explore my chest, pinch my nipples, pull my chest hair, and if you have to tell me how great they are. Please tell me that my cock is thick and big and you just want to suck it, you want it to fuck your ass. I in return will oblige you with, "yeah, suck that dick". I believe this is the role I am cast in. It gets old. Maybe not too long from now I will no longer feel like Steve. It won't be heroic. My looks will go. Guys won't offer me their hand-ons as initial greetings. I'll be burnt-out. I'll be desperate for the new Steve.

I feel so hungry. I want the empty feeling in my stomach to stop; yet I can't stop myself, I'm not aware of what it is. I'm not able to get away from it. I see it in so many other people. When we are together we still are not able to piece anything together. Two halves do not make a whole in these instances. I am always meeting these empty loss souls. I am the ring leader. I can control how far I am willing to go. It's fun to say no but with some it's more fun to say yes. I am willing to die for fulfillment. I would seriously let someone take me to my death if I could just feel content. It doesn't matter how good it feels to have my cock sucked, when it's over it's over and the little pains inside return. Physical passion is rare for me. Emotional passion is non-existent. I know none of these men I meet are going to understand my needs. I don't understand their needs. We satiate our thirsty desires with drink, drugs, and if we're attractive sex.

My only escape from boredom is sex. It's the sensation of someone to fuck with that gives me some point of being. It's like everything else has ended, life is over. I can only think of myself as flesh now. A body of flesh craving other flesh, feeding off of it. Shit, spit, hard-on dicks, hairy balls, and pre-ejaculate have become the essentials. Men are pigs and the more crass they are the more I need them. Boys are made for rimming and men are made for fucking. I will not mind my own business around the male sex. I must evaluate each's potential. I must look to see if they recognize the need in me. When they do suddenly there is light. I am not phased by casual blow-jobs in the bathrooms of restaurants, clubs, or bars. I cherish the memories when I'm alone in a stall just pissing. I think about the many cock fights! him or me sitting on the toilet. It doesn't matter if I can't remember its owner, the memory of one thick dick will be replaced by a short uncut cock of another. I'm not sad over these issues. Some people can sit and trace a thought all the way back to its beginning. I use my time to get another beautiful penis. Nothing else matters.

bar story:

Tonight he is a little boy lost in a toy box. This bar is no sacred place to him. All the games men play are learned here. He takes his first sip of beer and feels dizzy. He walks over to his favorite spot. Leaning on the wall in front of him stands a body very similar to his own. The lighting in the bar shadows his face, his age, his true identity. He chooses not to stand here. He sees the man shift the weight of his body from one foot to another. He could have this man, but the evening has just begun and the game just started. O.K., it's time to walk around the bar. The act of making a pass* around the bar lets the room know who's in play. All this becomes instinctual.

Some nights he stands back to watch the others. He counts the rounds of the most desperate players. He connects to their nervous energy. Maybe they are insecure. They're being obvious. Hunger. This night is like so many in the past. On another wall a space opens for him. Across the room a man similar to the first, to him. This game is hard to play on some nights. The stakes are high. There are no winners. Bodies. Tonight no kissing, no eye contact, no words spoken and no memory of having met.

I mean I was only there to watch
I didn't want to meet anyone. I'm certainly too shy to approach anyone.
I guess at first I wanted to meet an S&M master. It wasn't happening.
I drank water so the evening would be slow and drag by. Sometimes someone would stand in front of me, to the side, or just on top of me. "Excuse me, that's my foot". All this made me feel empty. Is it so wrong to want to be wanted?

I can't stop wishing for the frantic coffee weekends I knew in San Francisco.
People come up and talk to you. If the conversation is going well so will the sex thing.

I see my friend come in and make the rounds. This has become his bar. When he's here I watch. I can not lean back and dream of other music and him keeping score.

bar story:

Destranged and bored I return to action. It has been weeks and I can no longer fight the hunger inside. It has been too long and masturbation brings little comfort. I bring the torn and faded Sol's out of retirement. I go without supper so I can wear my tightest black t-shirt and roll the sleeves. I dust off my lucky boots. These garments are the armour for the quest.

During my first bourbon and coke a man comes over. I smile, he cups my ass, he breathes heavily on my neck, he says nothing, he is hard. I feel him bump my leg. I go to the bar for another drink. I return, I say nothing. Sometimes I play this game so bad. I think is it him or me? I know he wants me. I feel drunk. I forget how to speak. I try to look hungry. I see something in the many eyes walking past me. Circling like vultures waiting to feast on the carcass. One stops and stands close to me. I'm distracted the man stops bumping my leg and stands away. He won't make a move. I don't understand. He takes his hat off from time to time and runs his hand through his hair. He's waiting. I get another drink. I decide the game is over between us. I stand back in the shadows, I am out of play.

Men tell me they could spend hours biting at my jaw) or sucking my nipples. "Great tits", "great arms", "just look at these thighs"!. I don't really mind hearing how great my smile is; "Oh, you're not going to smile now that I've said something"; or how intense my eyes are; "what color blue is that?". None of these things matter they are just things that people say. I feel empty when they don't say anything. Plenty of men cruise me and not say anything but show an interest and that is O.K.. Some men have gone very far with and nothing has been said during the whole thing. I don't understand the mentality, really. Once I sandwiched between two hot guys. They were both different but that they both wanted me make them similar. They both grabbed my crotch: one went for my chest the other my arms. I just leaned back and watched smoke hover above the crowd frustrated at being trapped in by the ceiling. When they both got their fill of me or each other they took off. They left without thinking of giving a smile or thank you. I don't know I guess it's all the same.

Talking dirty doesn't bother me either; I've auditioned for enough porno flicks that I can pull it off. However, when I'm with someone and I'm in control I want to be real. Sex is my reality. I want to say, "yeah, that's good". It just isn't easy out here though. I've run the gamut of ending up in predacious situations.

The screams I let out are latent. I don't want to hurt anyone's feelings. The male ego is very sensitive. I know it's better to keep things to yourself rather than making someone feel like a freak.

bar story :

To begin with things just don't work out the way they should. I feel the muck. Sex is persistently driving me mad and I just can't get a hard-on the way most people do. I don't know what the problem is, I mean, I'm always on the make. I see an interest from other men but I'm just not aroused. It's so rare that someone will actually kiss me and that used to be the only safe thing to do.

O.K., I have to admit I'm really sick about reading and hearing about the A.I.D.S. crisis. I still cry when another from-to flashes on the screen. I'm sick of losing people or seeing people fade out. It's not fair but it's not fair that I've come into my own sexuality at such an inopportune time.

For a good time this summer I was way ahead of Madonna putting pages together for my book, Sex. I mean, everything you can think of. I know I've done everything in her book at least. I never stepped over the "safe" boundary. I saw others though. I have lived through the hells of sexual passion. I have gone beyond weakness and still not exchanged any bodily fluids.

Life is muck. I do not know what to do now. I can not accept casual sex is an evil temptation. It seems as a salvation. I don't know what to do now.

bar story:

Inside I'm constantly battling my sense of dignity. I enter the darker realms of life and am so seduced by their destructive abilities. We know sex and desire exist and floods from the lips of would be johns. Cruise bars that cater to the stand and pose crowd are populated by conservative types that are in denial and it's unsettling. It seems like being in a room full of paranoid schizophrenics. Most of these guys act like they're at a social not a bar. I see these people in denial casting out judgement. Is it evil to be open about what I want. I know they're there for sex. I am not closed to opportunity. I see them turn up their noses. What is it we want?

Must I have such guilt. Have I lowered myself to an unacceptable level. What is unacceptable. How far is how far. If I have gone too far why do I still think I can judge the people around me. I am at a loss.

bar story:

... Sometimes it drives me crazy to think of the things I've done. I see someone I've slept with, I run to my car, get on the highway and scream. Why did I do it!

I see the guy who just wanted to kneel at my cock and kiss and suck it. All right he wouldn't tell me what he was into. I just figured he was a closet case that wanted to get sucked off or to fuck something. He comes up to me and says, "you're the one" and convinces me to leave with him. He was the other kind of closet case that secretly worships cocks and just has to have it.

None of the above bothers me in particular but I'm not usually standing above a real butch guy while he's whimpering at my waist. Me telling him how much I like it, goading him, "yeah, suck that cock...". I do like it. Cock suckers are so rare. I just can't believe it couldn't be more rational. What turns you on? No one answers this is an adult way. "I like to be the driver", some say. Some wait til things get going and regurgitate bad dialogue from porno flicks.

That and 69/poetry about one nighters

The chill of winter is not here in november if your going through this rember something never let your guard down, never!
it's a slow night but the music is good finally in comes the one you want and sets the room on fire he's tall and handsome, his shirt is'nt buttoned he's walking the paces first; once, twice, thrice he settles down in front of you you like what you see, smiling helps this time he buys you a drink, conversation is spotty you like his face, his smile is perfect, his body something is wrong but you follow him home anyway with no time to waste the bedroom is the first stop tall, tan, and leggy with a big thick dick you feel the warmth of his skin, the touch he's got a hairy chest but he's shaved his entire lower body it's o.k. he's a swimmer, was a swimmer, still he wants to fuck right a way, he's going to get a condom the only thing we had talked about was witchcraft it didn't mean anything, doesn't, won't for his handsome the pain of anal sex is o.k. i lay back and raise my legs he plows right in pinning my legs he hammers hi smooth seven inch tool right in i can't hide the pain, my dick is limp he is fucking me like there's no tomorrow dressed for business i guess he really needed this i wonder does he remember my name he finishes, we sleep, can i stay until morning in the morning we have an hours oral sex session he seems to be enjoying himself but he rushes me i ask him for his number but he declines i have an irregular schedule he says, the door then closes

PARAPHERNALIA SHOW OR X-Girl?

████████ Clothes decided to go mod and hired Betsey Johnson to design their line. Their flagship store was Paraphernalia. Betsey hired Andy to make a party. Thus Andy Warhol Pop Artist became Andy Warhol Dress Salesman. He was a hired gun, silver sprayed George Raft. Andy came with a bunch of prepackaged superstars and the Velvets. Frug, frug, frug... Our job was to get America hot to trot. We staged a party in a fishbowl, a store window on Madison Avenue. Crowds gathered... The idea was that everybody who saw the party would buy clothes there. The girls showed the new fashion while they were dancing to the Velvet's music. It was cash in time at █████, 'We will take you to paradise, just be willing to pay the price.' We were the show, Andy's circus. That was the way Andy worked; he manufactured happenings out of the people around him. They were his raw material - glittering cannon fodder. He sold us as commercial art. He manufactured Candy Kisses, wrapped in silver... pull a piece of cellophane and out pops the star. The superstars were at Paraphernalia as media and the public, not the merchandise, was behind glass. Andy's own attitude toward clothing was pretty weird. He once asked me to go shopping with him. When I suggested that we should go take a look at one of the upperclass second hand clothing stores which were then getting fashionable, he said: 'Oh no Nat, never buy used clothing, it's like wearing somebody else's PERSONALITY! Except for this, what he wore was of no importance to him. His concept of fashion was what he got other people to wear. Andy had a big thing for Hershey's Chocolate Kisses, wrapped up in a silver package. Seeing people dressed up in silver, like at the Paraphernalia show, was like his fantasy come true. Plastic wrapped bodies, non-biodegradable, plastic pussies and made to order sex.

* A message to you rudy!

well, if you've been on the horn lately with your literary agent you know the market is inundated with young/gay/aids or gay/young/aids (as Puck says). Well here in the punky world of alternatives I say foo! Who cares if people aren't interested in poetry and prose. I am. I would never close an ear to Edna St. Vincent Millay or Diamanda Galas. So for you out there who will indulge me I give you a life's worth of words from my motherlino

It's not that I'm a slut, ba-by
But I do get good love.

My life's a coloured opera, ba-by
I sing where others stand

No this ain't La Traviata
And the blues don't make the man.

So if these ways
O-fend you

I don't give a damn.
Life is full

Of innuen-dos.

Why don't you just "kick the can!" Bitch.

So if these ways
O-fend you

I don't give a damn.

My life's a coloured opera, ba-by.

And I sing where others stand.

No this ain't La Traviata

And the blues don't make the man.

ENTRE NOUS

OKAY probably is you're thinking when I was the last time I performed supported a performance artist. For me it was 1987 when I played with this poetic good friend my very good he called my Orson the Coloured Opera →

→ when we sees this we'll hopefully get the grins. He was on his way to Paris.
To Paris. On his way to Paris!
My favorite poem by Orson is called "People". He is really great and probably the only true Jazz man I'll ever know.
Read his work with rhythm.

MISS CATALINA SPEAKS

Now I don't quite speak Greek
But I do speak in tongues.

It's not that I'm a slut, ba-by,
But I do get good love.

My life's a coloured opera, ba-by.
I sing where others stand.

No this ain't La Traviata
And the blues don't make the man.

So if these ways
Offend you

I don't give a damn.
Life is full

Of innuen-dos.

Why don't you just take yours and scram!

My life's a coloured opera, ba-by.
And I sing where others stand.

a kind of rant "!"

This is actually a page to commemorate a place I've had to go to all my life. It's always the same; smell, decor, drinks, bartenders, owner. If you know Houston it has never done anything to change or move on. I love #'s though.

I guess it will never change. Actually I'm grateful it was there. You see in the #'s world an alternative boy doesn't have to be exposed to straight or gay it doesn't matter. The weird thing is now straight boys actually go there to dance with each other. I get confused by what's happening but then I feel good that they're happy.

Poetry -

* what a groovy thing poetry is. If you would like to offer your criticisms an address will be provided at the very end. I will try to put dates and every thing. Unlike Orson's words my words are just there no rhyme or reason. My whole goal in life was just to walk the streets of the world and see the poetry.

one first bar story

beauty. hope. love. money. beauty comes first it is the most important. the key that evokes and provokes. nights stand on end and at dawn beauty eludes us.
beauty comes first. it passes. tears are shed. hope springs eternal sprouts wings and protects the innocent babes.
we stand innocent among these four walls. each beauty passing makes us weak at the knees. a battle of the wits occurs; beauty against beauty. no roof if strong enough to shield the rays of the moon. the moon has beams of light that make the animals react to one another.
one body of light reflects what dark bodies want to absorb.
voices sing to sharp beats of rythm. this is my world. this is my secret. i am a beauty. i realize i still have hope.
i start to cry. i do not know what this means.
on some nights i stand against four different walls.
sometimes i stand in the corner. hope and beauty. these two are a sure thing for me. i have seen their power diminish.
they return after a good rest. money and love are elusive.
never able to sustain beauty. passing through weaker visages coming to weak terms.

for Dennis Cooper

glorified drunken stupors and loose lips telling lies are things of the past.
thinking back on doing the hard stuff;
acid then coke with tequila shots.
boys were so pretty twinkling on crystal their bodies shimmering on crystal.
their bodies shimmering like diamonds from the dim light of the bars and back alleys black and blue circles under their eyes.
eyes with dilated pupils,
arms long and lanky,
ending with shaky hands on fire.
arms with veins slightly swollen.
glory days running here and there stirring the sauce.
bartenders with bourbon and coke ready.
going back and forth to the bathroom to do more coke with.
always a new boy to do more coke with.
summer days running down our backs like beads of sweat.
sweat and spit blending until climax.
days of neverending drunkenness.
boys with smooth tan bodies who are so willing.
boys with eyes so empty,
who smile so graciously.
eyes sweeping catching gazes.
ice melting making the liquor easier to bear.
hazy discussions with lots of sexual promises, ending with grinding pelvises.
high on coke still from three to six a.m., mouths on speed so hungry to taste the sex.
strands of long hair getting stuck,
in my stubble in my teeth.
long haired boys on pot and poppers, giving head like a kitten lapping milk, coming in and out of consciousness.
mouths too numb from too much,
of whatever to stop.
continuous play on fast forward.
boys so driven to have a good time,
saying again and again,
this is so good
this is so good

reasonable doubt

i don't know, i say how does anything begin? one day blends into the next, they all seem the same. the lights go dim. i ache. the sensation becomes numb. so i do something to try and feel like i'm alive. i do it again and again.

flaccid (a performance poem for two readers)

- floppy and phallic is a penis
for a disco Jesus.
cum on me and cum on me
your cunt a sacred heart.
daisy chain a crown for me pearl necklace me a rosary.
hail Mary - I'm Mary
-forgive me father - I have sinned
-the Father - 1st base
-the Son - 2nd base
-the Holy Ghost - 3rd base
-sometimes i feel like a motherless child laying on Mary's lap in Calvin Klein underwear I ask forgiveness or at least look like it.
hollow me, hollow my bones blow that hymn through my spinal column be child and wash my bare feet
I your lips
for those lips
my lips meet, on my knees
-Joseph was married once before Mary she is the devil
he is the savior, so give me him and I will go down on my knees and pray...
-cum on me and cum on me
white light floods my mouth
-an annunciation has been made
-bare me child and kiss my feet
-disrobe my body
-so now i'm complete
-so staid is a silent chapel
-and God is my witness
-and God is on top of me
-bare breasted, bear witness.
oh dear St. Peter take sword in hand, and say, "here I will build my church!"

sometimes i feel like a motherless child
so I walk a good cobblestone road and I stop off in each church to prey to the Madonna
- she knows
-I light a candle though I'm not catholic I think "yo, Jesus was Jewish and so am I" besides God is in everyone God knows I try that too!
Madonna, I hear her sing:
-"I light this candle and watch it glow tears on my pillow
and if there is a Christ, he'll come tonight and help me prey for Spanish eyes"
-and Giovanni's eyes blaze through me and water sports is a term never coined, by John the Baptist
oh my dear friend Sebastian
if I could have only pierced your Orpheuses, would we both be saints now

sometimes I feel like a motherless child.

SUMMER

from NEW LINE CINEMA

Flaccid was one performance poem from a show called "Fuckacted" I starred in with Houston's premiere performance artist Alicia X.

It was a particularly buff period in my life. I enjoyed corsettes, bras, under wear, anything tight. I lived in Dallas and travelling as a performance artist was very glamorous.

however my best friend thinks his hair is slightly greasy. it hangs in clumps about his face, his ears, his nape of neck. his brows are full and dark and furrowed. underneath ~~the~~ his eyes still and frozen, they don't move. they don't blink. i can see his nostrils opening and closing so i know he's breathing. still, his mouth oh so very tempting but always sealed shut. ~~he wears~~ his skin like a shroud so pale and unblemished. God was here it says, a body of sinewy marbled form. his shoulders are supported by biceps so strong on elbows, slightly bent from wide forearms, joined by strong hands spread, with skin sensuous fingers spread apart supporting all this so far on a dresser that stands in front of the mirror. his chest is pumped, clean of any hair, two tiny pink nipples rest on two mounds quietly. i trace the center of his body down to where his navel exists amongst a gentle roll of flesh. his buttocks, hairy legs, and other ~~genitals~~ are concealed beneath a pair of smoke smelly jeans that are unbuttoned and ready.

it's almost morning now, the rays of sun are straining their way through the slit in the curtain. the light is filtering through the sheer material past the heavy fabric. the most beautiful boy ~~you~~ can imagine stares straight ahead at himself in the mirror. he's perfect in the morning. oh well, he's perfect all the time. he's standing mesmerized with himself. i wonder what is he looking for. the room seems cold. the automatic air conditioner hums then rattles making its presence known. maybe it's time to get up, to shower. nobody bothers to check the time. things are happening now, ~~dark~~.

the bed sheets are in various folds. blankets are spread and separated. someone didn't sleep too well. on one side of the bed i'm leaning on an elbow. i'm trying to prop myself up to look at him. maybe he'll make the first move. my other hand is hidden under the covers with the rest of my body. i'm candidly fondling myself. i'm thinking he knows what i'm doing but probably doesn't mind. ~~this is incredibly awkward for me~~.

the next words spoken fall from my lips. " ~~he~~ it's not that big of a deal", i say. first his eyes start to look at me and then with tremendous effort his whole body begins to turn to face me. when the moves are complete i can see all this is taking too much effort. the body with his form climbs on to the bed. his jeans slip down a bit and i can see his thick patch of pubes. his hands, those fingers are beginning to reach out ~~for~~ for me. before he can complete this maneuver i stop playing with myself and also reach out to him. i pause. i rethink my body language.

i lay back on the pillow letting the arm i was leaning on extend out, my other arm falls across my chest, my eyes close. at these times too much knowledge is needed, too much experience i don't have. the last thing i remember before closing my eyes are the blotchy patterns the spackle on the ceiling makes. i want to remember what he looks like, where we are in position to each other, what happened last night. i can't remember him at all and i don't know how we've gotten to this point.

suddenly i can feel his head settling in the crux of my armpit. his body is close to mine. i can really smell him now. i guess i smell as bad as he does. i turn my head to look at him, my nose gets all smooshed, i open my eyes. i'm so close to his flesh i can see every pore. i exhale onto his neck. the warm breathe creates goose flesh on his neck. it gives me some sort of relief to think i've done something to effect, change, or disturb him. he lets out a moan or sigh. we are two people together in this situation, but ~~what~~ what events really lead to us ~~bangalore~~ ~~exposure~~.

2 where we R now.

Sucks.

Impressions...like dents in the air.

They take a long time to fade, and eventually the air gets so cluttered up with these...dents - that you can't see anything, and you don't want to, because things that happened a long time ago are so much more interesting, and they're clear, like bubbles in the glass.

But eventually there's so many bubbles in the glass that it just turns white, and then you have to go away, and sit in a dark place for a while, and breathe, and when you're done breathing you come out in the world and the air - well, it's hard to describe, it's like a...like a snow-dome, that's been sitting on the shelf for a long time, and even the tiniest tiniest flakes have fallen to the bottom, and you can see every little notch on the reindeers' antlers. It's like a morning with no wind.

And when you move - or someone else moves, because you're waiting, you're trying to just hold yourself there, hold the moment, and the move stays there, before and after, it stays in the air, it makes a dent, it's all there - then you're just like...well....welcome back.

This is something my pen pal Mike sent me. You'd be jealous if I told you how great and understanding Mike has been to me this year. All his words are extremely important to me but these I'll share

I feel empowered with the caging anger of a guy who has recently had his life support cut off i do not know why this happens we who have spoken
some who had hidden for so long and found no relief i do not understand the next breathe that is not there we struggle to finally realize our reason for living it takes so long to find the voice from within it takes a long time to figure out the argument.
the side you will take finally you stand your ground you decide this is my calling; the reason i am here, this is what i am meant to do but then the ball is rolling life itself is distinguished, i mean, totally the end !
it could be you !
you could die in one second what would it all mean
will there be anyone there to replace you, or continue what took so long to find to Randy Fields i am angry for you now you are now one of the many will your finger pointed at the guilty be in vain ?
i did not always agree with the direction of your anger every word every action might make a difference if someone on this earth could stop this disease no price would be too high what matters is you would be alive you could be here tomorrow and the next days that are yours would be.
how can someone just be gone ?
death seemed to be so gradual,
like leaves falling in preparation for the winter

i can live with that cycle of nature but when the sun shines and the rain falls
i do not understand
i wonder if anyone who is not HIV positive, knows the fear of another AIDS death you will suddenly stop breathing there will be no indication of death i do not accept this, how could anyone else?

(t really sucks when people die of AIDS. I know why but it still dissapoints me when people die.

inquisitively, imperatively
i pray in tears to thee visions of saint peter bring me sight of death of blight
i believe in christ
i have cried every night instinctively, desperately i pray in chants of j.d. salinger visions of clouds pass quickly not linger one day i saw st. matthew he was black, the bible never mentions black or white every day i wait for the next i pray every night for tomorrow
i believe in christ
lord jesus christ have mercy on my soul i cry myself to sleep most nights i pray for the next day to be over one night in a dream st. peter visited me, a night in the last year of my life i have lived hard and full and gaven love for strife i had many prayers answered i believe in jesus christ when i was 17 he spoke to me i am not a prophet
i know not what god is or if heaven exist there is a god because i have answers i cry almost every night determineabley there are answers made clear by someone who hears me cry someone spoke to me before i died, almost died i cry when i'm alone but i'm not alone drudgery and dreams have come the same when i am alone i cry, i am happy sometimes when there is a voice i know i know something different i know a lot of things are different i go to bed each night before dawn the clouds never linger softly, faintly in the distance words from a song i heard long ago what have I done for love can I not regret such actions now what would it be; love or life the smell rising off your flesh things I ask of you when we're alone your sexy smile, the look in your eyes too much is beauty not for one man to own oh, but I know I can't own you in this world nothing can bind us together

I want you in my life but how do I make it so for Jeremy Collete (still)

When at first i see you try, I try again
the sweetest thing for me is you you fulfill my sweet tooth
Oh, how I love you
to see you again and again how now i long to drink of thee i wish you to be with me inside me
inside my heart pounds thinking of love for you I cry when I'm with you, I cry away from you I love you I do
when at last I see you
a tear will flow
I can only think to be near you
I can not say I love you because you do not know
Oh, how i love you
despite the love we have made so many times in a row it kills me because you can not know I love you and have not told you though, if you love me too let it be so this painful ignorance we share makes me giggle and cry in your presence in your arms so gently, laying still I know love is there.

for Jonathon Coette

Youth virility and arrogance hanging before my face
like a door with a heavy knocker
i can not lift the swinger
"you put me in an awkward situation"
"sort of like my heart is with you not my body"
"silvaden is a cream that will leave no scar"
"but baby, you're a star"
"remember how it used to be between us ?" before or after Joan left that is what i keep telling you, if it can be us than we can be happy
don't you remember in the beginning in the beginning i was hurt from another we found a new bond as men we share i forgot about the boy and accepted the man our fight is your own, you can not mature the boy lives on inside you, besides, besides you are still so young, so luscious, so fair here r 3 good examples of my broken heart. A Swan song ↓ from another show. It was cool because Devin was there with his friends but only he and I knew the piece was a reference to our time together it was titled "Vact."

ode to Devin Borden

Words dispelled what actions motivated. Going down on you riding up elevators. Shafts and shifts and you couldn't embrace me. Incongruent reactions motivated me to a higher class insanity, but you could not accept me or what I wanted too give you. Desperate in midnights loneliness whether I love you or not I wanted to love you. Indecisively ignorant you wanted to love somebody.

On a brilliantly sunny afternoon I stood above you. The sun splintered. Two fish swam in a bowl that was to be surreal. Two fish were indifferent to eggbeaters. Incorrigible, fallable, passively you gave in for one afternoon. A short passionate breathe filled my lungs. Struggling at each vocal attempt. I juggled backwards swallowing hooks and balancing books, tensely baiting an embiciles circus. I cry for the loss my heart feels.

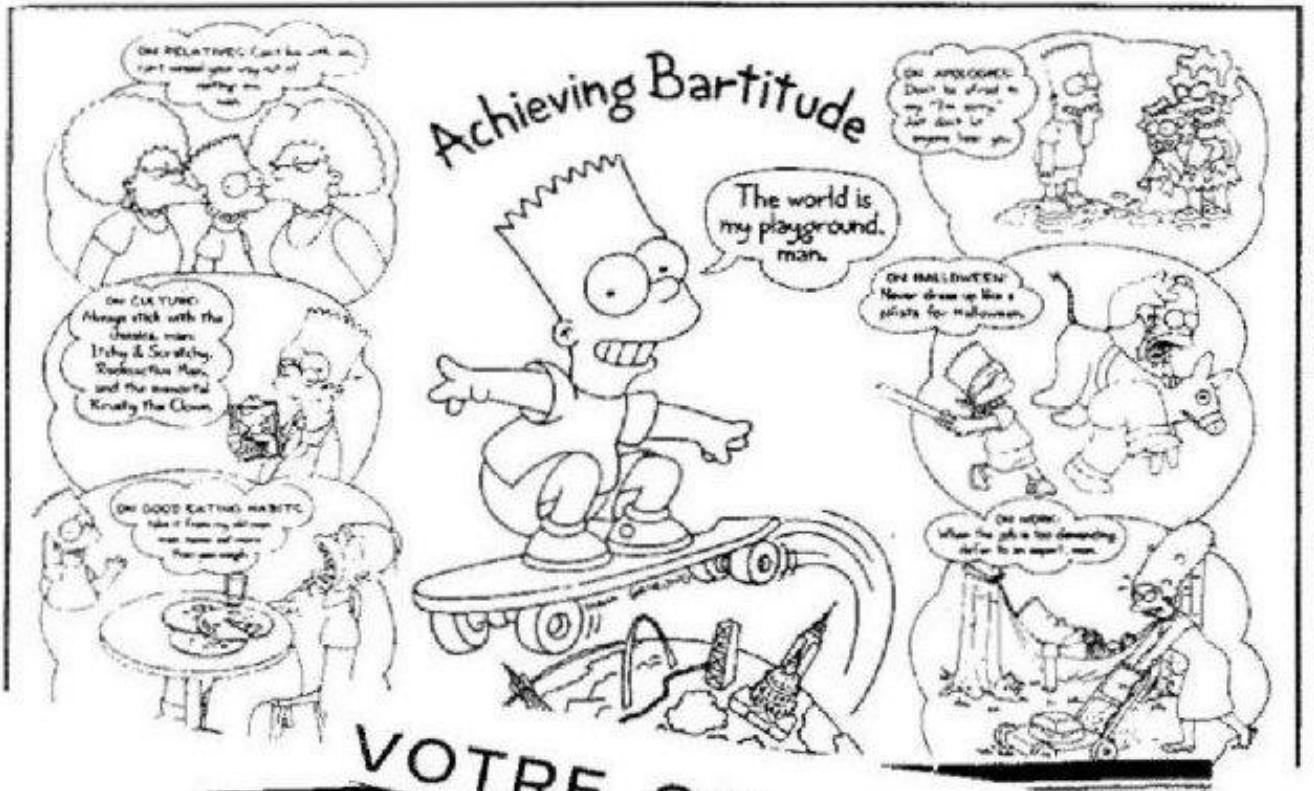

On pine floors I pinned you knowing the pain would bring you pleasure. At last you felt you loved me. I ask only for that feeling. I ask only for feeling. Beauty banishes what common looks cling to. Like knives each complement received brings blood in tears from arteries to eyes.

If confidence would have persisted my offering would have answered your prayers, but for you there is no God you are your only God.

Hungry for intellectual stimulous you haggard your handsome and ugly your vanity. Though your Dorian Gray is a woman's murky ovum you are none the less a dandy. Fortune sensuously emerges for your forever youth. Truth if truth be known; social is a mountain you climb with an elk's grace.

And social is a mountain I have climbed to the last grip of the rope, which is the last grip to my ill fate. My glass head has shattered, my eyes are bluer than yours because I am blue. Manifested in appropriation none of this makes sense and I love someone who doesn't exist but never did.

When I broke up with him I vowed never speak to him again that was 86-87 and It took 3 years to get over. I didn't sleep with anyone again or 5 years. Just FYI.

here it is time to say goodbye.
I hope you enjoyed this time together.
I encourage you to write me. Recently I asked people to write about The Smith's "That Joke isn't funny anymore"
The responses included "that queer song" or "that is a really old song". It meant something special to me and as time goes on the Smiths are still very prolific(?). However its a new era, a new time, and most importantly time for a new voice.
