Blake Lewis

Growing up with a gay best friend Blake Lewis never thought twice about equality. "Everyone should be able to love whoever they want." Blake Lewis tells AbOUT magazine in an exclusive interview.

"Everyone should be able to love whoever they want. I am a firm believer of that and was raised to be accepting of everyone."

The runner-up on the sixth season of American Idol hits Rainbow on The Green in downtown Houston this year.

Blake is a very relaxed person when we spoke of his musical goals. "I have met so many of them already." He tells us about his goals. "Another would be to be on Broadway."

Admitting that the only new love in his life is "my new album," Blake tells us he spent the last two years handcrafting his album, writing and producing the entire cd.

We must also note that Lewis was named number five in the list of the ten sexiest Idol contestants ever. We sure are excited to see this!

by Blake Maples

Michelle Chamuel

When Usher gives advice you listen! "Listen to yourself and Breathe!" Michelle tells AbOUT Magazine. This beautiful former 'Voice' contestant that is openly out with her partner Mary. She admits that talking to the media about her personal life is a struggle.

Michelle Chamuel is one of the headliners that Discovery Green's 'Rainbow on The Green' will showcase this next week for kick off to Pride in Houston.

"Go Down Signing" is a song that has a bit of a complex history she says. "Stemming from the anti-bullying concept Theo Katzman and Tyler Duncan conceived while writing the original track before I was brought in" she stated! "The song's meaning has developed over time. But to sum it all up in one chunk: this song is about finding the strength to be yourself and loving that."

Derrick Barry

Derrick Barry returns to Houston this Pride season as one of the co-headliners for Rainbow on The Green. Derrick, a female impersonator and cast member of Divas Las Vegas at the Quad. But might be better known as one of the greatest Britney Spears impersonators in the world!

Being Britney isn't easy according to Derrick. "The dancing is always the hardest for me, because she has been training since she was like 2 or maybe 3 years old. I'll just watch her videos and study them and do the dance until I feel like it's perfect enough to go onstage. It's like impersonating Janet Jackson—you have to dance. And if you're not dancing then people are going to be like, "Uh, what are they doing?"

Make sure to catch Derrick's amazing show this year.

LIVING THE RAINBOW. THIS PRIDE

By Chuck Rocafort

In his gripping trilogy, Living The Rainbow, Hans M. Hirschi presents three very different and deeply moving portraits of gay family life. While each is a complete story on its own, they share common themes, exploring the devastating impact of death, the deep wounds left by abuse, the damage wreaked by homophobia, and, ultimately, the power of love to overcome and heal.

The compilation is comprised of Hans M. Hirschi's bestselling novels "Family Ties", "Jonathan's Hope" & "The Opera House".

What makes Living the Rainbow the perfect summer beach read?

I like to think the trilogy will make readers laugh, cry, and reflect on how they live their lives and with whom they will spend their futures.

How do the books reflect your own experience as a gay man?

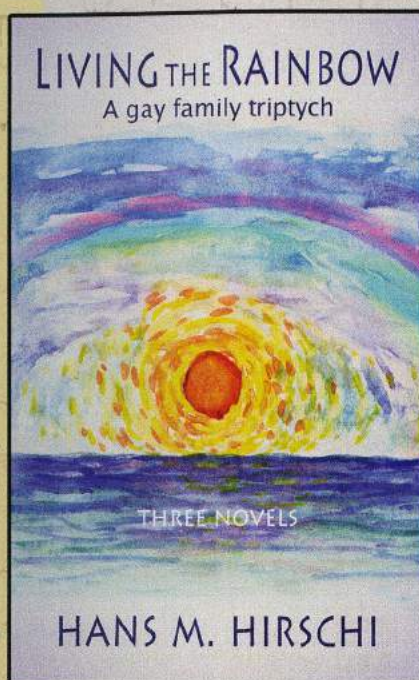

"Family Ties" draws heavily on personal experiences. Close friends may recognize some of the stories in it. In the other novels, my experience is woven in but more from a philosophical point of view. I reflect on things that were on my mind while writing. Things like: how does one start fresh after a relationship breaks down? What makes relationships last? How will it be to have children?

Do you intentionally keep the sexuality G-rated?

In my stories, sex serves a purpose of bringing the story forward. My novels aren't meant to be erotica or romance.

How have gay novels changed in the last few years?

There has been a move away from portraying gay men as lonely characters. Today's gay novels tend to focus on social issues as well as love and romance. I think that's healthy. I only wish gay fiction would find an audience with heterosexual readers, the way TV shows like Modern Family and Glee have. It would help to deepen their understanding on how gays live.

What's next?

I'm working on my fourth novel, about a boy in the 1980s who sets out to see the world. The book deals with gay life from the period, including HIV/AIDS and coming out and how these issues affected gay men.

Living The Rainbow is available on Amazon.com.

2014 Grand Marshals

J.D. Doyle

JD Doyle's involvement with the Queer Voices radio show, on KPFT, in a way was accidental. Back in late 1999 he got into the habit of calling Jimmy Carper, producer of the show After Hours, nudging him to play more music by LGBT artists, as they just do not get the exposure they deserve.

Jimmy finally just said, "Why don't you come on and play some," and he did. That resulted in his hosting a segment on Queer Voices. The monthly show is Queer Music Heritage, and it takes a music history/entertainment approach.

Now in its 14th year, on the huge QMH website all past shows are archived, along with hundreds of pages of photos of the artists and recordings. From AIDS, to Drag Kings, to Same-Sex Marriage, Women's Music, Transgender Artists, Female Impersonation, Harvey Milk, Stonewall, and on and on.

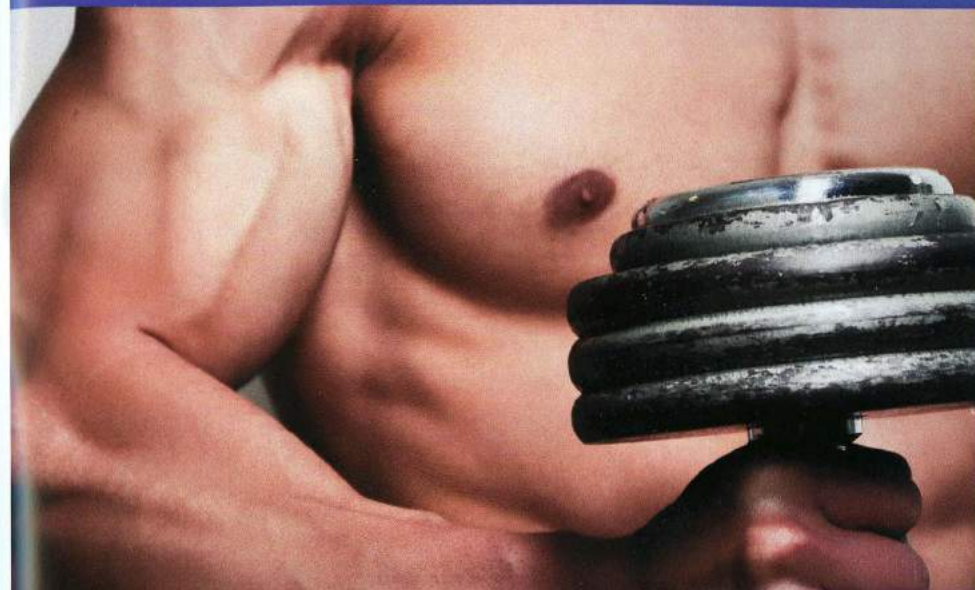

The website has become basically the only source on the internet of information on the overall contributions music has added to our LGBT culture. From 2001 through 2010, he was also co-producer of Audiofile, a segment airing on This Way Out on over 200 stations globally. And in January of 2010 he founded the show OutRadio, to give exposure to mostly new LGBT recordings.

A recent project is QMH101, a lesson created for use in University courses on LGBT studies, where information on our music culture up to now has been essentially missing. In the Spring of 2012 the Committee on LGBT History (San Francisco) presented him with the Allan Bérubé Prize, which recognizes Outstanding work in public community-based LGBT History. In the Fall of 2013 he produced a benefit CD, called "House Blend," for the Houston Transgender Foundation Building Fund.

He has two new websites this year, one at www.HoustonLGBTHistory.org to share information on local history, such as including downloadable PDF files of all the Pride Guides, and info on LGBT bars and businesses of the past, and quite a bit more. A new project he is excited about is an online statewide database of obituaries, mostly from "This Week In Texas" and other publications.

The data of course heavily reflects the "AIDS years" and he views the site as honoring those we have lost and providing the information to those left behind. It's a growing site with over 4500 entries so far and can be found at www.TexasObituaryProject.org.

Is Raph Solo Man Enough?

Euro pop star Raph Solo has been called the gay Julio Iglesias. In his latest release, the passionate crooner with the giant guns and chiseled abs explores the "You want to be my boyfriend but have sex with other people?" conundrum.

"Monogamy in the 21st Century" is part music video, part talk show, part therapy session. Playing on Youtube now, it features four songs – "It's Not Gonna Work 4 Me", "Exit", "Lonely Playboy" and "Let's Make Love" – all from Solo's new album, Am I Too Much?

Do you really believe men were meant to be monogamous?

I am a man and I am monogamous. I believe in the ability to be monogamous when a man makes the choice to be. It is a choice.

Why is monogamy so important to you?

Monogamy is about mutual respect. If I choose to be with someone, I want to focus exclusively on him. In return, I deserve to be treated the same.

Your album is Am I Too Much? Are you?

Maybe the question should be am I enough? I don't think it's wrong to want to feel like I am enough for one person.

What demands do you place on a lover?

None. I let my man act how he will. If it feels right for me to continue with him, based on how he treats me, then I do. Why would I want to demand to be desired? It should be something that happens organically.

Are you a sexual person?

I believe sex is a physical expression of love so yes, I am.

Is a relationship over once the intimacy dies?

For me, a relationship is not over until a person chooses to stop trying. If intimacy dies, it can be brought back to life. Love was made to be resurrected. I believe in second, third and even fourth chances.

What's next?

I don't know what the future holds. I am an artist that is inspired by experiences. I live day by day.
