ESTELLE

Music lovers are probably most familiar with the West London singer and rapper thanks to worldwide hit "American Boy," which paired her with Kanye West. It earned the duo a Grammy. But she's been plenty busy since that 2006 breakout, thank you very much. Fourth studio album "True Romance" was released earlier this year and warmly received by critics. She voices Garnet in the animated series "Steven Universe," which has earned her a whole new legion of fans. This year, she enjoyed a boost thanks to a role on the smash TV series "Empire." Estelle teamed up with openly gay heartthrob Jussie Smollett for the song "Conqueror," which became the show's highest-charting song on iTunes. The uplifting track is also quickly, and appropriately, becoming a Pride anthem.

JESSICA SUTTA

Cats, as the saying goes, have nine lives. And that's true for Jessica Sutta. The singer and dancer was captain of the Miami Heat cheerleading squad before purring through a slew of pop hits as part of the Pussycat Dolls. Admit it—at least one of their songs is still on your iPhone. Sutta left the group in 2010 and quickly established herself as a solo dance diva. She scored big hits on Billboard's dance chart with singles "Show Me," "Lights Out" and Paul Van Dyk's "White Lies." Sutta has also scored chart-toppers alongside Dave Aude, including "Make It Last" and this year's "I'm Gonna Get You." Current track "Let It Be Love" is racing up the charts and destined to fill dance floors. A solo album, "Feline Resurrection," is due soon.

BIGFREEDIA

Get ready to bounce, y'all. New Orleans' Queen Diva is one of the breakout stars of the past few years. And she's been preparing for it a long time. The gender-bending performer began as a local NOLA act more than a decade ago, rising through the ranks and shaking that ass at every opportunity. Soon enough, people were paying attention. Freedia set the Guinness World Record for the Most People Twerking Simultaneously long before Miley Cyrus and Julian Serrano turned it into a career move. Fuse reality show "Big Freedia: Queen of Bounce" took the diva to a whole new level. She teamed up with RuPaul for the twerkalicious "Peanut Butter." And an inspirational memoir, "God Save the Queen Diva," is due in July. All hail!
