SESSION

What you are about to read are real bitches, sent in by real readers, about gay life's little annoyances, and the big ones, too. So what's your bitch?

Got a bitch?
call 1-800-858-8088
or e-mail
editor@eclipsemag.net

I think it's very telling that "Bitch Session" is needed at all. This city is filled with hostile and uptight people (and not only gays) who are indeed worthy of this section. I can't wait to finish school and get out of here!

This is directed at a doorman at a certain bar who thinks he owns the bar and treats people in a rude and arrogant way. He needs to get some customer relations skills.

Instead of providing readers with a productive, positive, helpful forum to really offer advice, you print the rantings and ravings of readers. This is the 21st century! We in the GLBT community need to remain together and build on the slow but sure progress that we are making!

Maybe if gays weren't always acting like they are "recruiting" other people into their weird lifestyle, people would at least ignore them. To see a couple of gays acting like a "couple" is sickening. They seem to have more time on their hands than heterosexuals. I mean, you don't see us marching for our rights.

Burned by a cigar or cigarette? Move your self-involved, self-important ass out of the way for 10 seconds so I can get by, especially if I have said "excuse me" more than once. After that, you deserve what you get.

"The Cosby Show" depicted a normal family? Try "The Simpson's."

You know, after going out to the bars about 5,000 times and meeting only low quality, brain dead men, I thought I'd finally take a stab at the online personals. There are just as many low quality, brain dead idiots there, too.

Men lie!

I don't mind sharing our dance floors with straights, but can you at least stay sober enough not to treat the place like a mosh pit? The next time I get slammed by a breeder, he (or she) is going down!

Being a SoBe transplant, damn I am hot! I guess I could never see that until I moved here.

If you're going to run along 10th Street, for chrissakes put on a shirt! I'm going to crash

To all those little boys I treated like royalty and who never called me back: Muscled men have feelings, too, you heartless little pricks!

To the guy I tricked with whose parents showed up in his bedroom the next morning to wake him up for breakfast (they didn't "know" he was gay!): Come out, get a grip. Who the hell gives their parents their keys anyway? Oh, and, how was breakfast?

Whatever good there is to get, get it and feel good.

To the guys who advertise in the personals as "GWM looking for discretion": If you are in that much of a dire strait, maybe you should come out of the closet and live your real life as a gay man, instead of as a sniveling wimp without the self-confidence to admit who and what you really are.

Why do we foster a culture of wild promiscuity, and then wonder with surprise at how hard it is for guys to stay faithful? We create our own drama.

I can't stand it when people say that being a homosexual is a "lifestyle." Like I went down to my local Kmart and picked out my choices from the Martha Stewart Collection.

To the "Truth in Advertising" bitch: Contrary to popular belief, masculine vs. feminine behavior is not directly proportional to a preferred position in anal sex. If you believe that, you're just reinforcing stereotypes and rendering yourself (and the rest of us) predictable.

twin lesbian rockers hit the bigtime with latest CD release

by lawrence ferber

Sophomore albums either suck, transcend or exist on the same level as their predecessors. Yet always they signal some sort of change within the band or individual that crafted them. In the case of young Canadian twins Tegan and Sara, changes have indeed come about with sophomore LP release "If It Was You" on Vapor Records.

First and foremost?

"Apparently we're getting cuter," Sara professes. "We met up with all these people haven't seen in a long time from the industry last night and everyone said we're sexy. I'm all over it! Maybe our groupies will get cuter, too!"

Truth be told, this is actually their third album. Their first, 1998's "Under Feet Like Ours," was self-released. And appearances aside, the identical, openly lesbian twins have crafted an unquestionably more mature, fully-realized album this time around, capitalizing upon their tasty brand of poppy-whilst-rockin' tune-smithing with deeper lyrics and arrangements.

"Each year you grow a little bit, develop a bit more, your efficiency and playing your instrument gets better," Sara opines. "Your grasp two for one on what it is to really write a song. I think this album is definitely a progressive step for us. It sounds different, bigger. And it was the first record we made that we didn't cry during."

That distinction didn't apply to post-recording, however. At least for Tegan.

"I am less of an emotional disaster than I used to be and I feel Tegan has picked up the slack now," Sara admits. "Tegan can be very hysterical. We just came up to Toronto to do a couple of shows and the night we arrived, Tegan and I were sort of bitching back and forth at each other. I went to the shower and thought 'whatever, it's not such a big deal,' and when I got out she was hysterically sobbing on the floor."

Born in Calgary, Canada, September 19th, 1980 (Tegan is 8 minutes senior), the twins got hooked on music at 15. Mom's boyfriend left his guitar where Sara could get to it.

Later, they found themselves on a magazine cover, touring with the likes of Kinnie Starr and Paula Cole, and before you know it, landing a four record deal with Vapor Records, a division of Warner Brothers. Their first proper album, 2000's "This Business of Art," won critical kudos and an opening slot on tour with Neil Young and The Pretenders. They've also performed at Lilith Fair and shared bills with Rufus Wainwright.

A highlight from the tour was playing basketball with The Pretenders' frontswoman Chrissie Hynde — and beating her.

"She was a little feisty about that," Sara notes. "I didn't write it down but I swear to God one night she called us 'little shits.' She was super-cool."

When it came time to record "If It Was You," the Vancouver-based sisters felt a few sophomore jitters.

"I think it's more relevant when you've actually sold a lot of records," Sara opines. "If you sell 10 million and then have to do it again it's pretty terrifying. But we have a good following in Canada and a small one in the states. We're going to do what we want and either take the fan base and build on it or not, which there's nothing we can do about."

The sisters both scribe songs, and say little blood is shed when deciding which ones make it to the recording studio. Tegan is the more prolific tunesmith apparently, reeling off a bevy of songs regularly. Sara, meanwhile, "writes five songs a year," says Tegan, "but they're the five that automatically get on the record, without question."

"I always secretly wondered if I could be a [book] writer," Sara admits.

On the topic of girlfriends, both Tegan and Sara have one (not the same one, mind you). Sara has known hers since high school, and the pair have been together four years so far. She admits that she is more a fan of Sara the person than Sara the recording artist.

"My girlfriend doesn't like our music, really," Sara smiles. "That's why I like her. She likes more electronic music and hip-hop - Bjork and Janet Jackson."

Of course, while they're both partnered, that newfound "sexy" status will surely affect their gigs as well — and could lead to some future songs. Not about not cheating on their girlfriends, though, but sibling rivalry.

"This guy came up to us at our show the night before last," Sara recalls, "and told Tegan that if she was looking for someone to marry, he's waiting and willing. Apparently she said no and then he came and asked me! That annoys me! I thought it was so cute [when he asked me] so I was flirting and enjoyed the attention. And then later I found out he asked Tegan first and I was like 'that's not fucking fair.'"

CALL FOR SPECIALS & DETAILS

by charlene lichtenstein

Talkative Mercury retrogrades for the next four weeks. Don't sign important papers, don't get into arguments, don't arrange important interviews, don't rely on the mail and don't sit around waiting for the phone to ring. Let actions speak louder and prouder than words.

ARIES (MARCH 21 - APRIL 20)

Miffed at partners? Don't breathe a word about it while Mercury is retrograde, Rainbow Ram. Your heated words will crisp the stewpot. If you are on the prowl, take a breather from the hunt.

TAURUS (APRIL 21 - MAY 21)

Retro Mercury throws a wrench in any job or major project. But work is not the only area affected; Mercury gives gay Bulls a twisted ankle on the treadmill or boot in the patoot during aerobics. Warn your personal trainer that you may take the month off.

GEMINI (MAY 22 - JUNE 21)

What you thought was enjoyable could bring you stress. Overdoing too much of a good thing may be part of the problem. The other part may be a total misreading of the clues.

CANCER (JUNE 22 - JULY 23)

Conversations with family go nowhere and grand-scale moves or any major renovations take their own strange course. But you can't rule your life according to the vagrancies of Mercury. Do what you have to do and plan it carefully, pink Crab.

LEO (JULY 24 - AUG. 23)

Proud Lions want to let loose a roar or two, but opinions may be misunderstood or misdirected. Try not to sign important papers. The closest you should get to fine print is a good book. Read it until this nasty aspect passes.

VIRGO (AUG. 24 - SEPT. 23)

Don't listen to the advice of others, queer Virgin, particularly when it concerns finances. Mercury is retrograde and puts a mean crimp in your bank account. Try instead to find a well-endowed benefactor and enjoy reviewing your assets together.

LIBRA (SEPT. 24 - OCT. 23)

Gay Libras proudly dance in center stage in unzipped pantaloons. Blame it on retro Mercury. Don't arrange major interviews now if possible. You could have food in your teeth when you smile and a foot in your mouth when you talk.

SCORPIO (OCT. 24 - NOV. 22)

Retro Mercury places a burden on the most sacrificing proud Scorps — a rarity. Your best volunteer efforts may not have the intended effect or may be too off-kilter to succeed. Donate money to charitable causes instead of elbow grease.

SAGITTARIUS (NOV. 23 - DEC. 22)

Don't rely on the advice of friends, no matter how well intentioned. Retro Mercury does not further the cause of camaraderie. Are group goals in jibe with your personal goals? Turn a jaundice eye to organizations that promise you the world, queer Archer.

CAPRICORN (DEC. 23 - JAN. 20)

Queer Goats could saw through carefully constructed rungs on the corporate ladder with a foul comment during retro Mercury. Watch your words; even your best compliments come out as screeds.

AQUARIUS (JAN. 21 - FEB. 19)

Expect travels to take a weird turn when Mercury retrogrades Aqueerius. Confirm reservations in advance, and even then prepare for a surprise. You might find the loveliest things in unexpected places.

PISCES (FEB. 20 - MARCH 20) Did you remember the candles, the wine, the lighting, the music ... oops! the lover? With retro Mercury the path of true sex may have it's "clip your toenails while sitting in your dirty underwear" moment.

The Four Feathers

The son of a general, British officer Harry Faversham (Heath Ledger) realizes he never wanted a military career and resigns his commission just as England goes to war against Sudanese Arabs in 1884. His fiancée (Kate Hudson), best friend (Wes Bentley), and two comrades-in-arms present him with four white feathers symbolizing their belief in his cowardice. To make amends, Ledger heads to the Sudan and works secretly to protect his regiment from certain slaughter. This tale of redemption is a historical epic, love story, action movie and allegory all at the same time. Director Shekhar Kapur makes effective use of the same over-the-top theatrics he did with another period piece, "Elizabeth," in several amazing large-scale battle scenes. With solid performances and Robert Richardson's gorgeous desert photography, this handsome film is a rip-roaring adventure.

Grade: B+

Kinsey Scale: 1 (Bentley played the drug-dealing videographer with a closeted military dad in "American Beauty." Hudson played a lesbian in Robert Altman's ensemble comedy "Dr. T and the Women.")

Over the course of 11 years, photo developer Sy Parrish (Robin Williams) has become obsessed with his favorite clients, the Yorkins - wife Nina (Connie Nielsen), husband Will (Michael Vartan), and son Jake (Dylan Smith). Williams imagines himself to be their Uncle Sy, but his fantasy world crumbles when a roll of film reveals that the Yorkins aren't the perfect family after all. Director Mark Romanek avoids turning this creepy movie about obsession into just another mad stalker thriller by keeping the focus squarely on Williams. With a modicum of movement, dialogue and interaction, Williams creates a memorable portrait of a desperately lonely man eager for someone to notice him.

Although the other actors do good work, "One Hour Photo" is a virtual one-man show for Williams, and it just might be his finest hour.

Grade: B+

Kinsey Scale: 1 (Williams played Nathan Lane's husband in "The Birdcage," donned drag as "Mrs. Doubtfire," and had a cameo as John Jacob Jingleheimer Schmidt in "To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything, Julie Newmar." Lesbian producer Christine Vachon also made the gay-themed "Boys Don't Cry" and "I Shot Andy Warhol.")

My Big Fat Greek Wedding

Thirty-year-old Toula (Nia Vardalos) is stuck in a rut, still living with her tradition-bound Greek parents (Lainie Kazan, Michael Constantine) and working as a waitress at their suburban Chicago restaurant. After a complete makeover, she takes a job at her aunt's (Andrea Martin) travel agency, where she meets the man of her dreams (John Corbett). The film perpetuates some tired ethnic stereotypes, and the story unfolds like a series of disconnected comic skits. Still, the self-deprecating cynicism, caustic wisecracks and amusing running gags eventually override the film's lack of originality and clarity. This boisterous movie is like a really tacky wedding - embarrassing, but fun nevertheless.

Grade: B

Kinsey Scale: 2 (Director Joel Zwick helmed most episodes of TV's drag sitcom "Bosom Buddies." Producers Gary Goetzman and Tom Hanks worked as executive producer and star respectively of the AIDS drama "Philadelphia." Kazan played Bette Midler's mother in "Beaches" and co-starred with Divine in the campy western "Lust in the Dust." Andrea Martin was a transgender rock singer's tour manager in "Hedwig and the Angry Inch" and played a number of male characters as part of the "SCTV" troupe.)

Kate Hudson and the always-stunning stud Heath Ledger heat up 'The Four Feathers,' a period piece about romance, history and cowardice.

Barbershop

In this urban comedy set on Chicago's South Side, Calvin (Ice Cube) inherits his late father's struggling barbershop, on which he can't make the mortgage. He reluctantly sells to loan shark Lester (Keith David), who plans on converting it into a strip club. When a pair of crooks (Anthony Anderson, Lahmard Tate) steal an ATM from the convenience store next door, Ice Cube sees a possible solution to his financial troubles. Most of the film's humor revolves around the barbershop's quirky employees, because the burglary plot line is little more than a belabored running gag. The characters are mostly stereotypes, some of the acting is stiff, and much of the dialogue comes off as poorly ad-libbed - but the film does have some decent yucks. It's a close shave, but "Barbershop" manages to be marginally funny.

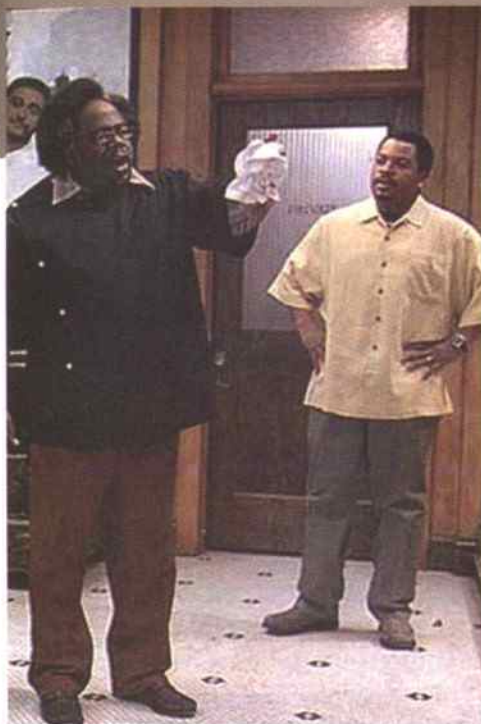

Grade: C+

Kinsey Scale: 1 (Cedric the Entertainer plays semi-retired barber Eddie, who rants hilariously on a number of topics, including a brief mention of gay characters on TV sitcoms. In general, though, the movie is more interested in booty worship.)

City by the Sea

For New York City homicide detective Vincent LaMarca (Robert De Niro), his Long Island hometown of Long Beach holds very bad memories. In the 1950s, his father was executed for kidnapping and murdering a baby there. Now, he must now playing

Sean Patrick Thomas, Eve, Cedric the Entertainer, and Ice Cube take a few missteps but manage to be pretty funny in 'Barbershop.'

return to hunt for his estranged son, Joey (James Franco) — not to make amends but to bring him in as a murder suspect. Inspired by a real-life crime described in an "Esquire" article, this drab, depressing film is neither good nor bad. The film musters some poignancy and a couple of good character exchanges, but the funereal pace kills any suspense and the characters don't do much except mope about their poor, pathetic lives. "City By the Sea" is a dull destination.

Grade: C

Kinsey Scale: 1 (De Niro played a stroke patient taking voice lessons from a drag queen in "Flawless." Franco brought queer actor James Dean back to life in a cable movie.)

Serving Sara

Glib, jaded ex-lawyer Joe Tyler (Matthew Perry) has become a process server whose latest job involves handing divorce papers to millionaire businesswoman Sara Moore (Elizabeth Hurley) from her cheating husband, Gordon (Bruce Campbell). When she realizes Gordon is trying to steal their prosperous Texas cattle ranch, Hurley convinces Perry to serve papers on Gordon first for a $1 million fee. As they set off on a cross-country chase, director Reginald Hudlin careens all over the map stylistically, from road movie to sex farce to gross-out comedy. Perry is merely doing a larger, big-screen version of his "Friends" character, and Hurley only has to look beautiful. This revenge comedy is pretty flimsy, but it does serve up some hearty laughs.

Grade: C-

Kinsey Scale: 1 (Infiltrating the Moores' ranch, Joe assumes the identity of a veterinarian, who the ranch hands believe has come to give the bull a proctology exam. When the dirty deed is done, Joe makes a few gay jokes, such as "the bull was enjoying himself" and "I need a cigarette."

It's all about the booty

Hey, Woody!

I consider myself an expert in bottoming, and I have a question you've never addressed. I can't feel the difference inside me if a guy wears a rubber. I've talked to other guys, and they agree with me. Even the ones who say they can feel the difference admit it's only slight and only in the beginning. I understand why tops don't want to use them — hey, I've done a little topping myself and I must say you really can tell the difference.

My point is, if bottoms can't feel the difference when their partners are wearing rubbers then why do so many let themselves get topped without them?

— Bottomless pit

Dear Bottomless:

Your question reminds me of a true story my mom told me. She lived in South Africa for a while, and her maid kept getting pregnant. Mom gave her a box of condoms. The woman stared blankly. Mom showed her how to use it by unrolling it over a broomstick. "Ahh," the woman brightened up.

If he arches his back when you're inside him, it's because it stimulates his prostate to the point of euphoria. (Photo courtesy www.badpuppy.com)

Months later the maid announced that she was pregnant. Mom, frustrated, said, "Didn't you use the condoms?" The woman said, "Yes. I did just what you showed me. Every day I unrolled it over the broomstick just before we fucked."

The point? People are idiots on the subject of condoms. They either don't wear them or they wear them wrong. That maid managed to do both. You're bringing up a really good point, but I need a bigger sampling pool to draw a conclusion.

So I'm throwing it out to my readers. Email me at needwood@attbi.com and answer this simple question: Once the guy's inside you, can you tell if he's wearing a condom? I'll post the results next week, along with comments from my expert panel.

Hey, Woody!

Whenever I fuck my boyfriend, he ends up arching his back right before he comes. I mean to the point where the torque bends my dick till it hurts. Why is he doing this? He says he can't help it and that it feels good.

Dear Petered:

He's doing it because it increases your dick's pressure against the prostate gland, which is Pleasure Central in every man. Pet the prostate, and it'll make him howl like a dog in heat.

So what to do? Experiment with different positions that protect your dick and makes him bust like a water main. Keep in mind one thing as you experiment: The prostate gland is up and in toward the belly button. How do you tell? Stick your index finger up his bum and bring it forward like you were signaling someone to come over. And by all means, come over. All over.

Hey, Woody!

A while back you said the only bad thing about douching is that you can build up a reliance on it for bowel movements. But I've always heard it's bad because it rinses out helpful bacteria that create natural immunities against infection. Did I catch you in a mistake? Is there a prize if I do?

— Douche Bag

Dear Douche Bag:

I hand out two things whenever somebody catches me in a mistake: an apology and a mop so they can clean my kitchen floors for being so insolent.

In three years of writing this column, I've only handed my mop out to two guys. Sorry, you won't be the third.

You are correct that douching changes the normal "flora" (fancy for bacteria) and makes you more susceptible to infections. IF YOU'RE A WOMAN.

The normal flora in a man's rectum does not have the same problem. Water up the bootie should not do any damage unless there is trauma on the way in, like if you cut yourself with the douche tube. It would not increase the chances of getting infections.
