Entertaining Voices

> The voices you hear are often not your own. No, we're not talking about the voices in your head, we're talking about the voices on the radio; that ever-present bastion for music, opinion and pop-culture dish. Though radio was the original global trendsetter, the irony was that, until recently, it was hard to find a radio program with a truly gay sensibility. Enter Ryan Jay and Caroline Hand, co-hosts of Pride Radio With Ryan & Caroline. Presenting a light, informative syndicated talk show geared toward the GLBT community, featuring entertainment news, lifestyle trends and interviews with celebrities, this dynamic duo has quickly become the radio voices you can relate to. Voices you can call your own.

Best friends since their chance meeting at VH1 in 2000, and on-air compatriots since January of 2005, Ryan and Caroline are not your typical talk show hosts. Known as the Will & Grace of radio, they revel in the frothy gossip-driven news most often associated with gay entertainment, but they are also acutely aware of the role they play in the industry. "We're definitely serious people in some ways," says Caroline, "but when it comes to this kind of stuff, we really just want to keep it kind of light. But then I think it's a nice combination, because we do segments like the Coming Out calls, wherein a listener calls in and shares his coming out story with us. Then we do a little news; we have the guys from CBS news on Logo come on and give us some headlines. But everything is done with a fun and light feel to it."

Her co-host, Ryan, agrees completely. Broadcast on over 20 FM radio stations across the country, every Sunday night, Pride Radio With Ryan & Caroline is a benchmark for the mainstreaming of the gay lifestyle on the airwaves. "I think we definitely try to have fun in everything we do," says Ryan. "At the same time, we don't take it lightly. Even though Caroline is straight and I'm gay, there's a gay sensibility to everything we do. We don't take lightly the opportunity we have to bridge our two communities and show that we both find the same things entertaining and that she's a straight woman who accepts me for who I am. You hear that she's supportive of me and I think that's a good thing for our listeners in the gay community to sort of feel like they have someone they can identify with on the air, as well. There are so few identifiably gay sounding voices on the air in America."

All too true, though it shouldn't come as any surprise that the two got their start as bantering public figures on the internet. In 2004, they created the incredibly popular movie review blog WeSeeMovies.com, which still continues to feature fresh and cheeky movie reviews, in conversational style, on an almost daily basis. "We just kind of like to talk about movies the way that anyone else does," says Ryan. "We actually have moments when we'll look at each other and go, 'omigod, we love our blog!'" Caroline can't resist inserting a dry jab at her own expense, "Yeah, we're that dorky." It's this kind of self-deprecating humor that originally brought them to the attention of Clear Channel Communications and led to their being signed to launch America's first nationally syndicated radio talk show targeted to the GLBT community.

Ah, but the real hook is that, as gay as the show may come across, straight audiences are also embracing this quick-witted and personable partnership. What the producers at Clear Channel understood from the start, and listeners are proving, is that when it comes to crossover appeal, Ryan and Caroline have it. "Well, I think we definitely strive to make our show have crossover appeal," says Caroline. "I think it does inherently, because I'm a straight girl, though we certainly do cover a variety of gay topics, we primarily talk about things that everyone likes: entertainment, movies, news, pop culture, gossip, so there's really no segregating our audience, in that way."

Ryan couldn't agree more. "Also, if you look at it this way, Will & Grace would not have been as popular as it was if it hadn't had a large straight audience. Obviously ten percent of American cannot make an NBC sitcom a hit, y'know? So, I think what the world loved about them, they can now enjoy about us, because we bring that kind of relationship back, through our show."

At last, voices on the radio that we can call our own. Voices with a message of pride, diversity and understanding. Voices you can share a laugh with and talk about, even with your straight friends. Entertaining voices for a concept whose time has finally come.

> Ok you couch potatoes, if lifting the remote is your idea of exercise, let this very low-impact training session change your mind about working out. For post-workout clean up check out the newest skin detoxifying body wash and body scrub from Origins.

Glutes

To get the best results keep your glutes tense while doing this exercise. With both feet together, use a chair or table for balance. Starting with your right leg, slowly bring it back and touch the floor with your pointed toe. Hold it for 4 to 5 seconds and then return to the starting position. Do this for five sets and then switch to your left leg.

Biceps

Keeping a straight posture, stand with legs shoulder length apart. Whether you're holding a can of Chunky soup or a 10-pound barbell — it doesn't matter — hold the weight in your hands palms facing upward. Keep your abs tight and slowly bend your elbow towards your shoulder. Slowly bring the weight back to the starting position. Repeat for 5 to 6 reps with each arm.

Abs

Sit straight up on a chair, feet slightly apart. Lace your fingers together and rest them on the back of your neck, so your elbows are bent. Then slowly twist your elbows to the right as if you are turning around to look at someone — don't turn your head — it will naturally follow. Then rotate back to the starting position. Continue the same routine, turning both left and right, for 5 to 6 reps.

> What is wrong with 'mos today? In light of two recent studies, one which claims that body type and motion reveals sexual orientation (as if we didn't already know that where there's a swish, there's often a flame) and the other which suggests that uptight white people have more mental disorders than blacks, lesbians, gay men and bisexuals (again, big surprise there... James Dobson anyone?), Hedda is beginning to think that science is taking all the gaiety out of being gay. Lighten up, people! After all, George Takei just had an asteroid named after him and Daniel Radcliffe is telling anyone who will listen that he's ready to play gay in a movie. Now THAT'S entertainment!

Speaking of entertaining ideas, November marks the late start of the new ABC offering Cashmere Mafia, a one-hour dramedy about four New York women juggling careers and family and starring cross-eyed kitten Lucy Liu and The Lord Of The Rings' Miranda Otto. Sounds a bit like Sex & The City: The Mature Years, but producers insist that rather than hot flashes, the show will be, as Edina Monsoon so succinctly put it, "very much menstrual, thank you, sweetie." In fact, one of the main characters, played by Bonnie Somerville, will be an executive who is having a fling with one of her female underlings and hiding it from her best friends. Can't you just smell the estrogen-fueled melodrama from here? Set your Tivo on stunning this November 27th to catch all the scandalous action.

Moving on to weightier matters, Queer channel here! has revealed its plans to add more original programming in its coming season, with several series renewals and plans for first-run movies. Among the renewals are second seasons of The Lair and The DL Chronicles and a third season of both Dante's Cove and Paradise Falls. This in addition to the recently announced Ryan's Life and two fresh cases of its Donald Strachey Mystery movie franchise, starring Chad Allen, mean more bang for the proverbial buck. Also in the works is House of Usher, the second planned installment in a series of 12 movies based on Edgar Allan Poe tales and a movie entitled Solar Flare, starring Tracey Gold and Michelle Clunie. Tracey Gold? Really? Ah well, everyone knows gays and lesbians are suckers for tragic child stars trying to make a comeback. Lindsey Lohan, anyone?

And would somebody please give GLAAD something better to do than publish study after study about how underrepresented the gbt population is on television? I mean, seriously, do we really need to know that "in the upcoming 2007-08 TV season, broadcast series will feature seven regularly seen characters who are gay, lesbian, bisexual or transgender, down from nine characters in 2006 and 10 the season before"? Isn't it enough that there are shows like Ugly Betty, Desperate Housewives, Brothers & Sisters and The Office changing the face of network television?

Oh, and speaking of bitching, Hedda is just crushed that she has to wait an entire YEAR for new installments of the sexually diverse Torchwood and Dr. Who, the latter of which, incidentally, is by far the best science fiction series currently on the air, despite what those who watch the repetitive and thinly-veiled social soap Battlestar Galactica might say. That season finale gave Hedda goose bumps, in all the right places! Sadly, until the BBC releases the next highly-addictive batch, it looks like she'll just have to find other avenues for her bump fix. So, until NASA decides to rename Venus to the planet Vulcan, or little Harry Potter finally lives his REAL dream and devotes his life to gay porn (oh, like you wouldn't watch...), keep your eyes on the stars and your remote on surf.

Portland

> Waking post-bloody Mary(s) to the ominous voice of God, or maybe a friendly skies stew-ardess, I feel the plane descend into Cascadia, home to old volcanoes, magical green plants and queer pirates. A mecca of coffee, bikes and radical faeries zooms from bird's eye to eye level once the towering peaks give way to tarmac.

Well Portland, Oregon and sloe gin fizz – If that ain't love I don't know what is. Loretta Lynn sings the gospel about this stony town that Elliot Smith also bled about in his heartbreaking ballads. Many flock to the Rose City for its high quality of life and breathtaking natural beauty, or because they heard it was cool in a magazine. Well, it is cool. Let's get this magical mystery tour rolling!

Jupiter Hotel jupiterhotel.com 503-230-9200
$89 Standard Deluxe - $189 Deluxe Metro

Sexy, sexy, sexy. This crisp, modern and affordable hotel specializes in packages like the Luv Package, Concert Package, the After Midnight and the Melt Away where you choose your massage therapist.

The 1923 landmark Laurelhurst Theatre is home to the Portland Gay + Lesbian Film Festival.

SUCK IT DOWN. EAT IT UP.

> For those of you looking to eschew today's urbanity and hearken back to the barbarism of the previous millennium, there's a bevy of bebies to be had at one of Portland's many dives. It's not too uncommon to bar hop on your way home, to pop in for one (okay, maybe two) warming drink and dry your hoodie while wetting your gullet. Most notable are Virginia Café, located two blocks from Pioneer Courthouse Square; Low Brow Lounge in the Pearl and near hive; Space Room, an out-of-this-world experience (especially after one fishbowl-sized Space Punch) and amidst vintage shopping on Upper Hawthorne; and Hungry Tiger, an East Burnside mainstay with pool and PBR, a common precursor to a movie, pizza and more beer across the street at the Laurelhurst Theater, one of Portland's many movie pubs. It's rumored that Portland likes to drink; the rumors are true.

SHOP 'N STROLL

> Individualistic neighborhoods abound in Portland. Picture yuppies (that's yuppie hippies), bead shops, pizza by the slice, glorious neon, the faint scent of patchouli and the beat of a makeshift drum in the distance. This is Hawthorne in Southeast Portland, the typical first landing spot of most fresh transplants. The entire Eastside is known for its colorful bungalows and for its equally colorful residents. The Pearl is chock full of young professionals looking for condo (read: dorm) style living and access to upscale shopping. Northwest is reminiscent of Georgetown in DC, with colonial-style row houses, brownstones and a certain air of coziness with killer denim shops like Blake and frou-frou dress boutiques requiring your Platinum card, but that perfect Pacific Northwestern frock or those acid-washed ass-huggers are worth it, yes? Yes. North Portland is experiencing rather fast-paced re-gentrification, branding itself as the epicenter of an increasingly upwardly mobile DIY demographic. The city is easy to understand geographically, as East/West is denoted by the Willamette River and North/South by Burnside, one of the town's major thoroughfares.

RESTAURANTS

> Bluehour - one of the pioneers in taking Portland toward gourmet/foodie status. Started by the same owners as Saucebox (a downtown Asian fusion favorite with killer DJ sets by anyone from Gus Van Sant to local jockey icon Mr. Mumu), Bluehour is perched at the heart of the Pearl. If you're looking for less expensive, go to Bluehour Cafe and indulge in one of the best burgers in this once sleepy burg.

> Vault Martini - Designed by Kyle Lynch, who also did Tucci's in Lake Oswego, a Portland suburb, Vault is sophisticated and speaks to the pointy-toed shoe crowd. Frouffy cocktails, caters to an after work white-collar crowd, on the streetcar line.

> Masu - Oh, Masu. How I love you. Happy hour starting at 10pm weekdays, the best yellow radish roll EVER. They project japanimation on the walls and use wood blocks and bright Skate-infused Japanese murals to create a distinct, unique dining environment. Hip but not pretentious, it's all about good fish. They also opened Masu East near 28th and Burnside, adding to the area's notoriety as a fine dining/dive bar mecca.

SHAKE YOUR BOOTY

> C.C. Slaughter's 503-248-9135
Massive dancefloor with serious light effects and laser shows.

Boxxes-Brig-Red Car Garage 503-226-4171
Down the street from the Ace Hotel! Go-go boys shake it in front of big screens throughout the bar, which connects to the Brig (danceclub) and Red Cap Garage.

Silverado 503-224-4493
If you can't get laid at Silverado, then you're probably straight AND dead. Portland's only dedicated male strip club hosts a raucous, party-hearty crowd every night of the week. You'll either love it or hate it - there's no in between.

Other clubs worth Googling:
Crush, Darcelle XV, Fox & Hounds, Hobo's, Scandals.

Portland's rainy rep keeps it impossibly + beautifully green, which helps enforce a casual dress code.

Chuck Palahniuk

> The author of Fight Club, Invisible Monsters and Choke brings you, Rant: An Oral Biography of Buster Casey, told only as Chuck Palahniuk can. Buster AKA Rant Casey is an ultimate prankster on a mission to crash cars, give the world rabies, and travel through time to save his mother and then marry her... I know, and YES its as delightfully fucked up as it sounds.

Clown Girl
Monica Drake

> A work of fiction that might as well be fact, author Monica Drake creates her own reality as Clown Girl, a balloon tying street clown linking together performance art and religious balloon shapes all while avoiding the coulrophiles. This book is delicately twisted.

Muffy:
or A Transmigration of Selves
S.T. Gulik

> Zigzag your way through the mind of Gulik, a man who claims to be an enlightened immortal cockroach in the service of the Goddess of chaos. Muffy is the story of a girl who is ignored by one parent and raped by another then sets out on her own quest to be raped by someone other than a relative. Captured by a female artist/serial killer, Muffy metaphysically collides leaving you to decide whether she truly is insane.

Minus the tattoos but still with that lovely shitty mouth Amy will charm you and harm you with singles "Fuck Me Pumps", "In My Bed", and "You Sent Me Flying". Play catch up bitches.

C

Annie Lennox
Songs of Mass Destruction

> Still looking fabulous and as iconic as ever, Ms. Lennox writes about the human condition while soulfully turning those tales into songs of strength and turmoil. Our favorite Eurythmic proves that old(er) is the new new, that a pixie cut can last a fashionable lifetime and the world within herself is big enough for all of us to play in.

Pillows

Whether they provide a place to rest your weary head, or are used as accents to showcase your own personal style, pillows are not just for the bedroom anymore...

Created from fabric made from some of the most sustainable materials, including hemp, organic cotton and recycled wool, Shelly and Mary Klein's k studio designs are whimsical and only slightly disturbing, but never fail to turn heads. $98 - $152.

Truly enlightened design comes from within, as expressed through the d'light Huggable pillow by Diana Lin, which uses 12 LED lights, encased in small silicone bubbles and stashed inside a translucent cover to achieve warmth and comfort. $149.

Long known as an innovator among designers and fashion gurus, Upper Playground's Fifty24SF pillow series brings pop culture and urban flavor into your space with designs by such counter-culture artists as Sam Flores, Jeremy Fish and David Choe. $40.

by Rich Lopez

> What exactly is it with us gays and the movies? If we aren't rushing out to the latest Reese Witherspoon flick, we are anxiously awaiting the best picture nominees to plan our Oscar watching party around. Besides, what would we do after our Sunday brunch? Coffee and pancakes with friends cannot be complete without checking out the weekly sales and a cinematic outing. We go and pay our seven to nine dollars for a ticket, another nine for a drink and treat and some $20 later, we have two hours of escapism watching Travolta singing and dancing in drag or partaking in whatever penguins are doing this year.

But where are our gay movies? With the multitude of megaplexes everywhere and a wide range of films from blockbusters to independents, you think we'd have more of a selection of queer/queer friendly cinema. Our only major options this year have been Hairspray and I Now Pronounce You Chuck and Larry. Of course, the former was really just gay by association but still. Other than the occasional gay indie film that we all rush to see (remember Beautiful Thing?) or the movie that capitalizes on its gayness as "controversial" a la Brokeback Mountain, nary do we get a wide selection.

To fill that void, even if it is just once a year, we must give the Oscar for outstanding contribution of gays on film to OUT TAKES Dallas. For 10 straight days (no pun intended), queer cinema exists in absolute splendor thanks to the annual lesbian and gay film festival now in its ninth year. From shorts that might leave a big question mark over your head to high camp stories of drag queen volleyball players, poignant tales of budding relationships or even the racy documentaries like last year's way popular screening of Gay Sex in the 70s, OUT TAKES has a way of selecting absolute gems that perpetuate that gay is so not dead in the world of film.

The festival hits the mark by opening with the film, Naked Boys Singing, a musical revue "celebrating the splendors of male nudity." No, really, the description says that. Personally, I can't miss Itty Bitty Titty Committee, a film that has been on several circuits and finally makes its way here. It's totally for the ladies but that title alone is worth the ticket. Besides, it already had some success here in the Lone Star state by snagging two awards at Austin's South by Southwest Film Festival and one at Q Cinema, Fort Worth's GLBT film festival. With some 30+ films and shorts in total, filmmaker Q & A's, a slew of parties and events plus a closing ceremony, OUT TAKES does not hold back in the celebration of gay cinema. And seriously, we really shouldn't expect it to. Hello? Movies + GLBT + parties = Fantabulous.

OUT TAKES is a well-oiled machine with little or no scheduling mishaps and the mixers are a worthwhile place to network and socialize. But in the very end, OUT TAKES is about the art of film and the festival is the culmination of gay culture colliding with the cinema world exploding into an array of dramas, comedies, documentaries and other film genres that collectively give us a moment to see and hear our voices in a bigger than life fashion - preferably in digital surround sound. Now, that's something to feel great about.

OUT TAKES Dallas Ninth Annual Film Festival begins Friday, November 2 and runs through Sunday, November 11 at the Magnolia Theater, 3699 McKinney Avenue in Dallas. For more information and a schedule of films and events, visit their website at outtakesdallas.org or call 972-988-6333.

Eats

But it's the food that is truly inspired and worthy of Esquire Magazine's 2007 Restaurant of the Year Award. "Elevated American Cuisine - Bold Flavors, No Borders" is the concept here using unexpected combinations brought together in exotic executions by expert hands without losing good ole Texas hospitality. The barbecued-shrimp taco with mango-pickled red-onion salad and smokey citrus vinaigrette is a perfect example. Hot escabeche of Alaskan Halibut with a potato brandade and cilantro shoots takes fresh core ingredients to stellar heights. In addition to lunch and dinner Fearing's puts out an equally innovative brunch and dessert menu. Superlative dining in the "Big D"! 2821 Turtle Creek Blvd, Dallas 214-559-2100
This 5 diamond classic will unveil a new look and menu fall 2007 under the guidance of Chef John Tesar. One of the great restaurant destinations.

The Porch Comfort Pub Food ACD
2912 N. Henderson Ave., Dallas 214-828-2916
This neighborhood eatery gets packed for home cooking with a gourmet twist. Brisket sliders, huge burgers and popcorn chicken sure to satisfy.

Tillman's Roadhouse American ACD
324 West 7th St., Dallas 214-942-0988
One of our favorites. Innovative updates to familiar foods making them extraordinary. How about this: Shiner Bock Poached Rock Shrimp with blood orange aioli or Cedar Plank Roasted Trout Cake with herb salad. End with Birthday Cake. Yes, it's on the menu, Birthday Cake. Yay!

THE BEETHOVEN FESTIVAL
The Meyerson Symphony Center, Dallas

For the first time, the Dallas Symphony performs all nine of Ludwig van Beethoven's symphonies in sequential order, during the five weekend long Beethoven Festival. Led by four outstanding conductors, including Music Director Designate Jaap van Zweden, this season's Beethoven Festival promises to be one of the most powerful and moving orchestral events you will ever experience. For info and tickets visit dallasymphony.com.

Nov. 2 - Nov. 4
THE SOUND OF MUSIC
*Kalita Humphreys Theater,
Dallas*

Artistic Director Emeritus Richard Hamburger brings the world premiere of the acclaimed Salzburg Marionette Theatre's production of The Sound of Music to Dallas for a special three-day, six-performance run in the Kalita Humphreys Theater. Catch this once-in-a-lifetime event here before its U.S. tour and eventual return to Salzburg. Call 214-522-8499 for more info.

Nov. 15 - Nov. 18
GREAT RUSSIAN
NUTCRACKER
Majestic Theatre, Dallas

The Moscow Ballet presents the Great Russian Nutcracker. It will feature local kids chosen from auditions in August; last year, more than 135 kids from the D-FW area participated. Call Ticketmaster at 214-373-8000 or 972-647-5700 or visit liveatthemajestic.com.

WOMAN: THE ART OF GASTON LACHAISE
*Nasher Sculpture Center,
Dallas*

Featuring over 40 sculptures, including 8 monumental works, the transcendent, beatific, and powerful female figures in Woman: The Art of Gaston Lachaise reflect his admiration for Ancient Egyptian, Hindu, and Pre-Columbian sculptures of female deities. They also evince a reverence for the modern American woman. nashersculpturecenter.org. Nov. 17, 2007 - Feb. 17, 2008

Nov. 29, 2007 - March 30, 2008
GABRIEL OROZCO: INNER CIRCLES OF THE WALL
Dallas Museum of Art, Dallas

The exhibition will premiere works by this important Mexican artist. Orozco, who uses multiple media, including installation, photography, video, and sculpture, has a keen interest in geometry. This exhibition will highlight the circle motif that reoccurs throughout the artist's work in both literal and compositional forms. For information visit dallasmuseumofart.org.

HIGHLAND PARK TREE LIGHTING CEREMONY
Highland Park Village, Dallas

During the Christmas season, elaborate and expensive holiday lighting displays in the old-money suburb of Highland Park are as common as the luxury cars that sit in the estate owners' garages. The 31st anniversary tree-lighting ceremony will be held Nov. 23, 2007 at 5PM. Festivities include gospel singers, a visit from Santa Claus and, of course, the big moment when the switch is flipped. If you can't make the big day, no worries. You can enjoy the lights through the end of the year. Visit hvpillage.com for info.

Nov. 23 - Dec. 24
A CHRISTMAS CAROL
BY CHARLES DICKENS
Dallas Theater Center, Dallas

For over 20 years Dallas Theater Center's production of Dickens' holiday classic has touched audiences of all ages with its message of hope and redemption. Join Ebenezer Scrooge and his three ghosts for a magical, midnight journey to seek the true spirit of Christmas. Filled with glorious music and dance, A Christmas Carol is the perfect gift for the entire family. For info and tickets visit dallastheatercenter.org.

Houston

Hou

> Once a year, the gay community of Houston gets to play dress-up. But this doesn't involve leather chaps or gaudy pumps. No, this is dress-up for real. This is when the community knows what "to the nines" means and when ladies, and perhaps even some gents, know what it's like to have a Cinderella night. This is the night of the Houston Black Tie Dinner.

What started as small dinner in a wine cellar has turned into a powerhouse fundraiser raising close to $2 million since 2005 for Houston GLBT organizations as well as other agencies that support the community. That's quite a jump from the dinner Jay Hollyfield first hosted back in 1988 at the request of the Human Rights Campaign Fund. From intimate affair to star-studded gala, the event has grown into the largest fundraiser with this year's beneficiaries including AIDS Foundation Houston, AssistHers, Bening Omega Community Services, Casa de Esperanza, Montrose Counseling Center and PFLAG.

The theme is Into the Woods and while nothing can ever go wrong with a Broadway musical motif, the real treat will undoubtedly be special guest performer, RuPaul. It's just been three years since the "Supermodel" singer decided to quit laying low and re-enter the public arena prompted by the then-upcoming presidential elections and the decidedly right-leaning administration. "I felt my presence was needed as a true example of freedom," he said according to his blog as reasoning for getting back in the spotlight.

He released Red Hot, his first studio album in seven years on his own RuCo Records and landed a stint hosting a morning radio show both of which reminded everyone he was still around and yet both kept him under the radar. He had a hit with his Barbie-like RuPaul dolls in various, and of course fabulous, outfits. This year he returns to the movie screen with Starbooty where he plays the title character who "goes undercover as a hooker to rescue her niece from an evil body parts broker." No really, that's what the website says. It might be safe to assume this will be the first Black Tie with some mega-bootyliciousness.

Humanitarian honorees will be Sandy Clough and Stephanie McClain from AssistHers, a non-profit aiding the lesbian community dealing with life-threatening illnesses. The Corporate Angel Award will be presented to Walgreen's and Human Rights Campaign Houston will be the recipient of the Jay Hollyfield Political Service Award named after the first Black Tie Dinner host. This award honors outstanding political activism within and for the GLBT community.

Rounding out the evening will be music group, Infinite Groove and a cocktail hour and silent auction prior to the festivities. The entire event is to be hosted by the man with the smile that won't quit, Ernie Manouse, the Houston PBS host and producer of InnerViews. Perfect timing for the Emmy nominee as he was just named to OutSmart magazine's Gayest and Greatest list as Best TV Guy.

Houston Black Tie Dinner seems to have checked off the all the perfect makings to one fabulously entertaining and highly uplifting night. "Into the Woods" takes place Saturday, November 10 at the Hyatt Regency Downtown, 1200 Louisiana Street. For tickets and info, visit houstonblacktiedinner.org.

urrealistic dreamscapes by 3 uniquely whimsical animators can be found through the end of 2007 at the Scottsdale Museum of Contemporary Art, where Gallery 4 becomes a screening room for an intensely visual acid trip. Christine Rebet studied painting, stage design and choreography; Hiraki Sawa, sculpture; and Shahzia Sikander, traditional miniature painting. Together the three muses of fantasy guide you through worlds of both mystery and self-discovery. For more info visit smoca.org.
