MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

Good morning, Mr. Phelps. The issue you're looking at contains an in-depth review of Mission: Impossible. Your mission, should you decide to accept it, is to use our complete maps and detailed dossiers to not even the stolen NOC list and uncover the traitorous mole within the CIA. Good luck, Jim.

PLAYER'S PULSE

A lot can change in a decade, and this month we celebrate NP's birth year in existence. Not even Seinfeld could last for ten years! Here's hoping we can deliver another nipping decade of Kramer, the Soup Nazi, yadda, yadda, yadda. Wait—that's not us! Newman!!

The Coolest Teacher in the Entire World!

I am a 27-year old teacher of a 4th grade class in Maine. Every Friday, I bring in a TV, my Super NES and Final Fantasy 3. My class and I started our adventure about two months ago, and we can hardly stop. I find that your games encourage reading skills as well as strategy development. I also let my class predict what will happen next. I can't wait until Zelda 64 comes out for next year's class.

Bill Saunders

Via the Internet

And to think, our teachers' idea of educational "fun" was subjecting students to minor head injuries via an evil, little game called Dodgeball!

Thankfully Yours

My husband, who is a kid inside, bought a Super NES, and when my son, who has a learning disability, picked up the controls, I objected, "I don't want a video game-head for a child." I know playing would be difficult for him since he could barely read (he was 5) and had fine-motor skill development problems. But in minutes he was playing and even reading. Nintendo has helped me so much. We have an N64 now, and my son is 7. The games have advanced his motor skills and motivated him to develop his reading and problem-solving skills. I still hear parents say, "I'm not getting my kid Nintendo games—I don't want them sitting in front of the TV all day." I used to think that, too, but now I tell them how wrong they are. I truly mean it when I say, "Thanks, Nintendo." (I even named my dog Yoshi.)

Natalie Redding

Via the Internet

With July marking our 10th year in publication, your letter is perhaps the greatest thanks we could ever receive. We return your gratitude ten-fold, and send more thanks to anyone who's ever enjoyed our games and magazine. And let's not forget Yoshi—give that dog a melon for us.

Mayday and Oddjob

My friends and I have been on a mission to find Oddjob and Mayday in Mission Mode of GoldenEye 007. I have gone to sites on the Internet to find how to meet these two classic characters, but I have been given wrong and cheap info. For example, at one site, one person claimed he "accidentally" ran into Mayday in the Egyptian Temple, but he can't tell me how he did it. Is the existence of these characters (besides in Multiplayer Mode) a fraud?

Sean Flaherty
Raleigh, North Carolina

In this case, "accidentally" is another way of saying "Tip yanking your chain." Mayday and Oddjob do not appear in Mission Mode of GoldenEye.

The Violent Majority

This letter is in regards to your response to Rick Robbins, Matt Belsky and Mike Glenboski in Volume 100. As you said, violence, nudity, and language don't add to game play. I agree, but since when did a theme of a game become unimportant or something that would enhance game play? If a video game has an "overly-kiddy" theme, it's going to turn me off, just because a Barbie game is a good game to play, doesn't mean I want to play it. There is important.

Bob Rodgers
Veneta, Oregon

People who think that a game's maturity level should be based on the amount of gore and sex in the game should stick to watching movies. I don't mind gore and sex in a game, but if that is all there is, what's the point? In GoldenEye 007, never do you see streams of blood flying out of fresh wounds as in Resident Evil, but the game is still fun.

Michael Fitzhock

Via the Internet

Extra blood and gore add to the realism of a game. Satan games are also fun to watch. Profanity adds realism, too. If you get shot, are you going to say "These darn blood stains! Oh poop! It's gonna take a long time to get them out. Fiddlesticks!" I don't think so.

Bob Sanchez

Via the Internet

If Nintendo made a game with a girl like Lina Croft in it, I'm sure every guy would buy it.

POWER CHARTS

Sure it's summertime and the sun is out, but wouldn't you rather spend all day in an air-conditioned house playing video games? Well, maybe not all day, but if you decide to venture outside to soak up some rays, be sure to grab your Game Boy Camera to take some photos. That's not too much to ask, is it?

MOST WANTED

LETTERS, CONTINUED...

Say You're Sorry

After playing video games for seven years, I have learned that to beat a game requires not only skill, but also concentration. But it seems that after playing a game and losing, you lose your concentration because every game insists on rubbing it in. A simple "Please try again" or "Sorry, but you lost" would be nice. But no! The game companies insist on telling you "too bad!" We are not spending money to be tormented and taunted when we lose.

Thomas Gamage
Fredericksburg, Virginia
Well, that's just too bad! Just kidding. The developers take pride in the fact that their games are challenging, so they'll tease the gamers they've tripped up. But it's all in good fun, and at least it keeps you riled up so you'll be rarin' to wreak your vengeance the second time around.

Radio Meets the Video Star

People have said the N64's sound quality wasn't up to the standards of other systems. For a while they were right, but now the N64 is ruling the video-game music industry. Best of all are the TV-like theme songs of games such as Clay Fighter, Sculptor's Cut and Mystical Ninja Starring Goemon. Both have fantastic opening sequences and memorable songs. The music-video-type sequences in Goemon are what I always wished games had.

Jonathan Goldsblie
Via the Internet

To the people who thought Super Mario 64 won too many awards in '96: check out GoldenEye 007. Star Fox 64's Landmaster is better than GoldenEye 007's Russian tank because it can hover, roll, and fire lasers. And so what if you can blow up gas canisters? That's nothing compared to blowing up the entire Kula's base. And Tweetyman is a wimp compared to Wizpig and Andross. Alien is just a PPT-tooting human. Andrew could crush an airplane with his hands.

Brant Moon
Via the Internet

It seemed obvious to me that GoldenEye 007 won so many of your categories because those who voted for it could not see beyond the hype. My personal pick for Best Sound is Tetrisphere, with its blasting techno and psychedelic sound effects. As for Most Innovative, I would have chosen Blast Corps, and Star Fox 64 should have taken first for Best Play Control.

Tom Kreso
Via the Internet

I think the NP Awards were picked correctly, and GoldenEye 007 deserved every award it received. It was surely the best game of '97 and maybe even the best game on the N64. In fact, I think it's so good that it should have won Best Super NES Game, Best Game Boy Game and Best Sports Game!

Dane Lagano
Dawson Creek, BC

GoldenEye 007 is an awesome game, but it won awards that it didn't really deserve. I'll grant that it deserved some of the awards, but not most of them. People just voted for their favorite game, not the most deserving.

WWF: War Zone is ready to hit the ring, and Acclaim is calling you out to challenge their biggest, baddest wrestling title yet!

WWF: War Zone is the latest in Acclaim's long line of WWF wrestling titles and their first for the N64. War Zone has something of a split personality, featuring a combat system that seems to be as much tournament fighter as wrestling sim. While there sometimes seems to be more emphasis on special moves than classic wrestling moves, we were thankful that the special moves were believable and never strayed into Street Fighter or Mortal Kombat territory. The game features 18 WWF stars (including two hidden wrestlers), eight game modes for up to four players, and a fantastically fun Custom Wrestler feature with hundreds of options to choose from.

MODES OF PLAY

The rules of the ring are outlined below. In this Wor Zone, the combatants definitely have a "take-no-prisoners" attitude. Once you step into the "squared circle," your strength and skill will be the only things standing between you and ultimate defeat!

WWF: WAR ZONE

NINTENDO 64

TRAINING

In this mode, you can practice any of your special moves or take-downs against a "dummy" opponent. You can even set up a training session with a specific situation or move that you must counter.

You can order your opponent to stand or lie down, so you can practice any of your special moves or holds.

CHALLENGE

1 PLAYER In the Challenge mode, you'll have to claw your way up the WWF ranks. As you strive to become a championship contender, other wrestlers will fight their own battles and affect the Federation rankings.

Feet fans will often pop up at random and challenge you to Grudge matches. Once you're a contender, you'll have those shots at the championship.

CAGE

1-4 PLAYERS Up to four wrestlers will go into a Cage match, but only one will emerge victorious. The cage is suspended high above the arena floor, and if you climb out before the match is over, you may live to regret it!

You can turn the cage to your advantage by climbing up its sides and jumping on your opponent. If you climb outside of it, you might be knocked off.

ROYAL RUMBLE

1-4 PLAYERS Fans have learned to avoid the front rows during a Royal Rumble because there's a real danger of being hit by low-flying wrestlers! The idea here is simply to throw all of your opponents out of the ring. The last one left inside the squared circle wins!

You can hit that top opponent won't go quietly! Wear them down before you try to give them the old heave-ho.

VERSUS 2 PLAYERS

The Versus mode features one- and two-player, single matches. When you challenge the computer, it will select an opponent at random for you from among the WWF ranks.

TAG TEAM

1-4 PLAYERS Nothing beats the sheer ferocity and non-stop intensity of a Tag Team match. If you're tired, tag your partner and let him humiliate your foe while you take a breather.

In a one-player game, you'll always control the team member that's in the ring. Stay your toe before you go for a tag.

WEAPONS

1-4 PLAYERS Weapons may be banned from the ring officially, but no one told the wrestlers about it. In a Weapons match, you'll have more than sticks and stones to break your opponent's bones!

Your arsenal will include sticks, bats, chairs and even TV sets! There will always be at least one weapon in the ring.

GAUNTLET

1 PLAYER If you're a glutton for punishment, the Gauntlet challenge is for you. In this mode, you'll face six opponents in a row, each selected at random by the computer.

What's the catch in Gauntlet mode? Any damage you sustain in one match will be carried over in the next!

WAR 3-4 PLAYERS A War match is an all-out battle with your fists and wits as your only allies—no teams, no weapons and no holds barred. The last man standing (or conscious, at least) wins. One of the WWF slogans is, "Raw Is War!" and the opposite is certainly true, too!

I'M CALLING YOU OUT!

The talent on this ticket is strictly top-notch, and we've charted each wrestler's stats and picked out some of their best moves for you. We've also outlined some common situations and basic strategies in the sidebars on the following pages. With this much info at your fingertips, you should have no problem recreating the WWF's hottest events and most infamous rivalries. Which team will take home the belt at the next Survivor Series? Who will claim the championship at your WrestleMania? It's all up to you!

"STONE COLD" STEVE AUSTIN

"Stone Cold" has Charisma and Strength to spare—an especially powerful combination. The higher your Charisma, the more likely the crowd will cheer for you. Lots of cheers will pump up a wrestler's Strength temporarily.

You can set the Training mode to duplicate almost any situation you may find yourself in during a match, with both wrestlers standing, both in a tie-up, one on the mat, one running and so on. If you combine the tips in the following sidebar with a few sessions in the training room, you can prepare yourself for most any combat situation or emergency.

BOTH STANDING

Most attacks and grapples are effective at a much longer range than you might expect. If you're not careful, you'll march right into your opponent's reach, and you can bet that he or she will take full advantage of your mistake.

They may look like they're standing far apart, but this is an effective range for most special moves. Even punches and kicks can connect from several steps away.

If you knock your opponent down but don't stay on him, knock off immediately. Computerized wrestlers will easily trip you or charge you as they get up off the mat.

ON THE MAT

If you hit your enemy hard enough, he'll fall to the mat, stunned. You can then try an attack, a hold or a pin. The Stun meter will show how long he'll be dazed. Hitting your foe again will actually make the Stun meter run faster, but you'll usually have enough time for two weak attacks or one strong one. Keep in mind that you'll have many different attacks available, depending on whether you're above your opponent's head or feet.

When your opponent's health meter is red before you try to pin him, if you stun him in the meantime, just use the opportunity to soften him up a little more.

If your opponent is on the mat, you can pull him to his feet by standing near his head and pressing Left C. You can then get him in a tie-up or attack him from behind.

You'll have different attack options depending on where you're standing. If you want to see what's available, you can access the Move List at any time in a match.

TIED-UP

To Tie-up (grapple with) your opponent, stand within a few steps and press left C. From here, you can perform many special moves. Standing moves tend to be throws, but a lot of Tie-up moves are holds.

You'll sometimes have to struggle with your foe to take control of a Tie-up. Tap any action button repeatedly to assert yourself against your opponent.

From a Tie-up, you can also fling your opponent into a corner or against the ropes. If he bounces back, he'll ready with a Clothesline or another special move.

IN THE CORNER

Back your foe into a corner by raining blows on him or fling him there after a Tie-up. Once he's leaning dazed against the turnbuckle, try a special move.

Instead of just hitting your opponent, take advantage of the situation and whip out a special throw move by pressing Up, Up and then B, A or left C.

RUNNING

Most wrestlers have three running attacks and three running attack counters. Try to use these special moves when you're still about three steps away from your opponent.

Running attacks differ from wrestler to wrestler, but it's usually just a matter of pressing A, B or left C. You can also try A + left C or B + left C and see what happens.

If your foe is running at you, press A, B or left C to beat him to the punch. You can also use running attack counters on opponents that you've just bounced off the ropes.

ON THE TURNBUCKLE

As with running attacks, you can either launch an assault from the top of the turnbuckle or attack an opponent who is standing on top of the turnbuckle.

For most turnbuckle attacks and counters, press A, B, or left C. If your foe is on the turnbuckle, also try pressing Up, Down, Left or Right, then A or B.

HIDDEN WRESTLERS

There are also two hidden wrestlers in the game, Dude Love and Cactus Jack. While we might question their taste in clothes, we won't deny that both of these Rule Breakers are a match for Mankind in the Toughness category, and both have above-average Recovery ratings, as well.

CUSTOM WRESTLERS

LOOKS

The first step in creating a character is deciding how he or she will look. Once you decide on a male or a female character, you'll have hundreds of options to choose from for skin color, hair color, facial features, clothes, footwear, accessories and even tattoos.

PERSONALITY AND SKILLS

You can give your character a full name as well as an alias that he'll use in the ring. The Crash Commencé? Yeah, that has a certain ring to it.

When setting your attributes, remember that corners are not built on Strength alone. It's best to start off well-balanced, then build a given area.

Give your wrestler a few test runs before you embark on a career. If things aren't working out, return to the Custom screen for fine tuning.

Our favorite feature is the ability to create your own wrestler. Once complete, your alter-ego can jump into action in any mode. Now what about a name...the Ultimate Wrestler? Or maybe Thunderclap? No, that one's been used...

After you decide on a male or a female wrestler, you'll choose from five body types, from skinny to superheavyweight. In the ring, pounds prevail.

Next comes the costume. There are options for shirts, pants, boots, jackets, belts and other necessities. The possibilities are endless.

WWF: WAR ZONE

If you just can't make up your mind, let the computer generate a character for you at random. Whoo...maybe he should let his money dress him.

LOAD AND SAVE

Save your wrestler to a Controller Pak or he or she will disappear when you turn off your game. To use a saved character, choose the Load option. Your wrestler will gain skill points over time, so check the Custom menu often and save after every win.

THE REAL DEAL

You may be wondering which game, WWF: War Zone or WCW vs. NWO: World Tour, delivers a true pro wrestling experience. In fact, they both do, but in different ways. With its many modes, WWF does a better job of recreating the structure and atmosphere of pro wrestling events. In the ring, however, WWF plays more like a tournament fighter. You have a set health meter, and once you're in the red zone, there's little you can do to turn things around. In WCW, there's more give-and-take during a match. Just as in actual pro wrestling, you can make a surprise comeback by pumping up your spirit and making one big, last-ditch effort, even if your overall stamina is low. If you're going to choose between these two games, it will be a question of which style of play you prefer.

BANJO-KAZOOIE™

SWAMP, DESERT AND SNOW CAN GRIZZLE ANYONE, BUT PART TWO OF OUR TACTICS WILL MAKE YOU SMARTER THAN THE AVERAGE BEAR.

THE BEAR NECESSITIES

If Banjo-Kazooie has you puzzled, then pack up that smart-beaked bird, put on your yellow hiking shorts, and hit the trails with us as we walk you through part two of our BK strategies. Starting from where we left off last month, our second Jiggly hunt will help you pick up the pieces you'll need to get the full picture of what lurks in the game's next three worlds: Bubble Gloop Swamp, Freezozozy Peak, and Gobi's Valley.

BUBBLE GLOOP SWAMP

Before you can enter the swamp, you must complete the picture of it with your Jiggys. Flip-Flip into the tunnel above the low's water pipe, then hit the switches to open the underwater passage that leads to the painting.

IN HIP DEEP

Piranhas infest the murky waters of Bubble Gloop Swamp. To avoid becoming fishbait, Banjo and Kazooie will once again need the help of Bottles. When the pair finds him, he'll teach them how to wear the protective Wading Boots.

Wading Boots Learn how to use the boots so the piranhas can't nip at you when you wade. Do an about-face when you first appear in the area, then head for Jetties in the back corner.

A pair of Wading Boots will last for 20 seconds and will make it safe to splash through the water.

Croctus After every Croctus you feed, another golden gator will appear elsewhere. By finding and feeding eggs to all five hungry crocodiles, you'll win a puzzle piece.

If you launch an egg into each of the five crocodiles' snapping jaws, you'll earn a Juggy.

Yellow Jinjo A column of land juts out of the water to the left of the bridge. On top you'll find a yellow Jinjo, and near the base you'll find a partially submerged Mumbo Token.

Jump from the bridge, then flip to rescue the Jinjo. Wear the boots to wade to the Mumbo Token.

Stumped You'll find all sorts of goodies tucked in rotting tree stumps. Cross the bridge, then head right to search the stump. A frog will spring into action, but once you've defeated it, you can snag the Gold Feather inside the trunk.

THE BIG EGG

A gigantic egg containing a puzzle piece is nestled in one of the far reaches of the swamp. To find it, cross the first bridge, then leap off the log to land on the island with the Puzzle Switch. Head left to end your egg hunt.

Wading in After basting the two frogs, put on the pair of Wading Boots hidden in one of the hollow tree stumps, then wade behind the giant egg to pick up the musical notes.

To collect the submerged notes behind the egg, grab the boots hidden in the tree stump.

Egg-cracking Vault from the Shock Jump Pad to land on top of the egg, then Flip-Flip to snag the 1-up trophy. The egg contains a gold Juggy instead of a yellow yolk, but you'll have to break through five layers of shell to get to it.

X marks the spot, and in this case it marks the eggshell's weak spot. Pound or peck the X to get to the next layer of shell.

Puzzle Switch

When you pound the switch, you'll have 45 seconds to reach the jiggie that will appear at the opposite end of the bridge. To reach it in time, use Kazooie's legs and manually adjust the camera to keep sight of your ever-twisting pathway.

FLIBBITS

Floating near the Puzzle Switch is a lily pad that you can use as a stepping-stone. When you leap off it to reach the island of tree stumps, you'll land in the stomping grounds of a territorial troop of frogs known as the Flibbits.

 Frog Fight Fire your eggs to defeat the army of Flibbits. You'll never have to battle more than two at a time, and once all six croak, you'll win a jiggie.

TREETOPS

The Flibbits' island lies in the middle of Bubble Gloop Swamp. Adjacent to three of the island's four sides are Tanktup, the giant gator, and the Puzzle Switch area. If you head down the fourth side, you'll enter the forest of treetop huts.

HIGH ROADS

The first bridge leads to a log. Leap off it to reach the island with the Puzzle Switch on it. Connected to the island is a winding, tree-branch bridge that Kazooie can scale to uncover a jiggie, a Jinjo and a few notes.

Return Trip

Once you've snagged the jiggie, you can take your time retracing your steps to the foot of the bridge. On your way back down, follow the branching paths to pick up the Jinjo, a Mumbo Token and some eggs.

Inside Tanktup

Nab the Honeycomb Piece above TipTup, Banjo's old Diddy Kong Racing pal, by flap flipping off the podium.

Happy Together

The turtles will sing a three-, five-, and seven-note song. Pound the choir members in their singing order to score a jiggie.

Up to the Huts

Leap off the Shock Jump Pad to land on the front porch of the hut above you. Jump onto the roof, then Boak Bust it to reach the pad housed inside. Repeat the process to reach Capchus and the final hut's Jiggy.

Flip to Croctus to swap up the floating Mumbo Token.

Back Woods

The trees have foliage that grows inches above the water. One tree's low growth supports the boots. Wear them to nib the horns in the back of the woods.

Pink Jinjo

When Mumbo turns Banjo into a crocodile, return to the tree area to rescue a Jinjo. Only as a croc can Banjo fit under the tree's low hanging foliage.

THE GATOR

You'll find the giant crocodile head on the side of the swamp opposite Tanktop, neighboring the Filibbers' turf. Inside lives hungry Mr. Vile, but Banjo won't be able to visit until he gets a magical makeover from Mumbo.

Cattails

Keep Banjo's paws dry by leaping to and from the cattails growing in the water behind the gator head. Make a flying leap to one of the reeds, climb to the top, then flip to the next cattail.

Somersault into a Flip Flip Jump when on top of a cattail to collect reeds floating overhead.

Inside the Gator

If you visit Mumbo in his fort overlooking the gator head, he will transform Banjo into a crocodile. In reptilian form, Banjo will be small enough to fit into the nose of the gator head. Inside, play the "Whack-a-Mole"-style game to win a Jiggy.

THE MAZE

To find the lost maze, follow the uphill path by the gator head. Exterminate the dragonfly that guards the entrance by using the Rat-a-tat Rap, slip on the Wading Boots to enter, and be sure to have at least ten Mumbo Tokens handy.

Boot Scoot

Wear the boots in the maze, and put on a fresh pair whenever you reach dry land. Remove the old pair by pressing the B and Z Buttons simultaneously.

In the Shadows

At the maze's end sits Mumbo's hut. You'll find one token hidden behind it and another inside the hut if you snoop behind the shaman's chair.

Puzzle Switch

Adjust the camera so you can see the narrow path over Banjo's shoulder, then hit the switch. With Kazooie's surefootedness, stride across to nab the Jiggy.

Upper Deck

In the hut, leap onto the signpost beside Mumbo, then perform the Flip Flip jump to land on the hut's upper deck. Glide toward the center of the hut to claim the Honeycomb Piece.

FREZZEBY PEAK

Wade into the hollow log behind the swamp's entrance to find the Freezezy Peak puzzle. When you've completed the picture, open the 260-Note Door. By hopping into the urn beyond it, you'll warp to the jiggly inside the witch statue.

THE IGLOO

Honeybears hibernate in the winter, so Banjo's paws aren't used to walking on snow. Rely on Kazooie's feet to provide the traction that Banjo's can't. Her feet will come in especially handy taking on the peak's steep slopes.

Presents The three bear cubs' dad left their igloo home to finish them each a present. Father Boggy hasn't returned yet, so Banjo will play Santa and deliver the gifts to the kids. Search the island, snowman's nose, and Christmas tree's interior to find the presents.

Boggy Boggy has eaten a Jiggly and gotten indigestion, but you won't be able to help him until you find the sled on the snowman. When you ride it, you'll crash-land on Boggy, "Heimliching" the piece out of him.

THE TREE

At the foot of the slope, trek left to find the tree. While dashing through the snow, steer clear of incoming snowballs launched by the cold, ruthless snowmen. And don't take a dip in the water, because it's not fire—it's freezing.

Twinklies Begin the tree-lighting ceremony by flick Banjo the wobbling present at the end of the woodland walkway. As the Twinklies parade toward the tree, peck or pound any Twinkly Munchers.

If you help ten bulbs slip past the Twinkly Muncher, the light switch will appear.

Upon a Star Fire three eggs into the switch, then head to the present pile on the left. Blast off from the Flight Pad on top of the present wrapped in tree-patterned paper, then fly three times through the tree's star to expose a Jiggly.

Inside the Tree

Climb inside the Christmas tree to discover how lovely are its branches. Consummating them are a dozen notes, some eggs, a few feathers, a present and one Jiggly.

PRESENT PILE

You won't be able to open any of the presents piled just beyond the Christmas tree, but Bottles will give you the gift of a new move. By learning his Beak Bomb, Kazooie will be able to perform a rocketing aerial attack.

Beak Bomb Holed up behind the pile of presents in Bottles, who will teach Kazooie her new move. With the "Beak Bomb," she'll be able to rocket herself like a missile to hit targets and switches.

Pink Jinjo Hop onto the presents, then walk along the red gift to collect the musical notes. When you reach the yellow present, rescue the Jinjo on top of it by performing a Flip Flip Jump.

Snowman Smashing

Kazooie should Beak Bomb just about everything that looks like a target, so launch the fine-feathered torpedo into any X-shaped markings or red-and-blue bull's-eyes. The five snowball-pitching snowmen wear a top hats bearing red X's. By Beak-Bombing their scarlet letters, you'll defeat the snowmen. If you smash all five of them into slush, you'll uncover a Jiggy and a Witch Switch.

Boxed in Mumbo will transform Banjo in this world, so snag the tokens in the corner by the ramp lined with Red Feathers.

THE VILLAGE

Three snowbound cottages peek above the surface of the shore directly opposite the present pile. Pay a visit to this village just beyond the giant snowman's left side, because a Jinjo and some notes will be in the neighborhood.

Flight Pad One house has Red Feathers topping its roof. Once you've plucked them, you can become airborne by launching from the Flight Pad on top of the chimney.

Green Jinjo Listen for the tell-tale whistles and yelps of a Jinjo waiting to be rescued. You'll hear the green one calling you from the house with Red Feathers.

THE SNOWMAN

Chilling in the middle of Freezezy Peak is a giant snowman. Besides being outfitted in the usual snowman attire, he's also been decorated with notes, Jiggys and other items. To find them, take flight or scale his scarf.

In the Pipe Leap from the Shock Spring Pad beneath the snowman's nose to land on his log-toothed grin. One log is his pipe, and a Jiggy glows inside it.

On the Nose Spring from the pad on the snowman's smile to reach his nose. On his carrot-beak, you'll find a present plus a Flight Pad that will help you reach his hat and broom.

Blue Jinjo Take flight, then soar to the snowman's broom to rescue the Jinjo trapped on the snowcapped bushes. After grabbing the Jinjo and Gold Feather, leap to the scarf from the broom's highest point.

Land on the giant snowman's broom to sweep the Blue Jinjo off its feet.

On Target Once you've learned the Beak Bomb, use the kamikaze move on the giant snowman's buttons. By barreling into all three, you'll cause a Jiggy to appear between the snowman's legs.

The snowman's buttons mysteriously resemble targets. Hit the bullseyes using the Beak Bomb.

Sled Parked under the snowman's nose is a sled. When you hop on, you'll automatically sled down the scarf and become airborne. Luckily for you, Boggy's belly will break your fall.

Island Present Perhaps the most elusive present you must retrieve for the bear cubs is the green gift. To find it, leap to the island behind the giant snowman's right leg.

I AM THE WALRUS

Not all of Freezeezy Peak is suited for Banjo or Kazooie, and the land's inhabitants aren't accustomed to strangers. The pair had better mix in with the wintry environment. For 15 Mumbo Tokens, Mumbo will help them do it.

Ice Flight Rather than leaping across the chilly water and risking hypothermia, take off from a Flight Pad to fly to Mumbo's hut in the corner behind the three houses.

On the Rooftop

End your flight by landing on top of Mumbo's hut to snag the T-up.

SLED RACE

After your sled has careened into Boggy, the bear will be in the mood for a sled race. He'll be waiting for a challenger on top of the slope adjacent to the path leading to the igloo. Visit him first as a Mumbo-morphed walrus.

By Sled As a walrus, challenge Boggy to a race. Glide through the pairs of red flags so they turn green, and press the A Button to make your sled jump onto rooftops and around tight corners.

When you are the walrus, go for the gold Jiggy by racing Boggy in a sled race.

By Foot As Banjo, rematch Boggy for a second Jiggy. You'll race on foot, so wear the Running Shoes, which you'll learn to use in Gobi's Valley.

WOZZA'S CAVE

If you walk up the hill behind the present pile, you'll come upon Wozza the walrus and his cave. Wozza isn't fond of bees, but through Mumbo's magic, Banjo returns as a walrus, all cold feelings wrl thaw.

Knock, Knock

If Banjo approaches the cave as a walrus, Wozza will welcome him with open flippers and a leggy to boot. From then on, you can revisit as a bear.

Orange Jinjo

A noisy Jinjo terrorizes Wozza from atop a ledge inside the cave. Banjo the walrus can't reach the Jinjo, but Banjo the bear can, so you'll have to pay a second visit.

Gobi's Valley

The puzzle of Gobi's Valley hangs behind the 350-Note Door in the giant Guntilda head. Once you've filled in the missing pieces, return to the sun room, demolish the walled-off doorways to get the boots, then wade to the desert's entrance.

THE OASIS

A pool of water, a rarity for the desert, welcomes you when you enter Gobi's Valley. You'll also encounter beekeeper houses that will now be guarded by swarming bees. Use caution when gathering their honey, or you might get stung.

Yellow Jinjo

As soon as you appear in Gobi's Valley, turn around to see the stranded Yellow Jinjo. Jump to rescue it from its precarious perch that's surrounded by eel-infested sand.

Trunker

Stuffed Nose

Jump from Jinjo's nose onto the cactus. Take aim at his nose, then shoot an egg into each of his nostrils to open his nasal, as well as main entry, passage.

in BK this works, but don't try this in real life: put eggs into the dog's nose to decongest it

Rebooting

Musical notes and a 1-up trophy dot the edges of the eel-infested sand pool behind Jinjo's nest. Wear the Wading Boots to collect the items, but make two trips.

The Wading Boots won't last long enough for you to collect the 1-up and notes in one trip.

Loop Swoops Get on Jinxy's back to blast off his dorsal Flight Pad. Fly to the dog statue sitting on Jinxy's left, then soar through the ring on the sculpture's head.

You'll have to go through some hoops for this parlor for Jiggy. Fly through the rings above the five ancient heads to win it.

Inside Jinxy Hop onto the catpat, then fire an egg into the dog's mouth. When your rug floats up, turn to the right to spot the Orange Jinjo.

HANDS AND FEET

When you find Bottles, he'll teach you to use the Running Shoes that will temporarily boost Kazooie's running speed. Once you've learned how, you'll be ready to return to Freezery Peak to confront Boggy in a foot race.

Running Shoes As you approach the entrance of the pyramid that has a bird on its apex, veer left and head for the palm tree. A few paces from it you'll find Bottles, who will teach Kazooie to run like a track star with the Running Shoes.

Grabba Down the hill from Bottles is Grabba the hand. A Jiggy rests in its palm, but the hand will clench up before you can snatch away the piece. You'll be fast enough with the Running Shoes, so wear the pair that paces on the hill near the ziggurat.

Green Jinjo Using Kazooie's gravity-defying legs, trot to the back of the mummy's tomb. Hiding in an alcove carved into the pyramid is the Green Jinjo.

Getting In Thump the switch at the top of the tomb to open its door for ten seconds.

In the Tomb Using the Book Busts, flip over the tomb's floor tiles. On their undersides are pictures, and if you match all eight picture pairs, you'll win a Jiggy.

F-ZERO X

SPEED CHILLS

WHEN WE LAST ENCOUNTERED F-ZERO, SAMURAI GOROH OR STEWART, PICO AND CAPTAIN FALCON WERE BATTLING FOR SUPREMACY ON THE SUPER NES. AS OUR STORY CONTINUES, THE ACTION IS ABOUT TO REACH A HIGHER PLATEAU. WITH EXTRA CIRCUITS, FOUR-PLAYER RACES, A BATTLE BASH MODE, MIND-BENDING NEW TRACKS, 3D GRAVITY-DEFYING VEHICLES PILOTED BY FANATICAL DRIVERS, AND REALISTIC SPEEDS CLOCKING IN AT 60 FRAMES PER SECOND, F-ZERO X FOR THE N64 IS THE RACER OF THE MILLENNIUM.

MARK OF ZERO

F-ZERO ONE

In its day, the original F-Zero (released in 1991) ruled the video game realm of futuristic racing games. Its revolutionary Mode-7 scrolling gave it an almost 3-D look on inside, high-speed tracks. Shigeru Miyamoto's legendary play control felt so realistic that players were known to fall out of their chairs when rounding tight corners. But there were limitations, too. F-Zero was a one-player ride with just four cars to choose from, and short of falling out of their chairs, players never actually left the track. As beloved as F-Zero was, there comes a time to set aside the past and embrace the future.

F-ZERO X

The essence of the original F-Zero lives on in F-Zero X, but the experience has been intensified to a fever pitch. There's no looking back. The speed of the game seems to suck the air out of the room. (We recommend that oxygen masks be kept nearby.) The Rumble Pak kicks in when you accelerate or slam into another car. Four racing camera perspectives and the rearview camera give you total control of your environment. Multiple ghost cars mark your fastest laps in the Time Trial mode. Two hidden circuits and one hidden "Master" skill level raise the replay to new heights. And the four-player mode maintains the same incredible frame rate and clarity as the one-player game. X marks the game.

CAPT. FALCON'S
THE NAME. F-ZERO X
IS THE GAME.

VEHICLES

X-TREME MACHINES

The original anti-gravity cars have returned, along with 26 new ones, each with its own unique attributes.

Cars can also vary in color, since you can change the color scheme of any racer. The three essential attributes of F-Zero cars are Body, Boost, and Grip. Letter grades indicate the value of each attribute. For instance, the legendary Blue Falcon rates Body C, Boost C and Grip A. That means that it doesn't stand up well to slams, and it drains a lot of energy when using the Super Boost, but it handles very well. When you first plug in, only six cars are available. You'll earn the rest by winning circuits.

F-ZERO X

755.4 km/h

SUDDENLY...

PICO'S WILD GOOSE IS COOKED.

THRILLS & SPILLS

Most racing games feature a dozen tracks or less. That's not even a snack for a hungry F-Zero X pilot. If you open up the secret courses, you'll have the challenge of 24 separate tracks. Some of the names may be familiar to fans of the original F-Zero, but the new courses have more of everything—loops, twisting roadways, unbelievably long jumps, impossibly sharp turns, and even tracks without rails whose careless drivers may plunge into oblivion. With thirty other cars jostling each other for position, smashing into you, flying off the track and blowing up in your face, the F-Zero X challenge is total intensity.

NO ONE
COURSE WITH BABA

4-PLAYER FUN

X TO THE FOURTH

F-Zero X reaches its greatest potential when it's raised to the fourth power in the Vs Battle mode. Two, three or four drivers can plug in their N64 controllers and pull up to the starting line. Even if you don't have four players revved and ready to race, the field of four will be filled in with computer-controlled cars. Amazingly, there is virtually no slow-down in the 60-frame-per-second rate with two, three or four active split screen windows.

Multplayer matches can take place on any course in the Jack, Queen, or King Cup circuits, or the hidden circuits if you reveal them up.

Car selection for the multiplayer mode is limited by the number of X's you've won in the GP Race circuits.

The high frame rate and choice of four camera views mean that every player gets a great view of the action.

MORTAL CONQUEST

In the ultraviolent, and of course M-rated, Mortal Kombat 4 for the N64, Midway brings home its 1997 arcade hit, complete with heart-pounding action and heart-ripping fatalities. The fourth fighter in the MK franchise maintains the series' iconic feel, while introducing new fighters, 3-D graphics, and interchangeable weapons that can be picked up or snatched away. The game also pumps up the brutality, such as the bone-breaking F+LK move that will work for any character. But key to combat is the combo, and we've got a few that will be surefire hits.

MORTAL KOMBOS

A combo is the most effective attack to use, since it is a rapidly-executed string of non-stop hits and special moves. With a combo, you'll leave your opponent little reaction time, and with a juggle, or repeated tapping of the HP button, you can extend your barrage.

Starter: You can begin building most combos with a basic series of "Starter" moves. From there you'll be able to prolong your combo by linking more moves to this Starter sequence: jump then HP, HP, HK, Uppercut (D+HP).

To distance yourself from an opponent, use Cage's Law Fireball. A direct hit from the projectile attack will knock an enemy a few steps back.

F, D, F, LK

Every character has a special weapon, such as Johnny Cage's sword, that will deal about twice as much damage as a regular punch or kick.

F, D, F, HP

Fujin specializes in medium-range attacks, such as his Tornado Lift, that will briefly restrain an opponent. Follow up the move with a Slam.

B, B, LP

Fujin's laser crossbow is one of MKM's rare, long-range weapons. Press LP to fire straight ahead or tap HP or B+LP for a ricochet shot.

D, B, LP

Since his Tri-Blade assault and other special moves are long-distance attacks, Jarek can execute many of his combos at a safe distance.

F, F, HP

Even if an enemy is standing a medium distance away, Jarek can stick the combatant with his sword. If you press B+LP, Jarek will lunge and jab.

JAX

When Sonya turns up M.I.A. during her hunt for Jarek, Major Jackson Briggs mounts a search of his own. He instead stumbles upon MK4, where he finds the survival of Sonya and earth at the mercy of Shinnok.

Debugging the Empire

Our contacts at LucasArts came through with a long-hidden debug code. It's a long one, but it's worth the effort!

1. Name a new game or change the name of a current game to "Wampa-Stompa." The first letter of each word must be capitalized, and the dashes represent spaces.
2. Select any level and pause the game.
3. Press and hold all the C Buttons, Z, L, R and Left on the Control Pad.
4. While holding these buttons, press the Control Stick about halfway to the Left until you hear a tone.
5. While still holding all the buttons, press the Control Stick about halfway to the Right until you hear a tone.
6. Repeat steps 4 and 5.
7. Repeat step 4 one more time until new text appears on the top of the screen. Release all the buttons. Use the Control Pad or the L and R buttons to scroll through the cheat options. When you find one you like, press A to activate it and return to your game.
8. To access the cheat menu again, pause the game and repeat steps 3 and 4. To turn off the Wall Ghost and Villains Sleepy options, access the cheat menu and select these options a second time. To replenish your ammo at any time, activate the Get All Stuff option again.

You'll need both hands to enter this code, and maybe your toes or nose, too.

Wall ghost allows you to walk through walls, and invincibility, well, you know...

RECONNAISSANCE REPORT:

Our covert operatives have been able to gather some top-secret information on the opposition forces that you'll be facing. The best pilots will learn this dosed info well enough to exploit their enemies' strengths and weaknesses. Read the recon before taking off.

FOOT SOLDIERS

The enemy's fast soldiers aren't much of a match against your firepower. Since these slow-moving troops are armed with only machine guns, save your bigger weapons for more suitable targets. Sometimes it's best just to pass them by.

RAMMERS

We call these winged choppers "Rammers" because of their pilots' propensity to go on kamikaze-style missions. The flying torpedoes also have good LOS weapons. Too bad their lack of chaffing ability is such a serious weakness.

SUPER SOLDIERS

Unlike their gory comrades, these super soldiers can pose quite a threat to even the best pilot. They flip into you with rocket launchers, and if you don't blast 'em fast with a cluster bomb, they may attempt to grab your chopper by the tail!

RED & BLACK CHOPPERS

These red and black helicopters are some of the most dangerous flying foes you'll face. Not only are they extremely fast, but they have homing rockets, machine guns, and three chaffs for defense. Use your LOS weapons on them.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS

While these weapons have to tally stationary bases, the dual cannons on top can turn a full 360 degrees. They may be dangerous, but you can easily defeat them by firing homing missiles at them while staying out of their line of sight.

BLACK & WHITE CHOPPERS

These ships are the red and blacks' turn-bearing brothers. They, too, have three chaffs, but their arsenal is limited to LOS weapons. Still, what they lack in firepower, they make up for in defensive features. Their armor's a foot thick!

TANKS

Although these tanks lack homing weapons, they do have chaffing abilities and can launch decoys to confuse your homing missiles. Green tanks can do this only once, but tiger tanks can launch chaffs up to twice times.

MISSILE CARRIERS

These imposing ships are massive mobile missile launchers. In the air, they have unlimited machine guns but can shoot just one rocket at a time. If you allow them to land, however, they gain the ability to fire three rockets at once.

SUPER TANKS

Because these slow-moving monstrosities have no homing missiles, they use LOS ornaments, or weapons that hit only if you move into the tanks' line of sight. Still, their shells are formidable and their armor is thick.

SPY BOTS

You'll learn to love these surveillance drones! While they're unarmed, they can snap your picture, allowing the enemy's ships to swarm in on your exact position. Your best defense is to take them out fast with LOS weapons.

EGGSHELL CHOPPERS

These little choppers can be as tricky as a pilot as a swarm of mosquitoes is to a camper. But while they may sting with their machine guns and LOS weapons, they're easily swatted away with a missile or a flurry of Vulcan fire.

UFOs

You'll come across these two types of UFO if you reach the game's final stage. They're quick, hard to hit, and almost impervious to homing missiles. Move on them a bit later—for now, get used to the idea of running away!

FIXED-WING FLIERS

These fixed-wing aircraft come equipped with both rear-facing machine guns and a complete set of homing missiles. Consider these bad boys' chaffing abilities and overly wide bodies by using LOS weapons against them while they sit slow-ance through the sky.

SPACE BOTS

Found only in the last level, these dumb-bell-like drones are a lot like the spy bots mentioned above—if they take your picture, UFO reinforcements are sure to follow. But remember, sometimes looking down brings a fight against last defenses.

Listen up, pilots! A transport plane carrying POWs is approaching your adversary's airstrip. Your first mission is to neutralize its mobile and stationary radar positions so that we can proceed with rescue plans. Enemy forces are rather light, so you won't need very much expensive ammunition.

Your first order of business is to destroy any protection on the enemy's landing pads so that the rescue choppers can touch down safely. Your secondary goal is to go hunting for any POWs being transported in the enemy's trucks. Since most of your opposition is grounded, purchase AGM or LOS weapons.

1 It's worth your time and weaponry to blow up buildings like the ones you'll find in this location. They often contain power-ups such as cash, extra fuel, and if you're lucky, additional armor. Use only your Wildcat weapon to blast the buildings.

2 Before bombing these two stationary radar sites, destroy the tank guarding the closer array, then take on his armored buddy as he comes rolling across the bridge. With the two tanks out of the way, the radar sites will be only lightly defended.

3 Because they can zip over hilly terrain, the two mobile radar trucks can be awfully tough to pin down. To avoid a long cat-and-mouse chase, when your chopper is running on fumes, make a strong attempt to finish them off early in the mission.

4 When you see a tank just sitting at the base of a radar array like in this far-right corner of this airfield, position your chopper so that the array is between you and your foe. The tank will usually take out its own army in one or two shots.

1 Before you begin searching for POWs, clear the help pads of all obstructions. If you go after the prisoners first, they'll gather on the help pads where you risk picking them off when you're trying to blast away at the help pads' protection.

2 Try to destroy the POW transport trucks as close to the help pads as possible. Because the freed prisoners will have to hike to the pickup points, the farther they have to go, the more dangerous it will be.

3 To crush off the large cargo planes at the airport, shoot their wings and tail sections first. After these pieces have fallen off, start blasting away at the main body of the plane. Now collect the bonuses in the cargo boxes nearby.

COMBAT TIP: If you find a skull-and-crossbones box inside a blown-up building, either turn your vehicle around so that the box is outside your field of vision, or if the box is directly below your captives, fly forward as fast as you can.

In Mission 3, you'll be forced to shift operations to the Aguara Volcanic Range. It seems that your ally, the President of the Republic of Nero, has flown into enemy airspace, and it's up to you to destroy all enemy aircraft before they can blow him out of the sky. Try to follow the president's flight path.

1 If you have time, rip into the little villages that are located around the perimeter of the map. While most of the houses contain money boxes, there are also four Vulcan power-ups to be found—enough to make your gun a truly threatening weapon.

2 Try attacking your enemies while flying backward over the flat patch of land. Your opponents will have limited maneuverability if you can stay close to the perimeter, and they'll often fly straight ahead while you let loose with Vulcan fire.

COMBAT TIP Most of the aircraft in this mission have only one chaff to defend against homing missiles. To save ammo, wait for your missile to follow an enemy's chaff off the screen, then fire another while the enemy is flying defensively.

COMBAT TIP Flying backward is sometimes the best way to take down your foes. They usually come straight at you, which makes them easier to target. When you're the one chasing them, they can loop around and blast you from behind, but that won't work here.

Your enemies have seen enough of your hotshot behavior, so they're planning an all-out assault to get you grounded for good. Now you must fly into the fray, go completely ballistic, and not come back until your last foe has fallen. See those red blips on your radar screen? Sick 'em!

1 Your secondary objective in this mission is to locate any hostages who may be stuck away in the enemy's buildings. Whatever you do, never use really heavy artillery to blow up these bunkers, because the resulting blast may harm the hostages.

2 You'll find the same villages in this mission as you did in the last, but this time they're heavily defended with ground-based weaponry. As you approach a village, switch to your AGMs and take out the big guys before they have a chance to fire.

COMBAT TIP Since the nasty big tanks can chaff away your homing missiles three times in a row, the best attack strategy is to come in really close to these tanks then blast them back to the Stone Age with unguided cluster bombs.

COMBAT TIP It's best to cluster bomb these soldiers before they get the chance to grab the tail of your chopper. If they latch a ride, not only will your helicopter be hard to control, but the guy won't fall off until you're hit by enemy fire.

Intelligence claims that chemical weapons are being produced at an underground facility in the Compania Caves. Your targets are few, but the enemy forces will be extremely fierce. Besides maneuvering through the caverns at a slow pace, you should consider buying lots of AGMs and cluster bombs.

Your opponents are using transport planes to deliver new bombers to their base in the desert, and it's up to you to clip their wings. Although these four ships are slow moving and completely unarmed, you should expect the enemy's well-equipped land and air forces to act as their defenders.

1 While these massive, grounded gannets may look intimidating, they're actually fairly easy to destroy. When you discover them hiding behind the cavern's low bridges, simply target them with a few short bursts of homing rockets and Vulcan fire.

2 Your main goal in this mission is to sink the floating chemical factories. To take them out with the utmost efficiency, hit 'em with cluster bombs from a slight distance while keeping your gunship pretty close to parallel with the ground.

3 Because the huge hydroplane seairls to have unlimited shells, you'll need to splash with your Vulcan guns and unguided weapons when trying to put a hole in the bottom of the boat. If you have cluster bombs left, the better off be belief.

COMBAT TIP: Aim your AGMs to deal with the anti-aircraft defenses protecting the chemical plants are one of the cavern's longer passages. Try to lock on to them before you swing around a corner and have to fight them face to face.

1 Besides having homing cluster bombs, you'll have to stay over higher ground to keep down the cargo planes. If you're on top of the mesas, it's easy to keep the big ships in your sights. Also, pick up all the bonuses before you bomb the last plane.

2 If you want to rack up points, be sure to free the hostages stashed away in the enemy's bunkers. Most are protected by tanks and spy bots, so be sure to blast those baddies before carefully freeing the hostages with your Vulcan weapon.

3 The numerous anti-aircraft gun emplacements can be a real pain if you're trying to make your way to the top of the towering mesas. Get rid of pesky defenses by launching AGMs while staying below and well back from the guns' line of sight.

COMBAT TIP: The missile carriers will present the greatest threat to you on the mesas, especially if you let them land. Take along a few grenades, which, when launched, will feed the carrier's missiles into following the wrong target.

Similar to the fourth mission, this mission requires you to eradicate every red blip that shows up on your radar. Unfortunately for you, you now have the added responsibility of destroying multiple missile sights while taking on much larger concentrations of air and ground combatants than you've ever faced before.

As it turns out, your real adversaries have unearthly origins, and they maintain their base of operations on the Moon! Try to topple the mother ship by bursting all of her blue bubbles. It's a challenging feat to say the least. With any luck, your new mystery ammo will make this battle a little less lopsided.

1 After polishing off all the enemies near the mission's starting point, be sure to head your chopper straight for the well-defended crater base. Targeting the base's ground forces from high up on the crater's walls will give you the advantage.

2 These large towers at the bottom of the crater hold numerous bonuses, most of which is money. If you want to take the time to grab all the money, make sure you target every section of the tower separately with your Vulcan weapon.

3 If you'd like to trade precision for power, don't forget to feed the mini-bunker hidden away in the lower-left section of the map. You'll want to release them early in the mission so they'll have time to take to the faraway pickup pad.

COMBAT TIP You won't get a 100% enemy-destruction bonus unless you take out every last foe soldier in this battle. Instead of wasting your time and fuel by using your Vulcan weapon, just cluster-bomb them in big bunches.

COMBAT TIP To have a shot at winning this battle, you should just ignore the UFOs and target your LOG rockets and Vulcan at only the blue domes beneath the mother ship. If you don't fire on the UFOs, they tend not to fire back.

COMBAT TIP Once you've polished off the mother ship's smaller domes, one last, larger dome will appear. Pop it and back off fast when the multiple attack drones emerge. Use homing plasma to defeat them, then watch the mother ship crash down.

COMBAT TIP In order to win the Sonargy, you first have to beat it in battle. Homing plasma will really help you here, but if you have to use more conventional weapons like LOG rockets, avoid firing on the dippy ship when its shield is up.

3 There are lots of moon bases around, but don't blast them apart for bonuses until after you've brought down the mother ship. To avoid being attacked while scavenging, aim your chopper straight down—the Sonargy will usually leave you alone.

HOME IMPROVEMENTS

A REAL FIXER-UPPER

Your grandfather might have been a Harvest Master, but that was many years ago when this farm was in mint condition. Besides planting crops and raising animals, you'll have to clear the land of rocks and old tree stumps. You start each day with a limited amount of stamina, so you'll have to make every move count. Listed below are the best tips for farming out.

If you make it through your first year, you'll earn an additional plot of land for your spread.

Don't waste valuable energy breaking up small rocks with your hammer. Pick up the rocks and drop them in the pond as trash.

One of the biggest breaks you'll find in the game is hidden in your dresser drawer. Use the cash to buy extra seed.

Until your horse is old enough to carry crops in the Saddlebags, grow your crops as close as possible to the shipping crate.

Don't worry about expanding your house until you have a steady cash flow from your animals and the crops in your fields.

PLOT YOUR PLOTS

You can plant your fields any way you like, but you'll have a slow time watering, picking and transporting your produce to the shipping crate if you don't plan ahead. Listed below are the pros and cons for the most popular planting patterns.

Square plots use all the seeds in each sack, but you won't be able to reach the crops in the middle.

Rows are the quickest to water with a sprinkler, but you can harvest only 66% of the seeds that you sow.

C-shaped plots are wasteful designs that grow only 66% of the seeds from each sack you sow.

U-shaped plots are productive and easy to water, allowing you to harvest 88% of your planted seeds.

"I'D LIKE TO THANK ALL THE LITTLE PEOPLE..."

Harvest Sprites live in the caverns beneath your farm. These magical creatures will help you by powering up the tools in the Tool Shed, but first you'll have to earn their trust by giving them gifts or by helping them when they need it. Be sure to visit them often, especially after soaking in the Hot Springs.

Harvest Sprites like eating the mushrooms beneath the Tool Shed. Earn their trust by picking one for them whenever you visit.

YOUR MONEY WELL SPENT

THE TOOLS OF YOUR TRADE

Not counting the nine different types of seed, there's room for twenty items in the Tool Shed. If you've already played Harvest Moon on the Super NES, one glance will tell you that this game has a ton of new gadgets and gizmos for getting the chores done down on your farm. Check out our chart for the hardware facts before you start working your fields.

Axe/Super Axe Use the Axe to chop up stumps. Tell the truth to the Harvest Goddess to earn the Super Axe.	Hammer/Super Hammer The Hammer can break large rocks. You'll have to remodel your house to earn the Super Hammer.	Hoe/Super Hoe Use the Hoe to till your fields. The Harvest Sprites will turn it into the Super Hoe if you're helpful.
Sickle/Super Sickle The Sickle can cut tall grass. You'll get the Super Sickle if you keep helping the Harvest Sprites.	Watering Can You'll get the Watering Can as a bonus when you buy seeds for the first time at the Flower Shop.	Sprinkler 2,000 GP Ann will make a Sprinkler for you. Look for it in the Tool Shop on the 10th day of spring.
Umbrella Only a true Harvest Master can open the magical Umbrella and make it rain on a sunny day.	Lumber 500 GP You can earn lumber by chopping up the stumps on your farm or by buying it at the Carpenter Shop.	Cow Bell Call the cows with your Cow Bell. You'll get it as a reward when you buy your first cow.
Brush 800 GP The Brush is sold in the Tool Shop. Brush your cows every day to keep them happy and healthy.	Milker 1,800 GP The Milker is also sold at the Tool Shop. You'll need to use it to milk your well-fed, mature cows.	Cow Food 700 GP If your milks running low, you can always go to the Animal Store to buy extra Cow Food.
Chicken Feed 500 GP Use Chicken Feed only when your silo is empty. This expensive food will quickly drain cash reserves.	Medicine 1,000 GP Your cows will get sick if you neglect them. Buy Medicine from the Animal Store to cure them.	First Aid Kit 2,000 GP The First Aid Kit is an improved Medicine vaccine. Buy it at the Animal Store the second year.
Cow Potion 4,000 GP First-rated cows are happier than store-bought cows. Buy this potion if you want to raise a calf.	Pick Axe Only a Harvest Master can wield a Pick Axe. You might get it as a gift at the end of the year.	Saddledings 2,500 GP The Saddledings work just like a portable shipping crate. Look for them during your second year.
Better Churn 30,000 GP Ann will make a Better Churn during the second year. Visit her Tool Shop to see when it's done.	Cheese Maker 30,000 GP Ann will also construct a useful but very expensive Cheese Maker for you during the second spring.	Fishing Pole You won't get the Fishing Pole until you're a Harvest Master. You can fish inside the caverns.

REVIVE YOUR ENERGY

Each day you'll have to expend energy to get the work done around your farm. You can revive some energy by eating, drinking or soaking in the Hot Springs. Find out how much energy you can restore on the chart below.

Item/Activity	Restores
Meat Omelet	10 points
Rice Ball	20 points
Croissant	30 points
Cake	25% power
Loaf	50% power
Milk	10 points
Green Tea	20 points
Wild Grape Juice	30 points
Apple Juice	50% power
Orange Juice	100% power
Soak in Hot Springs	20% power

BERRY, BERRY GOOD

Finding a Power Berry will extend your stamina by five points. Try digging around for Power Berries in your fields. You can find out how many berries you've collected by counting the Power Berry Plants growing in the flower box inside your house.

RAISING ANIMALS

While it won't help your cash flow, you'll earn a high happiness score if you raise chicks and calves on your farm instead of buying them at the Animal Store. Your cows produce more milk when they're happy, so talk to them and brush them every day. You can also take them on walks on sunny days. Chickens require much less care, but they eat as much food as cows.

Your cows become happy when ever you brush and talk to them. Try taking them out for a walk, too.

Feed your chickens every day if you miss a feeding, they'll refuse to lay eggs for three days straight.

SPRING

Starting work on your run-down farm seems overwhelming, especially when you consider the staggering number of tasks that need to be done right away. Play it smart by clearing a small portion of your land around your shipping crate where you can plant vegetables, then plow a tiny plot for growing grass. If you're in need of extra cash, don't forget to pick the mushrooms growing beneath the Tool Shed. You should have at least one chicken and a chick in your coop before summer arrives.

Try to plant your first batch of crops close to the shipping crate.

Add more plots of grass later in the spring as you need more chickens.

FARMER'S ALMANAC

7 th	Clear Your Land	In the morning, make a trip to the Flower Shop and buy some seed. Don't bother clearing your entire spread—just clear enough to plant five potato fields and some grass.
10 th	You Get a Horse!	A lost horse will wander into your fields today. When the horse matures, you'll be able to load produce into the Saddlebags, reducing your trips to the shipping crate.
24 th	Last Day to Plant Potatoes	This is the last day you can put potatoes in the ground and harvest them before the first day of summer. The 25th day of spring is the last day to plant radishes.
27 th	A Picnic!	The picnic will improve your happiness score, and there's little you can do to avoid going. Make sure you feed your animals before you turn in at the end of the day.

SEASONAL CROPS

Potatoes

Price: 150 GP Yield: 80 GP

Potatoes take longer to grow than turnips, but these vegetables are the best cash crop in the spring.

Turnips

Price: 120 GP Yield: 60 GP

You'll get quick cash growing turnips, but it's a good idea to switch to potatoes to make more money.

SUMMER

Your farming work will kick into high gear. This profitable time of year is your golden opportunity to grow the cash crops that cost little to price produce. Use the revenue from your dozens of seeds and expand the plots around. Stay up late plowing your fields and plowing start turning a profit, use the cash from your fields and make improvements to your home.

Work into the night to prepare your fields for growing corn or tomatoes.

Make sure you pick the best tomatoes.

If you're aiming for a high happiness score, the fall is the best time to try raising a calf. This is the last chance you'll have to plant and harvest grass to feed your animals. Spend your money carefully and wisely. You can beat a potential winter cash crunch by stocking your pantry with extra food and beverages now, so you'll have one less expense later.

Helping a neighbor in need will enhance your happiness score.

In the fall, cutting the grass should be as important as watering it.

This is a strictly optional step since your expectant cow won't be producing milk, and you'll lose money for a season. Visit the Animal Shop for the cow-raising details.

15th

Clear Your Farm

Clearing the rest of your farm raises your farming stats at the end of the year. Haul away or break up the rocks in the field and cut up any remaining tree stumps.

20th

Last Day to Plant Grass

This is the last day of the year that you'll be able to plant and harvest grass before winter. Make sure you have enough in your silo to feed your animals until spring.

SEASONAL CROPS

Eggplant

Price: 150 GP Yield: 60 GP

Eggplant grows in just five days. There isn't a big demand for the crop, so you won't make a huge profit.

Peanuts

Price: 200 GP Yield: 60 GP

Peanuts mature in seven days. Peanut seeds are more expensive than eggplant, so your profit margins less.

WINTER

If you have not stocked up on feed and food, winter will be the toughest thirty days of the entire year. Unlike the first Harvest Moon on the Super NES, Harvest Moon GB features new, harder crops that can grow in cold weather. The winter crop seeds have a high price tag, which might leave impoverished farmers feeling left out in the cold. If you're short on cash, remember that you can always make a little additional money by picking the mushrooms growing beneath the Tool Shed.

Grass won't grow in the winter, so make sure you've stocked your silo.

Carrots will last a winter profit if you have enough cash for the seeds.

FARMER'S ALMANAC

19 th	Last Day to Plant Broccoli	This is the last day you can plant broccoli and harvest it before spring. The 23 rd is the last day you can plant carrots. Use the money to buy feed when you need it.
20 th	Catch the Bird	A neighbor girl has lost her pet bird. If you look around for it, you might be able to help her. Finding the bird will raise your overall happiness score in the game.
24 th	Winter Party	Depending on where you are and what you're doing, someone may stop by your farm today and invite you to a party. Attending the event will raise your happiness score.
30 th	Your Evaluation	On the last day of winter, your grandfather will revisit you and tell you how well you've done on the farm. Depending on your success, he might give you some nifty gifts.

SEASONAL CROPS

Broccoli

Price: 500 GP Yield: 120 GP

Broccoli is expensive and slow to grow. Of all the crops in the game, it has the lowest profit margin.

Carrots

Price: 300 GP Yield: 120 GP

Carrots are a cool cash crop that grow almost as fast as eggplant, but the seeds cost as much as corn.

NEXT YEAR

MASTER OF ALL YOU SURVEY

If your grandfather likes your work, you'll become a Harvest Master. After you see your scores and statistics, the game will move on into the next year. Then you'll find that your farm has more land, and Ann will be selling new gizmos like the Cheese Maker. You'll now own the farm, and sky will be the limit—as the Harvest Master, you'll decide when the game ends.

Hell-Bert. Lets summarize

Grandpa is back to tell you how well you've done on the farm. He'll show your happiness score and judge how well you did growing crops, clearing land and raising animals.

THE FARMER'S MARKET

What? You want to start a new game and erase your prized cows and all your hard work? Don't let your hard work go to waste—share your best animals with a fellow farmer through the Game Boy Game Link Cable. Pick up the phone inside your ranch and call the Ranch Center to make your trades.

Hello? Hello? Buddy, can you spare a prized cow or two? How about my pet dog for your cat? Trade your livestock with a fellow farmer through a Game Link Cable.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? A FINAL SECRET

How you enter your name determines which crops you'll be able to buy and grow. Capitalize the first letter in your name to grow eggplant and carrots. Leave the first letter in your name in lower case to grow peanuts and broccoli. If you want to grow all four crops, replace the first letter in your name with a symbol, such as a heart.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE™

©1999 Paramount Pictures. All rights reserved. ©1999 Nintendo Game Boy Advance.

It's here at last! Infogrames' Mission: Impossible places you in the role of super agent Ethan Hunt for 23 stages of covert intrigue.

This N64 thriller includes some of the action feel that made GoldenEye 007 a hit, along with challenging logic puzzles, feats of skill and linking cinema scenes. Since so much of the game involves puzzle-solving, we felt it was important to limit our coverage to key tips. If you are caught or killed, the secretary will disavow any knowledge of your actions. Good luck.

ICE HIT

Your first IMF mission, Ethan, is to stop the insane plans of an arms dealer who would start a nuclear war. In a once-abandoned submarine base on the North Sea, arms shipments to dictators around the world have resumed. With your IMF team, you must penetrate this facility and destroy it before the nuclear cargo is shipped.

LUNDKWIST BASE

This base just outside the perimeter of the submarine port will be the easiest place to slip inside unnoticed. Once there, you should disguise yourself so that you fit in, then look for a way to reach the sub pen area.

OBJECTIVES:

- GET TO SUB PEN WITH CLUTTER
- CHANGE IDENTITY
- FIND AN EXCUSE FOR ARRANG

SUB PEN

The frigid cold will destroy your mask by the time you reach the sub pen, so you'll be an obvious target. You may have to use your gun, but try to limit your shots since they can draw attention to you.

OBJECTIVES:

- FIND MAGNET'S BOMB
- GIVE HINT TO GENTLE
- JOIN DOWDY FOR GETAWAY

CHANGE IDENTITY

Look for an important person, not a guard, before using the Face Mask tool.

FIND MAGNETIC BOMB

The magnetic bomb that Clutter will use to sabotage the submarine is being kept out of the cold in a bunker. Get it.

FIND AN EXCUSE

Access to the sub pen is restricted. Give the guard something that must be delivered in person.

JOIN DOWDY FOR GETAWAY

Before you escape, you may have to set off an explosion on a boat on the far side of the sub pen.

RECOVER NOC LIST

The NOC list contains the names of all CIA operatives working undercover in the old Eastern Bloc. Two of our agents have already attempted to retrieve the missing half of the list, but it is believed that they have been compromised. The computer list is being kept in the KGB HQ, which is connected to the Russian Embassy. That's your way in, Edon. If you can save Davies and Barnes, do it, but get the NOC list at any cost.

EMBASSY FUNCTION

The embassy function won't be a party. Although you have access, the armed guards will be looking for anything suspicious. If you can contact our operatives inside, you may have a chance. The key is to get into the security area on the second floor.

OBJECTIVES:

- FIND FACEMAKER
- FIND SCORP
- FIND NAUSKA WOMEN
- FIND GRIND
- PLACE SMOKE GENERATORS
- ELIMINATE KILLER
- ACCESS AMBASSADOR'S OFFICE
- ACCESS RESTRICTED AREA

FIND FACEMAKER

Pick up the Facemaker from Agent Davies in the embassy, but be careful during the exchange.

PLACE SMOKE GENERATORS

You'll need a diversion when you try to escape. Smoke generators in the ventilation ducts should do the trick.

ELIMINATE KILLER

We've received reports that an assassin may be waiting in the embassy, or maybe it's just a double agent with an axe to grind. Identify the killer, then eliminate the threat, but be discrete. You'll have just one shot.

ACCESS RESTRICTED AREA

The guard won't let a stranger into the security area on the second floor. Perhaps the ambassador's aid will offer a solution.

EMBASSY WAREHOUSE

The basement warehouse links the embassy to the secret headquarters of the KGB. We suspect that it's booby-trapped, and there will certainly be guards present. Your objectives are to find a way through the maze and to stay alive.

OBJECTIVES:

- FIND EXIT KEY
- ACCESS EMBASSY HQ

FIND THE EXIT KEY

The KGB won't leave the key just lying around. You'll probably have to take it from a guard.

FIND OXYGEN

Our intelligence indicates that poison gas is kept in the warehouses. You may want to look for a protective suit.

KGB HEADQUARTERS

This will be your biggest challenge, Ethan. Inside KGB HQ your disguise may not hold up for long, and everyone is armed. We believe Candice is being held here, and possibly Barnes, as well. Brute force won't get you anywhere. You'll have to dupe the guards if you hope to free the prisoners.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

NINTENDO 64

The hallways of the HQ complex will be patrolled by armed guards. Whatever you do, don't pull out a gun where it can be seen. In disguise, you'll have access to most rooms, but that may not be enough. You may need a few faces.

OBJECTIVES:

- TALK TO BARNES
- FIND VIDEO FREEZER
- FIND FACEMAKER DISGUISE
- FIND BAIT ROOM
- SABOTAGE VIDEO LINK
- FIND BAIT PASSCARD
- GET TRANSFER ORDER
- ESCAPE WITH CANDICE

FIND VIDEO FREEZER

Not just anyone can walk off with this piece of technology. Only a senior security official will have clearance.

SABOTAGE VIDEO LINK

Once you find the video security room, which may be hidden, use the Video Freezer.

GET TRANSFER ORDER

Once the video cameras are all dead, an IMF colleague outside the embassy will transmit a false transfer order.

SECURITY HALLWAY

The KGB never takes half measures when it comes to security. The corridors leading to the computer complex in the old sewage works have been booby-trapped with electrical floor panels and overhead automatic guns. Chances are you'll also run into armed guards. Candice should be able to lend a hand.

OBJECTIVES

- SECURE PASSAGE FOR CANDICE
- ACTIVATE MASTER SWITCH

SECURE PASSAGE FOR CANDICE

Dedicated guards with no sense of humor lurk around every corner. Make their day.

ACTIVATE MASTER SWITCH

On the far end of the hallway, look for the switch that deactivates the security measures.

SEWAGE CONTROL

The KGE located its best computer analysis complex in the old Sewage Control facility because it's out of the way and it keeps the super computers cool. We believe this is where you'll find the NOC list. Since the list is encrypted, they'll be working on it night and day. If you find the main computer, Candice will do the rest.

OBJECTIVES:

- FIND THE SUPER COMPUTER
- PROTECT CANDICE
- GET THE NOC LIST
- ESCAPE

FIND THE SUPER COMPUTER

The main computer room won't be easy to access. Its door is thought to be activated by a timing switch.

PROTECT CANDICE

Since Candice is the only one who can download the NOC list, her survival is essential.

GET THE NOC LIST

If you see to it that Candice reaches the main computer room, she'll download the NOC list onto a disk.

ESCAPE

Getting out of the facility should present no problems, but keep a lookout for armed guards.

FINISH THE MISSION

With the NOC list in hand, you'll be the target of every KGB agent in the city. Watch out for automatic systems, too. If you can find Galyzin's mask, you can complete Barnes' mission on the way out. To complete the mission, you'll have to unjam the video security back at HQ.

OBJECTIVES:

- SECURE MESSAGE FOR CANDICE
- FIND THE MASK OF GALYZIN
- UNFREEZE VIDEO CAMERAS
- ASSASSIN GALYZIN'S IDENTITY
- FIND THE EXIT KEY
- EXIT INTO THE WAGON WITH CANDICE

UNFREEZE VIDEO CAMERAS

If you unfreeze the video cameras and put on Galyzin's mask, you can see to it that Barnes' mission wasn't in vain.

FIND THE EXIT KEY

The double doors to the embassy are locked, so you'll have to find an exit key, it's probably being kept by a mouse.

FIRE ALARM ESCAPE

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

NINTENDO 64

All your careful planning will pay off if you make it back to the embassy while the smoke generators create a diversion. One of our agents will be disguised as a fireman responding to the blaze, and he can get you out. The first moments will be the most dangerous, since you'll be out of disguise and guards are running around everywhere.

With smoke filling the ballroom and corridors of the embassy, it won't be easy getting around. Memorize the layout ahead of time, particularly the location of the bathroom, which is the farthest point from where you enter the embassy on the second floor.

OBJECTIVES:

- SECURE ACCESS TO THE LIFT
- FIND JACK
- DRESS AS A FIREMAN
- GIVE CANDICE A FIREMAN OUTFIT
- ESCAPE THE EMBASSY

SECURE ACCESS TO THE LIFT

It's too risky for both of you to look for Jack. Make sure Candice gets to the lift where she can wait.

FIND JACK

Look for your contact near the bottom of the main stairway. He'll be dressed like the other firemen. If you're accosted by a security guard, fight him or spray him with a fire extinguisher. Don't risk exchanging the extra fireman's suits in the open. Go to the bathroom to make the switch.

DRESS AS A FIREMAN

Sometimes disguises don't have to be elaborate at all. A coat and hat can be enough.

GIVE CANDICE A FIREMAN OUTFIT

Since Jack gives you two fireman's suits for disguises, you should return to the elevator and give the second suit to Candice.

DON'T ACT SUSPICIOUS

Act cool on the way to the embassy. A real fireman wouldn't fight security guards, for instance, or run at top speed.

ESCAPE THE EMBASSY

The smoke generators won't last forever. Make your way to the double doors in the hallway and escape.

ESCAPE FROM THE CIA

In spite of your success in Europe, the CIA isn't happy with your performance. In fact, they think that you're a mole working for the other side. Only Candice has faith in you, and she will help you escape from one of the most heavily secured buildings in the world. If that's not enough, you'll also have to steal the NOC list again.

INTERROGATION ROOM

After being grilled by your superiors, who are ready to toss you in prison and throw away the key, you will be left alone while a knockout drug makes you woozy. You'll have only a limited time to escape before the drug turns you into a zombie. If you make it to the infirmary, talk to the doctor about an antidote, but don't hang around for long.

ESCAPE FROM INTERROGATION

Open the two-way mirror using the button on the lock wall, then shatter the glass with the explosive gun.

PICK UP EQUIPMENT

Grab dart gun, use fingerprint scanner, and one scanner are all the help you'll get; armed, to escape.

OBJECTIVES:

- ESCAPE FROM INTERROGATION
- PICK UP EQUIPMENT
- GET INTO THE HALLWAY
- GET OUT OF THE INTERROGATION SECTION
- TAKE FIVE ACCESS PRINTS
- FIND GUNSHOT FOR SAC ADVANCE
- REACH ELEVATOR TO INFIRMARY

TAKE FIVE ACCESS PRINTS

Since the guards have access to the secure rooms, you can take their fingerprints to open locked doors.

REACH ELEVATOR TO INFIRMARY

An enclosed gas can be as persuasive as a lethal weapon. You may have to "persuade" a security man to access the lift.

FIND ANTIDOTE

Stagger around the perimeter of the room until you reach the doctor. He'll probably suggest that you see the nurse for an antidote.

CIA ROOFTOP

If you thought security was tight inside CIA HQ, wait until your attempt to bypass the guards and systems on the roof. Candice has set things up so that you can escape, but not until you retrieve the precious NOC list from the main CIA computer. The only way to reach it is from the roof.

OBJECTIVES

- SABOTAGE HELIPORT LIGHTS
- FIND BAG OF EQUIPMENT
- FIND ZONE DIGITCARDS
- FIX LIGHTS
- INSTALL EMS NEAR HELIPORT
- ENTER SECURITY LEVEL
- FIND SECURITY LEVEL CODE
- MEET GANDBOX

TERMINAL ROOM

The ventilation access shaft is crisscrossed with cameras and alarms. The only way to navigate this dangerous maze is by using the C button command to shift your perspective. Once through, you'll have to swing across to the door in order to lock it out, then you'll have to reach the computer and download the NOC list.

OBJECTIVES

- SWITCH ON THE COMPUTER
- GET THE NOC LIST
- ESCAPE

ROOFTOP ESCAPE

The final dash to the chopper is even more dangerous since you'll be recognized by any guards who see you. A diversion could be useful as you try to enter the restricted heliport area—perhaps a blown duct would suffice. When you reach the heliport, don't forget to get rid of the EMS jamming system.

OBJECTIVES

- JOIN THE HELIPORT
- DEACTIVATE EMS
- ESCAPE WITH THE HELICOPTER

SABOTAGE HELIPORT LIGHTS

You'll need an excuse to get into the secure area. Sabotaging the lights gives you all the excuse you'll need.

FIND BAG OF EQUIPMENT

Candice included essential gadgets and a maintenance man's disguise for you in the bag.

FIND ZONE DIGITCARDS

Knock out the guard on the left patrol route to get the digitcard. The second card is beyond a locked door.

FIND SECURITY LEVEL CODE

Use the video camera to monitor the security code. The trick will be placing it in the right spot.

SWITCH ON THE COMPUTER

Once you're at the correct height, swing until you reach the computer console. The rest is easy.

ESCAPE

Once the NOC list is on your disk, you'll swing back over the floor. Immediately pull yourself up the ventilative shaft.

CREATE DIVERSION

You need to attract the attention of the guards without revealing yourself. Blowing up the ducts should serve that purpose.

ESCAPE WITH THE HELICOPTER

If you reach the chopper, destroy the EMS and disable the guards. You'll have nowhere to go but up and away.

MOLE HUNT

Disavowed and on the run, you have no choice but to try to dig up the mole in order to clear your name. The plan Candice has cooked up involves selling the NOC list to Max in exchange for the name of the mole. The meeting is set for Waterloo Station in London, but nothing ever turns out as simple as you might hope. Luckily, you have extra help.

WATERLOO STATION

OBJECTIVES:

- PROTECT ETHAN
- TAKE THE TRAIN

Two ex-CIA operatives have sided with Ethan and Candice for the meeting with Max. Located in the rafters of the train station, they are equipped with sniper rifles to protect Ethan. When Max's henchmen open fire, use the snipers to keep Ethan safe. You'll have to switch between the two snipers using the B button. Be careful to avoid innocent bystanders.

DON'T SHOOT CIVILIANS

If you shoot a civilian for any reason, the game is up. Make sure that your targets have drawn weapons before you shoot.

FIRING THE FIRST SHOT

It might make sense to take out the goons closest to Ethan first, then shoot the train so before he has a chance to react. Your aim will have to be perfect, though, or you'll hit Ethan.

PROTECT ETHAN

Protect Ethan by shooting bad guys. Get rid of the first two thugs with two shots, then target other goons as they appear.

TAKE THE TRAIN

Once Ethan has survived the attacks from Max's henchmen, he'll meet up with Candice and get on the train to follow Max.

USE BOTH SNIPERS

Ethan covers a lot of ground while looking for Max, and you'll have to keep him in your sights the entire time to protect him. The only way to do that is to shift between your two snipers.

TRAIN CAR

There's a reason nobody travels by train these days. It's because they're filled with gun-toting secret agents. Your desperate mission is to hunt down Max on the crowded train, take out her body guards, avoid hurting civilians, and recover the NOC list. Candice thinks that the real mole might be on the train, as well. You'll have to be a sharpshooter here more than in any other stage because your ammo is limited.

OBJECTIVES

- NEUTRALIZE MAX'S HENCHMEN
- MEET CANDICE
- BLOCK THE EXITS
- NEUTRALIZE MAX'S HENCHMAN
- FIND THE LIST
- AVOID THE BOMB EXPLOSION

NEUTRALIZE MAX'S HENCHMEN

Aim high and use the cover of walls, compartments and seat backs. Use the C Buttons to move sideways and zoom while aiming.

MEET CANDICE

If you make it past all the trigger-happy henchmen, you'll find Candice in a compartment. She'll hand over the Facemaker and give capsules.

BLOCK THE EXITS

After blocking the exit in the passage between train cars, you'll have more henchmen to face and the NOC list to retrieve.

AVOID THE BOMB EXPLOSION

The bomb is in the luggage car at the end of the train, but first you'll have to go forward and get the NOC list. A new face might come in handy.

TRAIN ROOF

Once it is clear that Phelps is the mole, the chase is on to catch the traitor before he links up with the helicopter. There's only one objective, but it's a tough one since Phelps's henchmen are guarding the roof. Pick up a dropped rocket launcher when you get the chance.

OBJECTIVE

- CATCH PHELPS

EYES ON THE ROAD

In addition to watching for the bad guys on the roof of the train, keep a lookout for danger from the highway. Many of Phelps's men will drive by and shoot. Don't ignore them, because they won't go away.

DON'T GET SHOCKED

The Y-shaped extensions on the roof of the train are the electrical connections. If you touch one, you'll get zapped. Stay clear of them while chasing Phelps toward the back of the train.

SHOOT THE HELICOPTER

Even worse than thugs in cars and thugs on the roof are the thug-filled helicopters that hover overhead. Shoot them all, starting with the pilot with the top C Button.

ICE STORM

Five nuclear missiles have turned up back at the sub base. Now that you've been reinstated in the IMF, you're in charge of the operation—the most complex to date. You'll have telecine communications, find the equipment that was dropped earlier, and ruin the planned sales of the missiles. Good luck.

SUB PEN

This is a search and destroy mission. You'll find essential equipment scattered about as a result of the air drop. Use your scanner radar to find the equipment and work closely with your team. The sub pen area is heavily guarded, so you must be careful. Stay between cartoons and close to buildings, and pick up guns whenever possible.

OBJECTIVES

- GET AT SUBMARINE
- GET THE MINE
- TAKE GLUTTER THE A.F.S. AND MINE
- GET THE GAS INJECTOR
- GET THE B.C. DETONATOR
- GET THE EXPLOSIVES
- SABOTAGE THE PUMP HOUSE
- REGROUP ON THE COM. BUILDING

TAKE GLUTTER THE A.F.S. AND MINE

Look for the first two items close to the pier. One will be found on high and the other will be out of the light.

TUNNEL

The tunnel linking the two sections of the base must be destroyed, and the only way to do it is by using explosives in key positions inside the tunnel. Of course, as always you should expect to find fierce resistance. Even here you'll find armed guards, and your ammo will be limited.

OBJECTIVES:

- FIND THE EXPLOSIVES
- SABOTAGE THE ANCHOR BOLTS

PLACE THE GAS INJECTOR

If you need to enter a heavily guarded building, place the gas injector outside the door to poison all those within.

REGROUP ON THE COM. BUILDING

Join the other IMF team members on the roof of the Com. building. Jump up the stack of crates and take care of any resistance.

FIND THE EXPLOSIVES

Look for explosives in the tunnel. When you jump off onto the platforms, explore the catwalks until you find a bundle of dynamite. Watch out, there should be enough for the task.

SABOTAGE THE ANCHOR BOLTS

Look for the massive bolt heads on the steel beams. These support beams hold up the roof of the tunnel. If you destroy all of them at the same time, no trucks will get through.

MAINLAND

Things may get dicey at this stage of the mission. Clutter will help sabotage the power plant and Downey will protect you from a sniper position. Your task will be even more precarious: find the accountant and disguise yourself so you can take his place and infiltrate the sales meeting. After disabling power and cameras, you'll have just 20 minutes to complete the mission.

ELIMINATE THE SELLER

After Clutter sabotages the accountant's briefcase, you must take it to the sales meeting. You won't want to be around when the spyries is discovered.

ESCAPE ON THE GUNBOAT WITH CLUTTER

There's only one way out of town, and you'd better be on it. Head to the gunboat after destroying the chopper.

OBJECTIVES

- FIND KNOCKOVER AND PLASTIC
- SABOTAGE THE POWER PLANT
- CUT GAS-ENGINE POWER
- TAKE ON ACCOUNTANT'S ID
- GET BRUISECASE FROM KIDNAP
- SABOTAGE BRUISECASE
- TAKE BRUISECASE TO MEAL
- SLOW JUMP AT LICOPTER
- ESCAPE ON GUNBOAT WITH CLUTTER

FIND EXPLOSIVES AND PLASTIC

Look for Clutter by following his trail of cut fences. It's Clutter's job to get the explosives. It's your job to blow up the power plant and disable the cameras.

GUNBOAT

On your way out of the base aboard the gunboat, try to destroy as much of the infrastructure as possible. You'll be taking lots of hits, but shoot continuously. Your ammo is unlimited. Watch out for mines in the channel and destroy the gas plant. You're almost home.

OBJECTIVES

- ESCAPE ENEMY BASE
- DESTROY THE GAS FACTORY

ESCAPE ENEMY BASE

Meet the twin cannons about the gunboat and pump shells at every major military target on both sides of the canal.

DESTROY THE GAS FACTORY

The gas essential target is the gas factory. Once you destroy it, you'll be home free, but it wasn't be easy reaching this point.

MORE POSSIBILITIES

If you manage to fulfill all of your objectives, and stay alive while doing so, you can play again on the Impossible Mission setting, which includes extra objectives and other changes. In the end, MJ fulfills most of its objectives, as well, and it includes some of the best theme music of any game. Thankfully, MJ didn't self-destruct during its long development. It's worth the wait.

MIKE PIAZZA'S

STRIKE ZONE™

GT Interactive steps up to the plate with the third N64 baseball game of the season! You decide if it's a hit or a miss.

Mike Piazza's Strike Zone won't blow you away with the same flashy graphics touted by the other heavy-hitting N64 baseball games released this year, but it does offer some incredible stat-crunching features that will make fantasy baseball fans reel in delight. With 700-plus MLB players and all 32 MLB teams, this title has all the names and places baseball fans live for in the real world. What makes Strike Zone different from other baseball games is that you can customize every player and team until you're playing in a league of your own. There are even options for adding team logos and redesigning team uniforms.

MODES OF PLAY

Single Game

Select a team, pick your opponent, and play ball. Single Game mode is the quickest way to get yourself into the game. Strike Zone's game mechanics are easy to learn, so you don't need to spend much time flipping through an instruction manual.

World Series

World Series mode is the classic, best-of-seven game series—just like the real thing, without all the hype and commercial breaks. If you don't have time to play all seven games in one sitting, you can save your progress on a Controller Pak.

All-Star Game

Enjoy the 1997 All-Star Game or mix it up by choosing one of 30 authentic baseball parks.

Select Stadium

The All-Star Game in Strike Zone features the same rosters and lineups as the 1997 All-Star Game at Jacobs Field in Cleveland. While you can't delete or add MLB players to your team's roster, you can change the stadium. Anyone up for a juicy game at Tampa's Tropicana Field?

Home Run Derby

The All-Star Home Run Derby features a hitting duel between the National League's best hitters and the American League's top sluggers. This challenging, fast-paced mode can be played as a one- or two-player affair.

You'll assume the role of Mike Piazza and face off against bummy hitting Ken Griffey Jr. in Home Run Derby's one-player mode.

Season

Strike Zone's Season mode has the most in-depth, number-crunching features ever offered in a baseball game for any Nintendo system. You're in full control of one or all of the 32 MLB teams for a 15-, 81- or a full 162-game season. The game features a complete draft system, so you can set up your own fantasy league. Gamers can have their seasons on the 1997 MLB structure and schedules, or they can add in this year's expansion teams and follow the 1998 season. After the season starts, the game will rank the top ten players in 26 league-leading categories, ranging from batting averages to strikeouts. If you're digging for bragging rights, there are historical stats from last season that you can compare to your best player's stats.

Schedule

Strike Zone features complete schedules for every MLB team for the 1997 and 1998 seasons. By tapping L or R, you can quickly scroll backward or forward through your team's entire schedule.

Standings

The game ranks players in every stats list to print. Check it to see how your team is doing in your division. Check the league leader charts to see how your top talents compare with the best players.

Drafting

Complete your own fantasy league and load up your roster with your favorite players in Season mode's Draft option. The game lists available prospects in 35 different categories.

Small-team managers might just make the difference between the top seed in a pennant race and a wild-card entry in the division cellar.

Strike Zone lets you plan your game strategy by giving you complete control over which players on your team swing a bat and which ones warm the dugout bench. You determine the lineup, batting order and pitching rotation. If you don't like what you see on the field, go to the bench or bullpen to avert potential disasters.

Roger Clemens has allowed two runs to reach base on three pitches. Can he work out of a jam, or is it time for a new starter?

Lineup, Batting Order and Substitution

If your lineup is losing its luster, make changes. You can substitute players according to the position they play. If you're looking for a broader range of talent, try making a trade.

Customized batting orders work well against certain pitchers. Anaheim will have a tough time against the Giants unless they can revise their batting order to get around starter Shawn Estes.

With two outs and the bases loaded, Anaheim shows a wild card of the Giants by substituting a relatively unknown player for Dave Hollins. Move! Like this jump ball on the edge of their reach.

PLAY TO WIN

Before you start your games in Mike Piazza's Strike Zone, you'll have to master the complex rules of a head-biting slugger, a cool-headed manager and a golden-gloved fielder. This job sounds a bit overwhelming, but we've outlined some basic strategies that will get you an early lead, ranging from the easiest (batting) to the toughest (fielding).

Batting

Your team won't score until you hit. Every ball player has different timing depending on his batting skills. Luckily, Strike Zone's easy-to-read pitching system instantly shows you if the pitch will be a ball or a strike.

The red line on the ball tells you that this pitch will be in the strike zone, but you'll have to adjust your timing to your batter's skills to connect.

The blue streak on this ball indicates that this ball is out of the strike zone. You can sit on the pitch or lean out and try to hit it out of the park.

Pitching

The game lets you choose from ten pitches, including curve, slider, sinker, fastball, knuckleball, change-up, screwball, split-finger fastball, super fastball and super change-up. Each pitcher's stamina varies, so your strategy often depends on how well you manage your bullpen's endurance levels.

The savvy CPU-controlled players will wait for a good pitch, so don't waste your pitcher's stamina throwing junk around the plate.

Just like in real life, your pitchers have a limited repertoire of pitches they can throw. You can check the versatility of your pitcher's talents by pressing the Z button.

Watch your pitcher's stamina. If the opposition starts to make changes to their lineup in late innings, make sure you're ready to counter with a fresh arm once a strong closer.

Fielding

Fielding is the toughest thing to master in Strike Zone. Pop flies are easy to catch, but line drives are exceptionally difficult to stop, especially since the fielder you control may not be the closest to the ball. The best and most practical strategy is to try to keep your outfielders in front of the ball, especially if it's a bouncing base hit or high-speed grounder. If it looks like the ball might slip past, try pressing the A button to make your fielder leap or dive for it.

Fly Ball

Fly balls are the easiest outs in the game. Simply move the closest fielder—the game always assigns one for you—into the Leadup zone before the ball gets there. Press the A button to dive for the ball.

Two Chances

You'll usually have two chances to catch a line drive. Press the A button after the ball is hit to make your outfielder leap up for the ball. If that doesn't work, your outfielder will snag it as it bounces toward him.

Watch out for that wall! If you let your outfielders get too close, they'll crash into it, wasting valuable time as they struggle to regain their feet.

The golden rule in fielding is to stay in front of the ball. Letting a sliding grounder get by your outfielder almost always means extra bases for the other side.

The name of the fielder you're controlling appears in the upper-right corner of the screen. Move him to the green blip on the order screen before the ball reaches down.

CREATE YOUR OWN SEASON

You've beaten Florida in the World Series, and Kurt Griffey Jr. hangs off a hotbin above when you play Home Run Derby. What now? Believe it or not, you've barely scratched the surface. Winning the pennant or discovering the arcade codes is just the beginning in Strike Zone—the game's customization options are the better features of all. Read on as we take you through the steps to designing your own baseball league, team and players.

NINTENDO 64

1. Build a League

Your first step is creating your league in its name and come up with a good title for the trophy all of the teams will be competing to win. We figured that the "World Series trophy" was already taken, so we decided to roll ours the World Demerition Cup.

3. Edit Teams

Look carefully at your team roster. At the bottom of your Roster menu, you'll spot the words "Team Info/Edit." If you highlight this option and press the Z button, you'll be able to give your team a completely different look. Times Edit option first you change your team's name, log, city and stadium. Make your own choices to represent your design: the culture of your team's home, away and alternate uniforms.

5. PLAY BALL!

With a new look, new location and a totally customized team, you'll be ready to take to the field and play in a league of your own. If you have two Controller Paks, you can just proceed with your own funky, customized league as one Pak and play it straight with authentic MLB players and teams on the other. Nothing is so good to the game cartridge, and one league will take up all the space in a Controller Pak. Get another Pak whenever you want to start a new league!

2. Control Every Team

Strike Zone is the only N64 baseball title out there that will actually let you control all 32 MLB teams through a 162-game season. Do you have the stamina to play all 2,562 games?

Perhaps if you have a year or two of spare time. If you want to get out of the house once in a while, let the CPU manage some teams and play a few games for you. If that is a true fantasy league with a twist, you'll probably want to customize the name of your teams. Jump over to Step Three to find out how to make team names and uniforms.

4. Edit Players

Many of us at one time have wanted to get called up to The Show to play in the big leagues. Other baseball games let you create and add your alter ego to the action. Strike Zone takes it a step further—you can highlight, rename and customize every player on your roster!

Besides the customization options like name, jersey number and throwing hand, Strike Zone lets you change your players' builds, skills, stats, and hair color. When you're done customizing those features, spend out your athletes' hitting and fielding talents by increasing their skill attributes in eight different areas. Now you have a dream team!

SO MANY GAMES, WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

In our last three issues, we've reviewed three baseball games for the N64. If you glance over the main features in All-Star Baseball '99, Major League Baseball Featuring Ken Griffey Jr. and Mike Piazza's Strike Zone, the games seem similar. The differences are very apparent when you pick up a controller. Read on and compare our scouting reports.

The authentic, fully-rendered stadium in All-Star Baseball '99 is a masterpiece, virtual monument to the programming skills of the developers at Aquas—the same talented group that rocked the video game world with Turk 182 and Demolition Hunter. While the title sometimes rolls fast or plays control, All-Star is a heavy hitter in the game options department, with a custom player menu where you can pick every detail right down to your hometown.

Griffey's play control is top-notch, the best of the three games. The title's bright graphics may not have the same dramatic shadow effects as All-Star Baseball '99, but this is a negligible detail that most players are willing to sacrifice for pinpoint hitting and fielding. If there's something missing from the game, it's the ability to create custom players for your favorite team's lineup.

Mike Piazza's Strike Zone may have the same MLB players and stadiums as All-Star and Griffey, but it's minor league baseball when you compare the details in All-Star's graphics and precision in Griffey's play control. Piazza's the only game with league and team creation menus, which is a huge plus for fantasy baseball fans, especially those that demand full control in their game, right down to creating rosters fresh from the farm system.

T

he three kingdoms of Celtland have been at peace for a thousand years, but the theft of the Eletale Book threatens to upset the delicate balance of power. A lone sorcerer's apprentice must recover the book before its magic is abused, before the Day of Grief dawns and the world plunges into war!

Quest 64

Quest for Adventure

THQ's Quest 64 has finally arrived, and it is not so much a role-playing game as a light adventure game with a few RPG elements mixed in. Little exploration or backtracking is needed to progress from one task to the next, and you'll spend most of your time engaged in level-building combat using the game's turn-based battle system. With its highly-detailed, 3-D landscapes, imaginative monsters and dynamic battle animation, Quest 64 has visual appeal, but it's just too bad that there's not more to do in such a well-rendered environment. Experienced role-players won't find much in Quest 64 to sink their broadswords into, but the game may offer first-time adventurers some medieval-flavored fun.

The Spirits

Combat revolves mostly around magic, and, at first, you'll have just a few weak spells at your command. Your staff will be your only physical weapon, and it will be your primary attack until your magic powers grow stronger. Spells are divided into four elemental categories: Earth, Wind, Fire and Water. As you explore, you'll occasionally find a wispie "spirit" in the wilderness or win one in battle. You'll be able to use this spirit to boost one category of magic by one level, and you'll learn more spells as your levels increase. The charts below give a brief description of each spell and the level you must reach in that category to learn it. While combat is menu-based, you can move within a small area of the battlefield at the beginning of each turn, allowing you to aim spells, dodge attacks or escape a battle altogether.

Fire

- 01 Fire Ball: Throw fire at one enemy.
- 02 Power Staff: Boost staff attack power.
- 03 Homing Arrow: Shoot several arrows.
- 04 Hot Steam: Create a cloud of steam.
- 05 Compression: Shrink and weaken one enemy.
- 06 Fire Pillar: Form a pillar of fire.
- 07 Fire Bomb: Throw an intense blast of fire.
- 08 Vampire's Touch: Hurt an enemy and self.
- 09 Mage's Ball: Create a moving stream of fire.
- 10 Extinction: Wipe out one enemy completely.

Wind

- 01 Wind Cutter: Shoot multiple boomerangs.
- 02 Restriction: Trap one or more enemies.
- 03 Silence: Prevent enemy spell.
- 04 Large Cutter: Shoot large knife of air.
- 05 Evade: Increase your agility.

Kennishire

We've mapped each of the three kingdoms of Celtland, following the path you'll take through the game. We've also included stats for some of the monsters you'll encounter on your travels. If a monster is aligned with a particular element, use the spells of a different element to defeat it. If you're low on Magic Points (the energy that fuels your magic), you can recharge by using a special item or by simply walking around.

This is where Breen, your youthful alter-ego, will begin the quest for the Elata Book. Your father, Lord Bartholomew, left on the same quest some time ago and hasn't been heard from since.

Holy Plan

Staying at an inn will save the game and replenish both your HP and your MP. The treasure icons show how many chests you'll find at that location.

King Scottbart, ruler of Kennishire, will tell you of a gem that was stolen from his royal treasury. The thief is thought to be hiding out in Connor Forest. Search the castle and town for treasure chests. The map shows six here, and they contain useful items.

Connor Forest is home to some fearsome creatures. It also has several spirits that you can put to good use. Look for them off the main paths.

DONDORAN

CONNOR FOREST

MELRODE

Your first destination will be Dondoran, the capital of Kennishire. As you explore, stop and talk to people like the fortune-teller in the cottage. They may have clues concerning your current task or give you items, like the enchanted wings that will transport you to specific towns.

Dondoran Flats

The Dondoran Flats include Connor Forest and the areas beyond, but you won't be able to move past Connor Forest until you defeat the thief, Solvering, and recover the Earth Orb. The map shows a warp that connects Glencoe Forest with the Cull Hazard region in the kingdom of Carnagh, but this avenue won't open until later in the game. You'll find warps throughout Caidland, which will allow you to revisit areas you've been to before.

After you defeat Solvering, search his lair for treasure, then return to Dondoran. King Scottari will let you keep the Earth Orb as a reward, as well as open his treasury to you. After that, it will be time to head to the wharf at the southern end of the Dondoran Flats.

Warp to Cull Hazard

The Flats are a great place to build your levels. If the enemies around Cull Hazard prove too powerful, use the warp to come back to the Flats for more battle training.

Solvering wants the power of the Earth Orb for himself, and it's up to you to stop him. A person in Dondoran will warn you to stay far away from the villain, but, in fact, getting close to him will be the only way to take him out quickly. Since your spells will still be relatively weak, move very close to him and hit him with your staff. Make sure you have bread and rent leaves to restore your HP and MP in battle.

The trail of clues will lead you to the Dondoran Flats Inn. Your father did pass the way, but he's long gone. Stay the night at the inn, then take the ship the next morning. Perhaps you'll be able to pick up the trail at the next port.

Carmagh

In the kingdom of Carmagh, the mystery will only deepen.

A strange force is stirring the wind and the water, making travel across the lake impossible. Unless you can discover the cause of the disruption, you'll be stuck in West Carmagh for the foreseeable future.

West Carmagh

The West Carmagh Inn holds no answers, but the citizens of Larapool will prove more helpful. Strangely enough, a woman named Shannon seems to be shadowing your every move. Is she somehow connected to the theft of the Etoile Book and your father's disappearance? Though she obviously knows more than she's telling, you'll have no choice but to follow her advice. First head southwest to Cull Hazard and then to Normoon.

The bridge to the Windward Forest has been sealed with magic, so you'll have to take the long way around, through Cull Hazard and Normoon. From Cull Hazard, you'll travel first through a cave then across a rocky beach and finally through more caves to reach Normoon. Use your compass to keep your bearings.

In Normoon, you'll find out that a mysterious magician is using the Wind Jade to stir up all this breezy trouble. Have a good night's rest, then follow the path through Normoon and into Windward Forest.

Follow the forest path through a small village and into the green wood. You'll find Zalse at the end of the path. Your staff will most likely be your best bet, but Water or Fire magic may yield good results. After the battle, follow the path north to the now-open bridge and return to Larapool.

Isle of Skye

Though there are a few signs pointing the way along its crystal paths, the Blue Cave can be quite confusing, so you may want to make a map as you go. The cave will eventually lead to a hidden valley and the good witch Epona. She'll let you use her warp to reach the Isle of Skye, the home of Colleen. Colleen will tell you how the sorceress Nepty is using the Aquamarine to whip the lake into a frenzy. Start your search for Nepty at the ring of stones at the top of the Isle of Skye.

You should be able to make short work of Nepty with a few well-placed hits and spells. Once she's been sent to a watery grave, look for a warp in Colleen's house to return to Epona's place. You can then take the long way back or use the warp in Epona's yard to teleport straight to Larapool.

East Limelin

Now that the weather is calm again, you'll be able to board the ship at West Carnagh and sail to Limelin Wharf. You'll then pick up your father's trail again, and it will point straight toward Limelin, the capital of Carnagh. It's likely that your father went to seek help from Queen Deanna.

As you speak with Queen Deanna, more and more pieces of the puzzle will begin to fall into place. It seems King Belgis of the Highlands was behind the theft of the Etertale Book. Could he be the mastermind of this deadly scheme, or is there some darker power at work? No matter. Your job now is to travel to the Highlands through the Baragoon Tunnel. Someone named Fire Starter Fergo is terrorizing the town of Greenoch, and there's not a moment to lose!

LIMELIN

The ferry captain will grant you one-way passage only, so make sure you're ready before you make the crossing. If you need more training, wander the hills between the wharf and the city. By this time, you should have spells like Hot Steam, which can strike multiple enemies at once. Hot Steam is good to use if you're paralyzed and surrounded.

The trip through Baragoon Tunnel is long and perilous, so stop at this abandoned miner's shack to stock upon items that were left behind. Yes, these items are still good!

Highlands

The once-verdant Highlands are now a searing desert, thanks to Fire Starter Fargo. Queen Desnae said that King Beigs himself ordered Fargo to burn the land, destroying homes, farms and fields in the process. Could Beigs really be so cruel as to order the destruction of his own kingdom?

Dindam Dries

Fire Starter Fargo has used the Fire Ruby to awaken the Boil Hole, a volcano thought to be extinct. His power is great, so you may want to spend some time training in the desert. Since Fargo and many of the monsters in this area use Fire-based magic, concentrate on building your Water magic. As you know by now, some basic spells can be built up over time and will hit multiple targets. The Level 3 Water Pillar spell, for example, will deal out heavy damage to any enemy that's in range of its towering currents.

The town of Greenoch has been ravaged by a lava flow from the Boil Hole. And who is that in the corner of the map? Shanon again? Is she allied with Beigs, or Mamean, or both of them? Maybe you'll have time to sort it all out after you defeat Fargo.

Fargo is waiting for you in the depths of the Boil Hole. By this time, your spells should be far more effective in battle than your staff. Ice Knife and Ice Wall may hold Fargo long enough for you to unleash a few Water Pillars. After you defeat him and collect the Fire Ruby, follow the lava tubes to Baragoon Moor.

Before you confront Fargo, head southeast into the desert. You'll see a huge gem floating above a stone platform. Climb the platform to warp to the hidden city of Shamwood. There you'll meet Laver, a fallen sorceress who will tell you the full story of the Eterale Book and her role in the Day of Grief, over one thousand years before. Now that Beigs has the Eterale Book, the Day of Grief may come again!

Before you meet Baragoon Tunnel, you'll encounter Shelf, a servant of the demon Mamean. Back her up against the edge of the path to minimize your attacks.

Baragoon Moor

From the Boil Hole, make your way quickly to Brannoch, Beggs, Shannon and your father are all there, and the threads of this mystery will finally be unraveled in Beggs's castle. The gate is barred, but if you search carefully, you'll find another way in. Beggs's royal guards and their leader, Gully, will be patrolling the castle, so tread carefully. After you defeat Gully, search every room to find a save point.

Gully will put up a fight, but if you've trained well, he shouldn't be too much of a threat. After he's defeated, find the room with the save point and treasure chests.

Shannon will finally reveal her true nature. She's been manipulating you all along!

Beggs will try to paralyze you, so return the favor. Water magic seems to work well against him.

World of Mammon

At the top of Beggs's castle, you'll find a portal to the World of Mammon. The demon's castle is a jumble of realities, with doors leading from one dimension to the next. If you reach a dead end, simply go back through the last door to enter a new world. If you find yourself back in the main hall, you'll have to start over.

"Traveling" spells like Magna Ball and Walking Water seem most effective. It's best to save your Magic Points for attack spells and to use items to heal yourself.

The idea here is to keep going forward. If you get caught in a loop, search for a second door in one area. There are active areas, however, which you should see twice. If you find Shannon, then you're on the right track.

WHAT'S THE TRICK TO OPENING THE YAMATO SHRINE?

The door on the Yamato Shrine is sealed by a magical spell. To break the spell, you'll have to find and move the Turtle Stone. The rock is at the end of a forest glade you'll find if you walk east of the shrine. You can push Turtle Stone in the four directions of the compass—north, south, east and west. Push the Turtle Stone to the north to open the Yamato Shrine door. Inside the Shrine you'll find a Surprise Pack and two Silver Fortune Dolls.

Look for a break in the trees near the shrine and follow the trail. You'll find the Turtle Stone all the way at the end of the glade.

The magical spell that seals the Yamato Shrine door will be broken when you slide the Turtle Stone all the way to the north.

HOW DO I DEFEAT KASHIWAGI?

Kashiwagi is the first giant robot you'll have to fight from the control room in Goemon Impact, the towering mechanical robot introduced in the beginning of the game. You'll confront Kashiwagi after you pick up the Titten Shell. Use your Hookshot to snare Kashiwagi and reel him in, then quickly punch and kick him. Blast his discs with your lasers or punch the incoming projectiles to build up your laser power. Kashiwagi's mirror-double attack is his best weapon, but you can break his spell by punching him the moment he attacks. If you don't, you'll have to punch his double at least three times to break the spell. The counter at the top of the screen shows Kashiwagi's hit points. You'll win the fight when it reaches zero.

Use your Hookshot to reel Kashiwagi within range, then punch him and kick him away.

You can break his mirror-double attack by punching him a moment before he strikes you.

Just ten more points and you win! Kashiwagi's hit points show above the control panel.

WHAT'S THE BEST WAY TO FIND EVERY SECRET AREA?

First pause your game at the start of every level to find out how many areas you need to find. As you search the walls, look for dotted lines that give away hidden doorways. Hidden areas open up when either a doorway is shot or a switch is hit. If the hidden area is illuminated, it's easy to see the light shining in the cracks around an entrance. If you slow down and pay attention to the details in the walls, you'll quickly find every secret in this game.

How many places are you looking for? Pause your game and look for your secret area stats.

The dotted lines betray a hidden door. Try blasting it before you start looking for a switch.

WHICH WEAPON DO I USE ON CHTHON?

There isn't a weapon that can hurt Chthon, the lava beast waiting to burn you in the sixth area in the First Dimension. Chthon will surface the moment you take the Rune of Earth Magic. Retreat to the steps and follow the hallway to the other side of the room. Take the elevator to the second floor, then dodge Chthon's lava bombs as you run along the edge of the room. One quarter of the way around the room is a floor switch. Run over the switch and continue around the room to a second floor switch. Hit this second switch and return to the elevator. In front of the elevator is a floor switch with the Quake logo on it. If you stand on the switch, you'll electrocute Chthon. Depending on which difficulty level you've selected, you'll have to electrocute the beast one, two or three times to defeat him. This means that if you're playing any level except Easy, you'll have to make another lap or two around the room.

Stand on both of the red switches before you retreat to the power switch on the main floor.

Hit both red switches, then stand on the switch to blast Chthon with an electrical charge.

WHERE IS THE SECRET EXIT IN THE NECROPOLIS?

After you go through the Gold Key Door in the Necropolis, run to the hallway where a huge spike shoots at you. Jump into the hole in the floor and run through the water-filled passage until you reach a hall on the right. Follow this hall to a barred alcove on the right. Blast the two eyes on the platforms above to open the alcove, then shoot the back wall until it slides back and a teleporter appears. If you jump into the teleporter, you'll end up on the platforms above you. Jump to the second platform and shoot the wall on the right to open a hidden door. Jump through the door and run for the secret exit.

Just past the giant spike trap, the floor will open up beneath you. Jump into the hole.

You'll have to shoot the fiends above the door to clear the beams out of this room.

Stand on the platform inside the secret area and shoot the right wall to find the other exit.

► TUROK: DINOSAUR HUNTER

HOW DO I REACH THE CANYON LEDGE IN LEVEL TWO?

Most observant dinosaur hunters spot the Full Health icon twirling on the canyon ledge just past the shrine in Level Two, but very few actually find a way to get up there. To reach the icon, make your way up the canyon until you arrive at two small pools. If you turn right and walk to the edge of the cliff, you'll spot a hidden trail of wooden platforms. Jump along the boards until you pick up the power-up.

There's the Full Health icon, but how do you get up there? Few hunters figure it out.

Look for this hidden path near the pools at the end of the canyon. Follow it to raise your health.

IS THERE AN EASY WAY TO DEFEAT THE MANTIS?

There's a fairly safe pattern for defeating the acid-spriting, praying mantis inside the building in Level Five. Like many big enemies in the Lost World, this nasty insect has a tough time hitting moving targets. The key to beating this bug is to create some running room for yourself so you can get out of the way in a hurry. Since you're not big enough to knock down the walls yourself, you'll have to trick the mantis into helping you. As soon as the bug is in range, open up with your strongest weapon. After taking a few hits, the dim-witted insect will fly into a fit of rage, knocking down the walls around it. Now you have the space you need to dodge the bug's attacks. Take a few steps backward and start running around the outside where the walls once were standing. Keep your gun trained on the mantis as you run and fire. The big bug will have a tough time hitting you, which means you'll still be standing long after the insect's life bar runs out.

Send the insect into a rage by quickly hitting it with the most powerful weapon you have.

As long as you don't stop moving, the mantis will wear down long before you run out of life.

HOW DO I EXTINGUISH LEVEL EIGHT'S FIERY T-REX?

The fire-breathing Tyrannosaurus Rex in Level Eight is the toughest and final foe you'll fight before moving on to the big battle with the Campaigner. Think defensively and locate the depressions at the edge of the room. These holes offer great cover from T-Rex's laser attacks, and you can return fire anytime he pauses. Fleec the moment you see the T-Rex breathe fire. You'll have to keep your distance until the flames subside. Keep running and firing, working between the holes. This deadly dino is extremely tough to defeat, but if you stay in the holes during the worst assaults, you won't get burned in the end.

Locate the holes on the edges of the room and use them for cover throughout the battle.

Retreat when you see T-Rex exhale. There's no defense from the rolling walls of flame.

WHAT'S THE TRICK TO GETTING OUT OF SHOGUN'S WORLD?

You need to talk to the smuggler in the store in the western town of Edo. Many players think they've done this—and they probably have—but you need to walk around the counter to speak to him. Keep in mind that once you talk to the smuggler this way, you won't be able to buy anything from him. Place your orders before you walk around the counter. The smuggler will tell you about the ship that will take you through the rest of Shogun's World.

The smuggler seems eager to do business, but he's really ready to ship you out of here.

It just came in.
It's still in the harbor south.

Walk around the counter and talk to the smuggler face to face. Now you'll be ready to travel.

HOW DO I DEFEAT ODIN?

If you have at least two Humans with 650 hit points each, your party is ready to eliminate Odin. During the battle you'll fight four enemies: Odin, two Odincrows and a Sleipnir. Since all four foes will try to damage your party every round, reduce your exposure by taking out the weakest enemies first. The Odincrows and the Sleipnir have 800 points each, so concentrate on defeating one of them.

Repeat this strategy until only Odin remains. Odin has 3,800 hit points. He seems daunting, but his armor isn't very thick. While it's tempting to knock him off using your Glass Sword, save it for Apollo.

Your party should have an average of 650 points among the Humans, Muzants and Robots.

Target the weaker targets, such as an Odincrow or a Sleipnir, until Odin is only left.

Odin's 3,800 hit points seem intimidating, but you'll quickly finish him after his allies are gone.

BUST-A-MOVE

ARCADE 2 EDITION

© 1998 B&B Company

Get off your couch and bust a move—here comes the first ever Nintendo 64 version of one of the most popular puzzle games of all times!

There are no two ways about it: Bust-A-Move 2 for the N64 simply outshines all of its predecessors. But don't worry—Acclaim has preserved the same great game features you've come to know and love so well: a two-player option, three main modes of play and all the bubble-bustin' challenge that made the game a legend. So how's Bust-A-Move 2 better than before if the game play's basically the same? Here's a one-word answer: graphics. Its colorful backgrounds, wider screens, and big, bright bubbles are all beauties to behold. In fact, the graphics are so close to arcade-perfect that you may find yourself trying to cram a quarter into your N64!

Versus Game

The aim of this game is to criss-cross a continent by besting computerized critters in 12 separate competitions. Since bubbles are added to your opponent's stack each time you clear a bunch from your screen, put clever strategies aside and just bust bubbles as quickly as you can.

Try to Beat the Computer by Busting Your Way Across a Continent!

Each critter on the map represents a single round of play. Check the highest peak to reveal more games lurking behind the scenes. Meanwhile, here are some of the starting matchup previews.

Even though a clock will count down and your bubble will launch automatically if you take too much time, don't rush your shots. Besides, your first opponent appears to be playing the game in slow motion.

The first player to reach the star bubble in this round has a tremendous advantage. When the star bubble becomes clear, try to hit it with a bubble of the same color as one of the bubbles at the top of the screen.

In this matchup, bust the bubbles at the bottom of the screen methodically to clear a path to the star bubble near the top. If you try to get fancy with your shots, a swift defeat is almost guaranteed.

Try to Bury Your Best Buddy in Bubbles!

While he or she may not be as cute as the computer's critters, a human opponent will only add fun to your face-off. The objective's the same as in the one-player game. Clear your screen while trying to get your buddy into bubble trouble.

When you bust four or more bubbles, little balls will start lining up on your opponent's screen. After a few seconds, the balls will turn into bubbles and be added to the lowest rows of the other player's stacks. The more bubbles you bust with a single shot, the more will appear on your challenger's screen!

If you want to bury your opponent in bubbles, try making long chains that can be brought down with a single shot. For example, the player on the right has a great chain going. But the question is, does he use the green bubble to bust the bottom of the chain, or does he hold out for a purple bubble to bring the whole chain down?

Puzzle Game

The aim of this game is to pick a five-letter path to the top of a triangular grid, with each letter providing five unique stages of bubble-busting play. But be careful—as you progress through the grid, the challenge of clearing the screens definitely increases.

Tips on Getting Through the Grid

Although there are some simple strategies for getting past a few of this game's many stages, don't get fooled into thinking there's one easy path through the grid. Each lettering horizontal row is just as tough as the others.

A-1

When the first stage begins, a dotted line will show the path your bubbles will take before they're shot. It's a big help, but after this stage, you'll see it again only if you fail to clear a screen.

A-3

This special one bubble will take out all the bubbles on the screen that are the same color as the first one it touches. In this case, you should target the bottom red bubble to clear the stage with a single shot.

B-1

In this stage, stack your bubbles to the right or left of center until a blue bubble becomes available. When it does, just fire it straight up to make the entire house of bubbles come crashing down.

B-3

When the green bubble is next in line, it would be a waste to hit the star bubble straight ahead like last, shoot the star bubble into one of the corners to start opening up bank shot possibilities.

C-3

When you come to a stage with no discernible patterns, good shots are more important than grand strategies. The screen will eventually clear as long as you don't fire bubbles, only rely

C-5

Now that you've seen why bank shots are an important element of this game, you should know something else about them: aiming bubbles so they bounce perfectly off a wall without the guide line is a lot tougher than it looks.

D-1

This stack-down of bubbles nearly scrapes the bottom of the screen! Try to clear the yellow bubbles first, so that when a white bubble becomes available, you can clear the whole pilebig.

D-2

If you can start by reaching the top row with the purple bubble, dumping the entire screen will become a one-shot deal! If you can't, make bank shots to the left to clear a larger pathway to the top.

T-1

You may be tempted to go for the top row of green with your star bubble, but you'd be better off targeting one of the red bubbles on either side of the screen. Then two green bubbles can finish things off.

E-2

It would be a mistake to aim at any color of bubble other than red at the center of the stack. But once you've shot the red bubble and the sides of the stack have fallen off, finishing the stage should be a cinch.

S-5

A bubble cluster is easy to clear if your current bubble matches the one surrounded by a semicircle of other bubbles. If it doesn't, aim for the semicircle in order to keep a direct path open to that barrier bubble.

K-3

While this stage presents the possibility of clearing everything out in a shot or two, the necessary banking angles are difficult to determine. Try to clear the line a little before attempting a winning shot.

Time Attack

This game is about clearing screens as fast as you can. While it's not always the case, you should be able to bust most of the bubbles in each stage with just a few shots. And if you can get one of the best times in any stage, it will be posted for posterity.

A Controller Pak Can Save the Day!

You'd better have a Controller Pak, because it's a major help if you're trying to finish Time Attack's one-player mode. Besides saving your scores, it also saves your place—a nifty feature when you have 50 levels to polish off.

Show Your Pal Who's the Bubble Boss

Time Attack's two-player mode is a head-to-head battle to see who's the quicker bubble buster. But, before you begin, set the match point between one and five. Now clear that many screens before your opponent can!

ALL-STAR BASEBALL '99

Acclaim's All-Star Baseball '99 looks and plays much the same as Frank Thomas Big Hurt Baseball, but we don't mind at all. In fact, it means you get lots of batting and pitching options, good fielding control and six play modes crammed into just two megs of memory. All that, and you can take it with you, too!

GOOD PLAY AT HOME OR ON THE ROAD

We always knew that recycling was good for the environment, and now we know that it can be good for video games, too. Based on the Big Hurt engine, All-Star Baseball '99 features updated team rosters (including the 1998 expansion teams) and a two-player mode its predecessor didn't have. The result is a fine baseball game that plays much bigger than what you might expect on the Game Boy. With six play modes, this little slugger will satisfy your baseball cravings at home or away.

HOME RUN DERBY

Think you can match bats with Griffey, McGwire or Wengert? Here's your chance to prove it.

EXHIBITION

You can challenge the computer or a pal in a friendly game. The season is set on the line, but your pride is!

SEASON

A password system allows you to save your progress through a full season with your chosen team.

BATTING PRACTICE

If you're having problems with a particular pitch? Head to the batting cage for a few practice swings.

PLAYOFFS

If you're the impatient type, you can skip over the season and head straight to the championship.

ALL STAR

You can also play a single game with the best of two leagues. There are no scrubs in these leagues!

OFFENSE

MAKING A CONNECTING FLIGHT

ASB '99 has a surprising number of batting options, and connecting with the ball involves much more than timing your swing. You can choose from among many swings, and each one will affect the ball differently. When choosing a swing, think about the situation and whether you need to get the ball down for a base hit or pop it up for a sacrifice fly.

THE PROPER STANCE

Where you stand at the plate is also important. If you hit the ball with the handle of the bat, the ball will likely pop up over your head. If you hit the ball with the end of the bat, the ball will likely go foul, in the opposite direction of your swing.

Swinging too early or too late will also make the ball go foul.

ROUNDING THE BASES

Players will not advance around the bases automatically unless they have to; e.g., if there's someone on first and the batter gets a base hit. If first is open, you'll have to command runners on second and third to make a run for it.

Like home raising, attending also takes careful management. Take a lead from first and run an off-speed stitcher.

DEFENSE

WE WANT A PITCHER...

The chart at right shows the flight path for each type of pitch as thrown by a right-hander (flip-flop them for lefties) as well as the relative speed of each pitch. Remember, though, that any pitch can be thrown slow, medium or fast.

Fast-o-meter:

...NOT A BELLY-ITCHER!

Starting pitchers get all the attention, but we know that many games are won or lost on the efforts of the bullpen. When choosing a reliever, consider pitcher stamina, the number of innings left, and who will bat next. For example, lefty pitchers will have a better chance against right-handed batters.

Get so many things at you can eat off of starters, but don't rub out them

FIELDING DREAMS

The game also allows you to choose where your infielders and outfielders set up. If you think your opponent is going to bunt, pull your infield in to try to get the double play. If a slugger is coming up to the plate, set your outfielders farther back to catch the long fly ball and avoid giving an extra base.

Having your infield close can help in double play situations, but worth for four drives.

NATIONAL LEAGUE

While any club has a shot at stardom in your fantasy season, we know you'd like to see a few stats, so we've listed the teams alphabetically by division. Each club's card shows the batting averages for the starting lineup and the earned run average for the pitcher at the top of the starting rotation. We've also calculated each team's overall BA and ERA.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

GAME BOY

If you're not a big baseball fan, you may be wondering why the American League teams don't list pitchers in their batting lineups. This is because the AL adopted what is known as the "designated hitter rule," which allows pitchers to sit out when it's their turn to bat. Players known as designated hitters bat for them, allowing pitchers to save their strength.

REPLAY VALUE

The only drawback to All-Star Baseball '99 is that the game does not support the Super Game Boy color palette. That very small quibble aside, ASB '99 is a small baseball sim that offers lots of major league thrills, and, with the addition of the two-player mode, lots of replay value.

MISSION: IMPOSSIBLE

- Denon/66 Hverbits
- 1 player
- 3 game save files
- Rumble Pak compatible
- 24 stages

You must accomplish the impossible in this spy-fi for the N64.

GRAPHICS The developers at Infogrames did a good job of creating believable settings for this adventure. The level of detail is good in the models and textures, and the animation of Ethan and the other characters in the game is well done. The cinematic sequences help connect the stages and plot line.

PLAY CONTROL Once you get used to Mission Impossible's play control, you'll be okay. Selecting weapons and items can be a bit awkward, and jumping is a mess. Overall movement control feels a tad bit loose.

GAME DESIGN

This isn't another GoldenEye-type shooter. In MI, each stage is really a puzzle, and players must figure out how to meet the mission objectives. Shooting enemies isn't always the best strategy.

SATISFACTION If you enjoy trial-and-error and puzzle-solving type play, this game can be a refreshing change from first-person shooters or platform action. Once you've figured out the puzzle, though, there's little challenge. The replay value is limited.

SOUND Theme and background sound effects add just the right touch of atmosphere.

COMMENTARY Scott—Don't despair this game. It pays off in the long run. Jason—it's not what trigger-happy GoldenEye fans are expecting.

CHOPPER ATTACK

- Midway/64 Megabits
- 1 player
- Ramble Pak compatible
- 3 stages
- 3 choppers

Save the world with a chopper, some missiles, and a bad attitude.

GRAPHICS The 3-D models of the choppers and enemy units look great, but the backgrounds are fairly simple. Explosions, missile exhaust and other special effects add a touch of realism.

PLAY CONTROL The play control has been dramatically improved from Wild Choppers, which is the Japanese version of this game. Targeting enemy units can still be difficult, even when using homing missiles. The process of stocking up on ammo before each mission is awkward, as is the selection of weapon types during battle.

GAME DESIGN Following the tried-and-true formula set down in the Strike series from Electronic Arts, Chopper Attack concentrates on search-and-destroy action. You'll also have to resupply your chopper during battle. The training mode is limited, but once you've cleared a stage, you can return at any time just for fun.

SATISFACTION

The explosions are pretty satisfying, so if you're into action and fireworks, this game is for you. If you're into realistic flight sims, you'd better wait for Harrier 2000 from Video Systems.

SOUND The voices are about as annoying as you can imagine, and the music is even worse.

COMMENTS Dan—Let's face it. It's fun to fly around and blow stuff up. Paul—Play control is still a bit awkward, but if you work with it a bit, you'll get into the game.

MORTAL KOMBAT 4

- Midway/128 Megabits
- 1 or 2 players simultaneously
- Controller and Ramble Pak compatible

The MK struggle continues on the N64.

GRAPHICS The developers at Eurocom did an outstanding job of recreating the 3-D elements of MK 4 from the arcade game. Particularly impressive are the game and cinematic sequences. New fatality move animations are also pretty wild, although they're as gory as usual.

PLAY CONTROL The standard MK feel has been shifted in this 3-D sequel, but character movement in three dimensions is limited and not very strategic. Response is quick and the combo system adds depth to the game play.

GAME DESIGN

Many new characters meet favorites from past incarnations of this classic fight series. The basic game remains the same, but moves have been updated.

SATISFACTION MK fans won't be disappointed. This is no Mythologies. On the other hand, don't expect radical changes. This game is Mortal Kombat through and through.

SOUND The voices are good, particularly in the cinematic sequences at the end of the game.

COMMENTS Henry—This is the best version of Mortal Kombat ever. The play control is even more responsive than the arcade version, Paul—You can dress it up any way you like, but tuna casserole is still fish and noodles. Amrod—If you want arcade perfect, it doesn't get any better than this, including some of the graphic glitches.

QUEST 64

- THQ/128 Megabits
- 1 player
- Controller Pak compatible

The first N64 epic is a bit of magic from THQ.

PROS: The Japanese development team did an excellent job in creating a large, attractive world with some beautiful palaces and towns to explore. The animation of enemies during battle is another highlight, and each magic spell is portrayed with animation, as well.

PLAY CONTROL: You have far more control over your character than in most RPGs, but then this game really isn't an RPG. Camera position difficulties can arise when you switch into battle. Your character's real-time evade capability is pretty limited.

GAME DESIGN: In each stage of the game, you'll have to fulfill a task, which generally means finding and defeating a boss. The fact that an epic game has stages should clue you in that this game is far more linear than most adventures or RPGs. The emphasis is less on exploration and puzzles and more on fighting and building up your magic levels.

SATISFACTION: Quest 64 could use more variety, more tasks, more items, more side plots and more puzzles. The constant fighting can become tedious quickly.

SOUND: The walk-around music doesn't add much, and the footfalls are very irritating.

COMMENTS: Scott—The magic system is interesting, but the linear play is far too limiting for an RPG. Henry—It's more like a trip to the dentist than a quest.

MIKE PIAZZA'S STRIKE ZONE

- GT Interactive/96 Megabits
- 1 to 4 players simultaneous
- Controller and Rumble Pak compatible
- MLB and MLBPA licenses
- Create-a-Team option

GT Interactive's amazing, shrinking Strike Zone.

PROS: Strike Zone is most striking for its lack of quality 3-D graphics. Player animations can seem realistic, and the stadiums show details such as correct city backgrounds, but the overall impression is flat. The curious offset batting perspective takes some getting used to.

PLAY CONTROL: Think of this game as baseball basics. Unlike Griffey and All-Star, Strike Zone uses a single button command for batting. Pitching is also a simple process. Fielding is an adventure, especially when you can't tell which defensive player you're controlling.

GAME DESIGN: The most unusual feature of the game is the degree to which you can customize your own team and league. The other modes include the traditional mix of exhibition, season and play-off options.

SATISFACTION: The simplified control options give the game more of an arcade feel than a simulation. The lack of depth in the game play won't sit well with players who want more of a realistic simulation.

SOUND: The score below says it all. Mediocore.

COMMENTS: Henry—The last part is a throwback to the 8-bit and 16-bit classics, but so are the graphics. Terry—Minor league Scott—The simplicity of the game play could appeal to casual gamers, but Piazza will have a tough time competing with Griffey and All-Star. Dan—High cheese describes this game.

Acclaim takes aim at N64 puzzle games.

GRAPHICS The marbles and shooter in Bust-A-Move 2 look pretty much as they did in the arcade version of this action puzzle game. The backgrounds have a few changes, but nothing that makes use of the N64's graphic capabilities. In short, there's nothing here that you couldn't do graphically on a lesser platform.

PLAY CONTROL Play control is simple but good. All you have to do is aim and shoot.

GAME DESIGN Bust-A-Move 2 doesn't pretend to be anything new. It's the same BAM-type action with new puzzles and a two-player competitive play mode. In spite of its lack of originality, it's a lot of fun.

SATISFACTION If you're already a BAM fan, you'll be a BAM2 fan, too.

SOUND The music and sound effects add very little to the game play. We recommend cranking the stereo instead.

COMMENTS

Owen—It's a good port of the arcade game, but the puzzles can get boring. Scott-Dan's an action guy, but I like the combination of puzzle-solving and target practice.

Terry—This is the best Bust-A-Move game, but there aren't really any must-have features for Bust-A-Move fans. Paul—Some old, some old. The things that make it good for fans of the previous games make it boring and repetitious for those looking for something new. Sub-par graphics.

RARE ROMPS AT THE FIRST INTERACTIVE AWARDS IN ATLANTA

At the historic first award ceremony of the Academy of Interactive Arts and Sciences at E3, the big winners turned out to be Rare and the N64. Rare polished its reputation as being the brightest star in the interactive entertainment universe by winning an unparalleled five awards. It will come as no surprise to GoldenEye 007 players that the spy-thriller turned out to be the video game equivalent of Titanic: the movie. GoldenEye 007 won awards for Outstanding Achievement in Software Engineering, Console Action Game of the Year, Console Game of the Year, and the biggest honor of all—Interactive Title of the Year. The members of the academy who voted for these awards are drawn from professionals who work in the industry creating interactive games and titles for console and computer systems. To be nominated for the first ever AIAS awards, games had to be published between January 1997 and March 1998. To put GoldenEye's achievement in perspective, no other console or PC title won more than two awards—Diddy Kong Racing, also from Rare, won the Console Racing Game of the Year, beating out such high-powered competition as Mario Kart 64 from Nintendo and NASCAR '98 from EA Sports for the PlayStation.

The N64 also won console category awards for best sports game and best fighting game. Konami's ISS 64 took the honor for best sports game—a well-deserved nod from the academy for the exceptional playability and technical achievement of the title released last summer. In the fighting category, WCW vs. NWO: World Tour pinned powerful PSX competition including Bushido Blade and Street Fighter EX Plus Alpha. Of the twelve awards for which N64 titles competed, the Nintendo system took home seven awards, beating out the best of PlayStation (with just two awards) and the entire PC industry. Congratulations from Nintendo Power to all the award winners, including Shigeru Miyamoto who accepted the academy's first Hall of Fame Award after a special video presentation at the ceremony. We'll have more on Mr. Miyamoto's award, and his thoughts on games in general, and Zelda in particular, in a special interview appearing in the next issue of Power.

N64: THE NEXT GENERATION

In addition to titles such as Zelda and Banjo-Kazooie, gamers at E3 got a glimpse of the next generation of stupendous titles for the N64. Star Wars: Rogue Squadron from LucasArts Entertainment LLC wowed show goers with a playable demo version in Nintendo's booth. Rare Ltd.'s Twelve Tales: Conker 64 entertained gamers in both video clips and playable form while Perfect Dark, from Rare's award-winning GoldenEye Team, appeared in its own special Perfect Dark theater nearby. Jet Force Gemini, also from Rare, dazzled viewers on a giant screen. Get set for a trip into the future.

Rogue Squadron

The second Star Wars-based title for the N64 features the sort of futuristic flying action made famous in the snowspeeder stage of Star Wars: Shadows of the Empire. E3 players were the first to climb into Luke Skywalker's flight suit and join the elite Rogue Squadron to fly missions for the Rebel Alliance. In the finished game, players' tasks will include search and destroy, reconnaissance, rescue missions and more, not to mention desperate battles against the Galactic Empire. Even in this early demo version of Rogue Squadron, the pulse-pounding action took virtual pilots through canyons, over forests, into the skies above Mos Eisley and the farm where Luke grew up. As this early screen shot of Rogue Squadron testifies, the Force is strong in this one.

Twelve Tales: Conker 64

Much has happened in the year since we last played a demo of Conker, and this landmark game still has a ways to go before it is ready to meet the game playing world. But gamers at E3 had a special treat—the chance to begin the exploration of the many worlds where Conker, Berri and a friendly owl live. In last month's preview, you read about the unique game play modes, which make Twelve Tales: Conker 64 perhaps the most varied game in history and which promise incredible replay value. But for the shorter play sessions of E3, it was enough to see the incredible animation and the emotions on the faces of Conker and Berri and to charge around making trouble.

Jet Force Gemini

Jet Force Gemini introduces three new characters, Juno, Vela and Lupus the dog, each of which is fully playable. In fact, you'll have to switch between them to carry out your mission. Two players can play cooperatively, as well, moving about in the same 3-D scene in this sci-fi adventure. Rare also plans to include a four-player hunt-and-hide mode. The game boasts cinematic cut scenes and realistic lighting that imitates the cold swath of a searchlight or the flickering glow of a campfire. Add to all this game play that includes swarming enemies, robotic helpers, changing climate conditions, huge bosses and a power-crazed villain, and it sounds like another milestone from Rare.

Perfect Dark

The same GoldenEye 007 team that set a new standard for action games is doing it again with Perfect Dark. Starring newcomer Joanna Dark, this stylish spy-fi adventure begins in the year 2023 when a young operative is asked to rescue a scientist from the monolithic dataDyne corporation. Subsequent missions take Joanna to a secret

Air Force base and on to the sub-sea crash site of an alien space ship. Although Rare describes the game as having more of everything than GoldenEye, in fact it has more innovations than any previous game. In the Perfect Dark theater, viewers witnessed real-time ray tracing and rendered acoustics for the first time in a video game. Science fiction is about to become science fact.

The future never looked so Dark...

Highlights from E³ '98 in Atlanta

ZELDA RULES E³

Tens of thousands of men and women from around the world descended on Atlanta the week after Memorial Day for the fourth annual Electronic Entertainment Exposition. Many were there to make deals or report on new video and computer games, but it seemed announced that The Legend of Zelda: The Ocarina of Time will be released in November, and that two million copies are expected to be sold before the end of the year. But at the show, the only thing that mattered to the masses was that Zelda was there and that the game was playable for the first time in North America. Mr. Miyamoto's Zelda development team at EAD put together a stupendous demo version for the show. Zelda truly ruled E³.

The Place to be at E³

Nintendo of America once again stormed E³ with the largest and most interactive displays of the show. Giant video screens presented a quick look at Zelda and other headline games such as Banjo-Kazooie and Twelve Tales: Conker 64 from Rare, Rogue Squadron from LucasArts, Bombberman Hero from Nintendo, as well as sneak peaks at future titles. A giant Pokémon Ball opened every twenty minutes and fired off dozens of little Poké Balls to waiting crowds. For the first time ever, gamers explored an English version of Pokémon. And show goers were treated to the world debut of another power-packed little package: Game Boy Color. Definitely the place to be.

The Legend of Zelda: The Ocarina of Time that almost everyone who attended E³ had one appointment in common—a meeting with Zelda at the Nintendo booth. Nintendo of America

Turok 2

Turok 2 was not alone

Outside the giant Nintendo booth, dozens of N64 and Game Boy games were showcased at third-party publishers. Standing head and shoulders above them all was Turok 2: Seed of Evil, from Acclaim. For action fans, Turok 2 was undoubtedly the highlight of the show, but Acclaim's other offerings for the second half of '98 are also impressive. NFL Quarterback Club '99 now uses the superb All-Star Baseball '99 graphic engine, especially designed for sports games and motion-captured animation. NBA Jam '99 wasn't as close to being finished as QB Club, and the two-on-two mode has been dropped, but the developers have set their sights on Kobe Bryant in NBA Courtside as the game to beat. Extreme-G 2 from Acclaim's development team at Probe felt even sharper than its predecessor, fast, faster and fastest.

The Blitz is on

Football will have a new face this fall when Midway releases the N64 version of its arcade hit, NFL Blitz. Arcade football's answer to NBA Jam has progressed by leaps and bounds in recent months. It looked well on its way to being a contender. It looks virtually as good as the arcade game, and with the Rumble Pak rocking, Blitz feels even closer to the real thing. In close competition for play tests at Midway was Rush 2, but the biggest news at Midway may really floor you. Body Harvest, in development since the dawn of time at DMA, has been picked up by Midway. The game still may not be released until first quarter '99, but it is getting close enough to completion that those who see it can't conceal their excitement.

Beyond Madden

We expected to see a much improved Madden NFL '99 from EA Sports, and we did. But we didn't expect to see N64 versions of NASCAR '98 and NHL '98 so soon. To our surprise, we were able to play both games. Even at 60% and 40% respectively, NASCAR and NHL look extremely promising. NHL '98 moves the classic series into the realm of 3-D gaming without losing the great play control that made it so much fun on the Super NES.

Dracula survives!

One of the most anticipated games of the year has to be Konami's Castlevania. The N64 Castlevania we saw includes many touches from the early series of games on the NES and Super NES, but it also promises to go where no previous Castlevania has gone before. Konami's other offerings ranged from the classy soccer sequel, ISS '98, to the newbie title, Survivor, which still looked pretty early. Hybrid Heaven, one of the games we're dying to play, was present only on video.

What's up at UBI?

The graphics in Ubi Soft's Tonic Trouble looked excellent, but the game still has plenty of development ahead. The same is true of Ubi's other headline titles, including Buck Bumble, SCARS and Rayman 2. SCARS seemed to be further along than the other games. This racer features good control and wild vehicles. Ubi Soft also plans to produce a new F-1 racing game based on their hit PC F-1 sim.

The Roundup

Elsewhere at E3, a few surprise titles showed up, such as Fox Sports College Hoops '99 from Fox Interactive and Glover from Hasbro. The Fox b-ball game features 120 major college teams, conference play, the final four, the NCAA license and easy-to-learn play control.

Hasbro's Glover is an unusual little action puzzle game starring an animated hand that has to push, throw, and prod a ball through various levels filled with obstacles.

Milo's Bowl-A-Rama from Crave Entertainment is now being called Milo's Astro Lanes. The bowling is out of this world on seven lanes that range from a fairly standard lane to lanes made of energy waves and lanes with jumps in the middle. Caesars Palace wasn't playable yet, but a video demonstrated the look of the 3-D world and hinted at the adventure aspect of this gambling game. Crave is also working on VR Pool 64, a billiards game from Interplay's VR Sports series.

Much of the emphasis at THQ was on the upcoming WCW/NWD Revenge. In addition to the wrestling game, THQ has a strong lineup of Game Boy games, and an N64 racer based on Penny Racer model cars.

The man of steel was flying high at the Titus booth, but it doesn't look as if Superman will be released this summer, as Titus had hoped. Roadsters '98 owes a nod to Automobili Lamborghini. Titus is using much of the Lamborghini engine while adding new special effects and creating all new cars and courses.

Finally, at Interplay, Earthworm Jim 3D for the N64 is moving along. We witnessed cows, pigs and outrageous stages derived from Jim's twisted psyche. Although Interplay hopes for a third quarter release, expect Jim to appear during the fall instead. That's the quick wrap, but you'll find more details in the next few pages. Like E3 itself, our Pak Watch coverage goes on and on.

EIDOS FIGHTS BACK

Eidos Interactive may be best known for Lara Croft, but the British company introduced a new set of heroes at E3, heroes that will make their home on the

N64. Fighting Force harkens back to the days of scrolling fighters such as Final Fight and Double Dragon, but the action now takes place on 3-D mean streets filled with thugs and danger. The four characters include two women and two men, all of them as tough as nails and itching for a fight. The E3 demo version of the game allowed two-player cooperative play in a single screen window. As you can see from the screen shots, later areas include interiors, as well, and the graphics are sharp. What you can't see is that you can pick up and use weapons along the way, just like you could in Double Dragon. It's been a long time, but maybe the world is ready for another street rumble. The fact that Fighting Force is being created by Core, the developers of Tomb Raider, makes it even more intriguing.

A SEED OF EVIL

Turok 2: Seed of Evil promises to be an immense game on many levels. As expected, the Turok 2 at E3 featured both ground-breaking technologies and creative game play. Stunningly modelled and animated enemies hunted Turok with uncanny intelligence, but the returning hero had his own advantage: an even more spectacular arsenal of weaponry than in Turok: Dinosaur Hunter. Weapons such as the Shredder—with energy shots that bounce off walls and strike enemies around corners—gave Turok at least an even chance at life. The four-player modes weren't working yet, but new adventure elements will add even more depth to the play. For instance, in one sacked city, the sound of a crying child draws you into a side mission. October now stands as the beginning of Turok's second great adventure.

OR DIE TRYING PAK WATCH

Not only did Pygma announce that it plans on creating an exclusive adventure game for the N64 to be released this year, it also showcased the game at E3. O.D.T., which stands for using magic, and one character just bulls his way through anything, getting hardly a scratch. If this sounds like a bit of sword and sorcery, it isn't. As the screen shots reveal, O.D.T. mixes a more futuristic look with its spells and adventure. It may also sound a bit like Final Fantasy, but O.D.T. takes place in full 3-D and in real time. One thing to look out for is the artificial stupidity built into the enemies. What this means in game play is that enemies may react out of fear or hunger. They may even group together and cooperate in hunting you down. O.D.T. has all the earmarks of a hit, so don't be surprised when you hear a lot more about it this fall.

Or Die Trying is a third person adventure with both action and RPG elements. For action, you have real-time battles with enemies. For RPG, you have to build up levels as you descend through eight levels of a huge, mysterious tower. The game can be played with any of four hero characters, each with his or her own special fighting method and strengths. For instance, some characters are better at

THE FASTEST SPORT

The fastest growing sport in America is said to be NASCAR racing. No argument here. When people love their cars as much as Americans do, it shouldn't come as any surprise that we're spending so much time watching stock cars or playing racing games. EA Sports is set to bring the NASCAR experience home this fall with NASCAR '98. At E3, virtual drivers got a chance to sit behind the wheel, literally, of this newest racing game. (EA Sports set up the game in an arcade-type car with a real steering wheel. We would have liked to try NASCAR with a regular N64 Controller, as well, but it wasn't to be.) What we discovered was the same thrill that keeps guys like Bill Elliott and Jeff Gordon racing around those big ovals. Speed thrills. It's simple. NASCAR for the N64 features 18 courses, real cars, teams and drivers, realistic drafting, intuitive play control and graphics that put you right down on the track.

Don't try this in your Dad's Volvo. VOLUME 110 155

Pak Peek

What's breaking in the world of games.

Star power

Nintendo and Blizzard Entertainment announced an exclusive agreement to bring the real-time strategy game, Starcraft, to the N64. Starcraft won two AIAS awards this year, as Personal Computer Strategy Game of the Year and Computer Entertainment Title of the Year. Starcraft, and its predecessor, Warcraft, are resource management, real-time strategy games. That means that players control all the units on one side of a conflict. They choose which units go into battle against which targets, and they can control movements and attacks during battles. But that's just the beginning, because players must also secure building materials and energy and create the units and bases they'll need for the war effort. It's all realtime, fast-paced and very involving. The Starcraft universe, as you might have guessed, takes place in outer space, far from earth, where Terran colonists compete with two alien species, the Protoss and the Zerg.

Koei's new look

The new Koei hopes to establish a broader reputation with more action-oriented games. The first of these for the N64 is Win Back, a third-person action thriller. The player character belongs to the Strategic Covert Action Team, which is on a mission to disable a killer laser system that has been taken over by terrorists. The character features 350 animations, including cool stuff like the ability to roll out of the line of fire. Cinematic cut scenes will link the various stages, which take place in four distinct areas.

Up, up and away

Our top Pak Watch test pilot flew Video Systems' latest project, Harrier 2000 (which used to be called Harrier Strike Force) in a special meeting with Video Systems and Paradigm Entertainment at E3. This combat sim may have been very early, but the models already look stunning and the jets really take off vertically. In other news from Video Systems, the impressive F-1 World Grand Prix racing game will be distributed by Nintendo of America, ensuring that no F-1 fan will miss the race.

Game Boy is reborn

The unstoppable Game Boy system is set to be reborn this fall—the delivery date is November 23rd—when Nintendo releases Game Boy Color. At E3, the world got to see the color graphics for the first time. A demo unit of Game Boy Color cycled through animations of an aquarium of colorful fish, a colorized section of Wario Land, and various other scenes and logos. Nintendo of America announced that it would release six color games along with the system, including Titus Software's Quest For Camelot. Now other publishers are scrambling to do the same. We've already mentioned that Acclaim and Kemco have big plans for Game Boy Color, but the new wave of Game Boy titles won't stop there. Sunsoft plans to release eight color games for Game Boy in the months following the system's debut. That list includes Power Battle, Looney Tunes, Tazmania, Daffy Duck, Speedy Gonzalez, Batman, Batman: Return of the Joker, and Gemlins 2.

At Konami, development is in the works for several Game Boy Color titles, including a hockey game and Spawn. Midway is also jumping on the bandwagon, just announcing at press time that Rush, MK4, Rampage and NFL Blitz would all appear in Game Boy Color versions. THQ also has Game Boy Color plans for its full Game Boy lineup, with A Bug's Life and Rugrats likely candidates for the rainbow treatment. Natsume hopes to have color versions of Harvest Moon and Legend of the River King available for Game Boy Color by December. This flurry of activity is impressive, but keep in mind that all of your current Game Boy games will also work with Game Boy Color and that you'll be able to play them in 10 colors, as well. It sounds almost as big as Zelda. By the way, Mr. Miyamoto revealed that The Legend of Zelda: Link's Awakening, would be converted to color.

Robotech Lives! and other amazing news from E3

Well, sort of. Capcom has entered into a distribution agreement with GameTek for the long-awaited title, Robotech: Crystal Dream. The strong FASA license is hard to resist for a company such as Capcom that is aching to get into the N64 market. Still, Capcom knows quality games and won't let GameTek rush the title. Capcom also plans to announce two more N64 titles very soon.

At Activision, we saw a three-month-old version of Quake II, and even at this tender age it looked rather mature. The play control was solid and the graphics looked very good.

Komick has partnered with Microware for the upcoming release of four of its N64 titles, including Knife Edge, Charlie Blast's Challenge, Top Gear Overdrive and Shadowgate 64. All four games are scheduled for release by the end of the year. At the show, a self-guided tour of Shadowgate 64 revealed parts of the 3-D castle where the mysteries and magic will take place.

Not only does Natsume troll for games in the most unusual places, it also manages to catch keepers most of the time. At E3, Natsume showed some early video of Legend of the River King for N64. The fish looked marvelous, virtually alive. The game won't just be an upgrade from the Game Boy title of the same name, but an entirely new adventure, which should be released in the first half of '99.

Ocean is now just a brand name of the French publisher, Infogrames, but that didn't stop Infogrames from stepping right up at E3 to fill the breach. In addition to Mission: Impossible, Infogrames had a playable Space Circus for the N64 for the first time. We now expect this graphically provocative game to be released this fall. We also saw VRally for the first time. This international racer has been in development on the N64 for only a few months, but many of the original game's features, such as detailed graphics, are already apparent.

RETROMAGS

Our goal is to preserve classic video game magazines so that they are not lost permanently.

People interested in helping out in any capacity, please visit us at www.retromags.com.

No profit is made from these scans, nor do we offer anything available from the publishers themselves.

If you come across anyone selling releases from this site, please do not support them and do let us know.

Thank you!
